Shaping Course In China

Acheson Expected To Direct New Anti-Communist Moves In Far East

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 — (AP) —Sen. Vandenberg, Republican foreign policy leader, said tonight that the United States must take a fresh look at its China policies and determine its course "unhampered by past prejudicies or emotions."

Speaking out on the government's China policy "white paper," the Michigan Senator said this country must make "relentlessly clear" its support for the Chinese people and for freedom in the Far East.

Patrick J. Hurley, who headed a wartime mission to China, assailed the white paper in a statement as "a smooth alibi for the pro-Communists in the state department."

In several ways Vandenberg's statement coincided with views expressed by Secretary of State Acheson.

Hope Of Saving China

Acheson, who has abandoned hope of saving China by propping up the Nationalist regime, has before him the problem of shaping a positive new approach.

Aides and associates expected him to move along three lines in directing new administration moves against Communism in the Far East. This possibly includes assistance to anti-Communist forces which may remain or spring up to oppose Chinese Red control.

Vandenberg, top Republican on the Senate foreign relations committee, declared that the United States must not accept results of "aggression." He said he did not believe the aggression in China can permanently succeed. Acheson had declared in a statement on the white paper yesterday that he was not "defeatist."

Cails For Fresh Look

Vandenberg called for "a fresh look, unhampered by past prejudices or emotions." Acheson has announced that he was bringing in outside advisers to work with state department officials on devising new moves with respect to China and the Far East.

Vandenberg further declared that the United States "deal with the realities" of the situation. Acheson likewise has demanded that the country adopt a "realistic" attitude toward its problems in China.

In line with what Vandenberg advocated, Acheson had pinned American policy to support of the Chinese people when, through release of the white paper, he effectively ended support of the Nationalist government.

The points of agreement in the statements issued by the two men were regarded by diplomatic observers as important. They indicated a possible new approach to the development of China policy with a degree of bi-partisanship, as between the state department and Vandenberg, which has not existed in the past.

To Receive Consideration

There appeared to be no doubt that Vandenberg's views would receive careful consideration by Acheson and his advisers.

Officials believe that Acheson, in the expected three lines of anti-Communist action, may urge aid for any resistance forces showing signs of a determined stand against the Communists.

The three lines along which policy moves are expected to be ordered are these:

1. Resistance to any threat of aggression by the Chinese Communists against China's neighbors —such as Burma and French Indo-China.

2. Promotion of political policies among China's neighbors from Korea through Japan and the Philippines around to India which will better living conditions of the people and thereby weaken the position of Communism working from the inside.

3. Take advantage of all opportunities to weaken the position of Communism inside China by giving encouragement and, where practical, assistance to any Chinese movement aimed at restoring the country's independence of Communism.

Ford Fails To Get Order In Strike Case

Decision Means Walkout Vote Will Start On Monday

DETROIT, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Ford Motor Company failed today to obtain a court order to halt the holding of a strike vote among its employes at polling places close to headquarters of the CIO United Auto Workers.

In Lansing, Supreme Court Justice Leland W. Carr denied the company's plea for an order to force the State Labor Mediation Board to change the election setup.

The decision meant that the strike vote among Ford's 80,000 employes in Michigan will start Monday as scheduled.

The company immediately put full page advertisements in all three Detroit Sunday morning newspapers appealing to the members of Walter P. Reuther's big union.

The ads appeared over the signature of Henry Ford II, and urged the workers to weigh their strike decision carefully.

"It is the apparent hope of union leadership," Ford asserted, "that you will vote yourself into another long strike. In fact, they seem to want only those of you who favor a strike actually to cast ballots in the coming election.

"That is why we are doing everything we can to have polling places located where the greatest possible number of you may vote."

Henry Ford II gave the company's version of the wage negotiation dispute with the union. He conclude:

"But however you decide, you must vote."

Legionnaires Street Parade

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6—(AP)—Some 5,000 Legionnaires marched through downtown streets this afternoon in their annual parade —traditional highlight of the American Legion's annual state convention.

Steve Kriwanek, veteran grand marshal of St. Louis Legion parades, said there were 225 units representing all of the 17 districts from the Missouri department taking part in the hour and a half-long event.

Bands and troops from the Missouri National Guard and the Air Force base at nearby Scott Field, Ill., joined in the marching.

One of the features of the parade was a new voiture 38, 40 and 8 locomotive, recently built for the Missouri unit by the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad.

Child Killed In Fall From Car

BETHANY, Mo., Aug. 6—(AP)—A four-year-old girl was killed today when she fell from a motor car.

The child was Kathleen Mary Waller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Waller, Manson, Va. She toppled out as the family motor car, driven by the father, rounded a curve on U. S. highway 69 two miles south of here.

Cheaper Pork Chops Ahead

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The agriculture department advised housewives today cheaper pork chops are in prospect this fall. It also forecast generally lower prices for other meats resulting from increased supplies.

The department said meat and livestock prices are expected to remain generally steady until fall marketings begin. The large spring pig crop will then become available.

Contract For Biggest Bombs Is Announced

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 6—(AP)—A $1,,199,464 contract for the Air Force's biggest bombs—50,000 and 22,000 pounds—was announced by Boeing Airplane Co. here today.

The contract calls for ten lifts for 25-ton bombs and six for the 11-tonners.

Completion is scheduled by mid-November, next year, with first deliveries scheduled next July.

Electric motors, actuating a hydraulic system in the 25-ton lift, can hoist the huge bombs to 12½ feet, foll then 360 degrees in either direction, shift them four inches either side of center and 10 inches fore and aft, and tilt them six degrees up or down.

One man, operating six levers, thus can handle the huge bombs with ease.

Can Be Transported By Air

Behind a jeep or truck, and carrying a 25-ton bomb, the lifts can be towed as fast as 20 miles an hour. They are demountable for transport by air.

The smaller lifts can do essentially the same with 12½-ton bombs.

Both have been under development by Boeing and the Air Force since early 1947. Since then, under prior contracts, Boeing has built two of the 50,000-pound bomb lifts, three for 22,-000-pound bombs, and 126 dollies to carry bombs weighing up to 12,000 pounds.

These have been tested at Wright - Patterson, Eglin and Muroc Air Force bases.

When contracted in April, 1947, to design, engineer and build the 25-tonner Boeing lift, it also contracted to modify a B-29 Superfortress here to carry the newly-developed 21-ton "earthquake" bomb. Modified, it has completed a series of tests.

Vagabonds Are Not Welcome In Sedalia

Edgar Neighbors, chief of police, has notified his officers to pick up all vagabonds in Sedalia, strangers with no visible means of support, and if they have no real reason for being here, to get them out of town.

A similar procedure was carried out last year before the opening of the State Fair, and according to Chief Neighbors, there were no break-ins nor pick-pockets reported in the city during the fair.

Thousands Of Dime-Sized Frogs Blitz Mobile Streets

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 6—(AP)—Thousands of dime-sized brown frogs, apparently all hopped up over something, blitzed two streets here today.

vasion before dawn and by day-

The frogs jumped off on the inbreak had just about covered the yards.

J. M. Ramsey said he noticed all frogs seemed westward bound from a nearby water-hole and figured "they're just migrating."

Paul English said his duck found the frogs at dawn and by 8 a. m. had eaten so many they couldn't stand.

"They just sat on the ground," said English, "and kept eating every frog that hopped close enough.' '

Where the frogs came or why was a mystery.

Deadly Forest Fire Rages In Montana

Three Parachuting Smoke-Jumpers And Others Killed

HELENA, Mont. Aug. 6—(AP)—At least 11 men are dead and two are missing in a forest fire that formed a raging death trap for forest service parachutists.

The blaze is centered in a primitive mountain area 25 miles northeast of here.

Nine charred bodies have been found in the embers and eight of the nine are believed the bodies of "smoke jumpers" who parachuted into the gates of the mountain sector yesterday to fight the flames.

Only three of 15 'chutists dropped from planes over the area are known to be safe.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 6—(AP)—Montana's deadliest forest fire of years ravaged hundreds more primitive acres near here today after killing three parachuting smoke-jumpers and two other men.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 6—(AP)—The forest fire which turned the primitive "gates of the mountains" wilderness near Helena into an inferno caught forest service parachutists as they fled up a mountain, a survivor related today.

The "smokejumpers" were described by a veteran rescue worker as "all young kids . . . college students . . . who were jumping for the sport of it."

Another eight men were missing in the blackened, smoking inferno 25 miles northeast of Helena. There seemed scant hope that any of these would be found alive by the hundreds of firefighters striving desperately to curb the wind-driven flames which have raced unbridled across more than 3,000 acres since they burst out yesterday.

Fifteen of the specially trained 'chutists jumped into the inaccessible Big Belt mountain area yesterday. Two were killed, one other died today of burns and six were among the missing. One of the survivors said the jumpers landed all right but "we were enveloped in flames" almost at once and trapped by the horse-race pace of the blaze. Three were known to have escaped the trap but the fate of the other three was not definitely known tonight.

University Student Dies

Joseph Silva, University of Minnesota student, was among the 'chutists brought to the hospital and he died this afternoon. Names of the other two dead jumpers were withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

The other identified dead were James O. Harrison of Missoula, Mont., a forest service employe from the nearby canyon ferry ranger station and Bill Hellman of Kalispell, Mont., who died in a hosptial today.

Men from Montana and Idaho are being flown here to help fight the Big Belt mountain blaze and another fire a few miles to the east, in the York-Bull Run gulch area.

The forest service hopes to have 500 men on the fire lines by tomorrow.

U. S. Service Report

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The U. S. Forest Service reported tonight that 11 persons have been killed in a forest fire raging in Montana.

Two men missing in a canyon also are presumed dead, service officials reported.

One forest fire was reported to have spread over 3,000 acres by tonight, with another blaze raging out of control.

The weather forecast for tomorrow in the fire area, 25 miles northeast of Helena, was reported by the forest service as "dry, with more lightning and low humidity."

Those conditions are conductive to more fires, the service said.

Charge Attempt To Wreck A Train

ST. JOSEPH, Aug. 6 — (AP) — Virgil Gilcrist, 39, Council Bluffs, Ia., was arraigned today on a charge of wilfully attempting to wreck a train.

Maurice Pope, U. S. commissioner before whom Gilchrist was arraigned, said the defendant was accused of piling old motor car parts on the Burlington railroad tracks here.

A freight train hit the pile of metal, but was not derailed. When the train stopped Gilchrist boarded an empty car and rode to Payne, Ia., where he was arrested by special police.

Blast Rips Factory

WIKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 6—(AP)—Three explosions ripped a food factory in nearby West Manticoke today injuring 26 persons.

The triple blast was caused by accidental ignition of Pentane gas used in the firm's gas stoves, state Fire Marshal Al Wilson reported.

'Three Day Permanent Cure' With One Pill For Malaria

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Chicago Herald-American reported tonight that a "three-day permanent cure" with one pill has been discovered for Malaria.

The newspaper, in a copyrighted story, said the discovery resulted from a $7,000,000 (M) federal project involving experiments with 300 convicts at Illinois' Stateville prison as malaria "guinea pigs."

The tests have been going 18 months, the Herald-American said.

Credited by the newspaper for the discovery are Dr. Alf Sven Alving, University of Chicago medical expert, and Dr. John Arnold, an Army scientist. They directed the experiments at Stateville.

"It was indicated the three-day malaria cure will be put on the market by May, 1950, after the federal pure food and drug division adds its stamp of approval," the Herald-American said.

Asked about the Herald-American report, Dr. Arnold refused to confirm or deny that a quick cure had been found. He added: "If you want verification be at the American College of Physicians convention at Indianapolis in November."

In its article the Herald-American said a report on the drug will be made at this convention.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen of Stateville declined comment. Dr. Alving is vacationing in Wenatchee, Wash.

Kansas Citian Electrocuted

Archie A. Alleman, 44, was electrocuted late Friday while rewiring the kitchen of his farm home two and one-half miles south of Buckner.

Alleman was underneath the house, rewiring the electrical connections to the kitchen because of the installation of a new refrigerator.

His wife, Mrs. Roberta Alleman, said she was snapping the switch on and off in the kitchen according to his shouted directions. The last time he called, she said, she turned the switch on. She heard him cry out and snapped the switch off and ran to him. She found him motionless.

She telephoned to neighbors, who arrived to assist. The Missouri Public Service company office at Lee's Summit sent linemen who removed the body from the damp ground, it being feared that inexperienced persons might be shocked. A pulmotor from the Webb funeral home, Blue Springs, was used.

Surviving also are two sons, Pfc. George A. Alleman, 20, army, Germany; and Archie A. Alleman, Jr., 10, of the home; three daughters, Miss Betty Ann Alleman, 18, Flora Lee Alleman, 15, and Helen K. Alleman, 12, all of the home, and his mother, Mrs. Henry Stock, Boonville.

Thousand Persons Stop Dancing And Witness Ceremony

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 6—(AP)—Charles Donelson, who advertised just five days ago for a bride, marched to a ballroom bandstand tonight and was married to blue-eyed, 18-year-old Irene Krebs.

About a thousand persons stopped dancing and watched the 21-year-old ex-soldier and former circus fire-eater calmly repeat the vows with his smiling 90-pound bride.

Brillian t spotlights flashed on the scene. News-reel cameras ground away. Flash bulbs flickered. A 12-piece dance band gave out with fitting wedding music.

Among the happiest persons in the crowd was the major domo of the whole business, Jimmy Hakes, proprietor of the Frog Hop ballroom, who had said everybody wanted to make it a "serious, solemn ceremony."

Double Wedding

It was a double wedding, with Donelson's roofing business partner, Orville Mortimore, 20, being married to Miss Delores Haskey, 19.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William R. Oursler, 67, retired Presbyterian minister of Maryville, Mo.

Hope To Persuade Star To Remain In Motion Picture

ROME, Aug. 6 — (AP) — Roberto Rossellini, the Italian movie director, may persuade Ingrid Bergman to remain in motion pictures.

A source close to the Swedish actress said today he confidently expects Miss Bergman to resume acting after about a year of retirement.

"She may make another picture with Rossellini," he said, "although her next role my be directed by some one else."

The informant said Miss Bergman intends to marry the divorced, 43-year-old director shortly after her own divorce from Swedish surgeon Dr. Peter Lindsrom becomes final.

No legal action has yet been taken, the information added, but Miss Bergman's attorneys are preparing to file first divorce papers here as soon as Dr. Lindstrom's attitude becomes known. This may be in a matter of a few days.

Lindstrom, resident surgeon of Los Angeles hospital, told reporters yesterday that he had not known of his wife's intentions to seek a divorce.

Quake In Ecuador, 1,400 Die

Casualties Mount, Hundreds More May Be Under Rubble; Thousands Homeless

By Jorge Mantilla

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 6—(AP)—The city of Ambato counted more than 400 dead and 1,000 injured today following an earthquake which virtually destroyed the industrial center of 50,-000. The casualty list was mounting steadily and hundreds more may be buried in the rubble.

(A dispatch from Lima, Peru, said Ecuadorean President Galo Plaza Lasso reported in a broadcast tonight from Ambato that 1,000 persons were killed by the quakes at Patate which he described as a small town. No town by that name had been mentioned previously in reports from the stricken area.

(Ecuadorean radio stations heard at Medellin, Colombia, gave estimates of the Ambato death toll ranging from 300 to 1,500.)

(The Ecuadorean embassy in Washington said it had been officially confirmed that 500 were dead in Ambato alone. Ambassador Augusto Dillon said 70 per cent of the provincial capital's buildings were laid waste. Not only were 500 killed, Dillon said, but probably more than 2,000 were injured and 10,000 people probably will be out of work in Ambato.)

Series Of Shocks

The earthquake struck at 1 p. m. (EST) yesterday and continued until 1:45 p. m. in a series of six violent shocks. During the longest shock—which lasted 40 seconds—most of Ambato's biggest buildings crashed to the ground. It was Ecuador's worst disaster since colonial times.

The entire Ecuadorean cabinet, except Interior Minister Salaza Gomez who went to Ambato with President Galo Plaza Lasso, was on 24-hour duty coordinating relief work.

Railway officials said the Quito-Guayaquil line was blocked by so many landslides it will take a week to reopen it. Twenty-seven slides were reported on one 3-mile stretch of track. This line, principal freight carrier between Quito and the Pacific coast, passes through the entire earthquake zone.

Floods Too

Floods added to the distress in the quake area. Landslides blocked streams which then changed their courses and inundated farmlands. The first contingents of troops helped calm panicky Ambato residents when they arrived there this morning.

The earthquake struck a wide mountainous area of the Andes range surrounding Ambato, which lies 55 miles due south of Quito The cities of Latacunga, Guaranda and Riobamba also were hit. The governor of Chimboranzo province reported there were numerous dead and many injured in Riobamba, the provincial capital. This city, with 60,000 inhabitants, is 100 miles south of Quito.

Towns and villages suffering major damage included: San Miguel, Pujili, Cevallos, San Andres, Mocha, Cochimabma, Guamote and Guano. The latter, famous for its Indian rugs, was reported almost destroyed with an undetermined number of dead and injured. The towns of Salcedo and Santa Rosa also were reported to have been damaged.

Ambato, which was destroyed by an earthquake in 1797, again was a scene of desolation. When the first shock rocked the city, many residents dashed into streets and parks for safety. Hundreds took refuge in churches and prayed. Great cracks opened in the streets. Water mains burst and communication lines were ripped apart. Bridges crumbled into bits. Nearly the whole population was left homeless.

The cathedral was destroyed while 50 children were inside taking a Catechism lesson. The military barracks crashed to the ground killing 150 soldiers and injuring 60 others. The palace of the provincial government was a heap of ruins. Four other churches also were demolished—Santo Domingo, San Francisco, La Merced and the church of the Josephine Fathers.

Farm Improvement Train Not Coming

The Katy Farm Improvement Train will not be brought to Sedalia and other points in central Missouri as had been planned due to the inability to obtain speakers and officials from Washington, D. C., because of the extended Congressional session.

The tour has now been postponed until sometime in 1950.

Address on Postal Service Given to Members of Kiwanis

"The Postal Service, and Rural Free Delivery," was the subject of a talk by Paul G. Benson, Sedalia, rural mail carrier, and National Committeeman of the Rural Mail Carriers, Association, before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Benson's remarks were as follows:

"The Postal Service has been in existence since time immemorial. Posts were used to hearld the fall of Ancient Babylon and numerous references are made in the Bible to the use and swiftness of the Posts. The original Posts could really be classified as Rural Delivery Service as they consisted of horses and men in relays to forward messages from outlying Provinces to the various Capitals of Ancient time.

"The Postal Service in this Country was established by the Continental Congress in 1775 and Benjamin Franklin was the first Postmaster General. It has kept pace with the growth of this great Nation until it now ranks in the scope of its operations with the country's largest business enterprises. It is owned by and operated for the American people. The Constitution of the United States provided for a national Postal system established as a Service institution. Since its inception—its motto has been "The Mail Must Go Through." This motto is rooted and grounded in the heart of every Postal Employee.

Taken for Granted

"The average citizen takes the Postal Service for granted giving little, if any, thought to the vast and intricate system that has been set up in order to give him prompt and efficient service. As long as the service operates for him in a normal manner he is satisfied. However, every citizen would have a greater appreciation of the Service if he would familiarize himself with the magnitude of this great institution which serves him daily and of which he owns a part interest. I am justly proud to be a small part of this vast enterprise which is so vital to the success of every business and professional man in Sedalia.

"The complete operations of the Service is administered in Washington, D. C. by the Post Office Department. The Department is headed by the Postmaster General who is a member of the President's Cabinet. His immediate staff includes the Director of the Budget, the Solicitor and the Purchasing Agent. The office of the Purchasing Agent buys every single item of equipment used in the Service from Mail Trucks to twine. The Department is further organized into Four Major Bureaus each headed by an Assistant Postmaster General. In addition to these four major Bureaus there is the Bureau of the Chief Inspector and the Bureau of Accounts.

Some Duties

"The Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General is charged with the establishment, organization and maintenance of the Service in General and has supervision over all personel. The Bureau of the Second Assistant has jurisdiction over all transportation of the mails including the Railway Mail Service, Air transportation and International Postal Service. The Third Assistant has jurisdiction over all transportation of the mails including the Railway Mail Service, Air transportation and International Newspapers and periodicals, stamps, Registry Service, Postal Savings, Parcel Post and Finance. The Bureau of the Fourth Assistant has under its jurisdiction Postoffice Quarters, Motor Vehicle Service, Division of Equipment and supplies, Federal Buildings and Mail Equipment Shops.

"The First Assistant Postmaster General has three deputy assistants and his Bureau is organized into six divisions.—Division of Budget and Administrative Services, Division of Post Office Clerical Servcie Division of City Delivery Service, Division of Post Office Personnel, Division of Postmasters and Division of Rural Delivery Service. Each of these Divisions is headed by a Director. The Director of the Rural Delivery Service is a former rural carrier who was National Pres. of our Organization. Hon. J. E. Cooper.

"I would like to give you gentlemen a brief summary of the history and growth of the Rural Delivery Service of which I am proud to be a part. The question might arise as to why you as residents of a city would be interested in Rural Mail Delivery but I will venture to assert that every member of this club utilizes the Rural Mail Service regularly in connection with your business or profession. The success of every urban community depends to a large extent on its rural trade territory and the Rural Mails are used extensively in the effort to bring the rural patrons to town.

Rural Delivery Service

"The Rural Delivery Service was instituted in 1896. In this rapidly expanding country there was a definite need of rural postal service. When legislation for this Service was introduced in the House of Representatives there was much opposition from those who feared such a plan would bankrupt the country. However with an appropriation of $40,000 for its backing, the first experimental rural delivery service was made available from Charlestown, Halltown and Uvilla, West Virginia, effective October 1, 1896. West Virginia was the home state of the Postmaster General at that time, the Honorable William L. Wilson. Each of these routes averaged about 20 miles and each of the five carriers received a yearly salary of $200.00. In the first 9 months there had been established 82 routes from 43 Postoffices in in 29 states. By 1903 there wre 15,000 rural carriers over the United States. From that humble beginning the Service rapidly expanded and reached its peak in 1925 when there was a total of 45,189 rural routes in the country. At that time, due to constant road improvement and the change in the method of delivery from horse and buggy to automobiles, a program of consolidation of rural routes was instituted. Routes were lengthened in this manner until at the present time the average route length is 45 miles. The 50th anniversary Golden Jubliee of the Rural Delivery Service was celebrated in 1946. The National Rural Letter Carriers' Association held a most impressive memorial service at the grave of the first rural carrier in the United States in the cemetery at Charlestown, West Virginia. As a member of the National Board of Control of this Association it was a high honor and privilege for me to be present at this impressive cermony. Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson, who was then First Assistant gave the memorial address. The Association which has so signally honored me has always held high the noble traditions of the Rural Delivery Service

Rural Routes

"On January 1, 1949, there were 32,494 rural routes in operation, the rural carriers serving these routes traveling 1,500,000 miles each day and giving complete Postal Serivce to 30,000,000 rural Americans. Missouri is among the states having the largest number of rural carriers. There are over 1500 rural carriers in this state serving almost half the population of the state. Illinois has the largest number of rural carriers with 1722. Wyoming is the smallest state in which we have an organization with 32 carriers. We do not have an organization in the states of Nevada and Utah there being less than a dozen carriers in each of these states.

"The rural carriers truly operates a "Postoffice on wheels" bringing every facility of the Postal Service to the farmer's mail box. He delivers and collects mail, sells stamps, takes applications for money orders, registers letters, insures packages and his daily stops at the familiar rural mail boxes are eageraly awaited by his patrons. The rural carrier enjoys a closer personal relationship with his patrons than any other postal employee. In many instances the farmers use the same make of tires, batteries, chains, automobiles etc. as do their rural carriers as they well know these commodities get a good trial on a rural mail route. In many isolated sections of our country the rural carrier is the only representative of the Government with whom rural people come in contact. To these people the mail man is truly "The United States Government." It would surprise you to know the extent in which the advice and counsel of the mail man is sought by rural Americans in many of their more personal affairs. In return it is traditional with the rural service that the mail must go through and the and the trials and hardships endured by rural carriers in serving their routes during all kinds of weather conditions go hand and hand with the growth of the service. Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

War Services

"During the war the rural carrier extended many special services one of which was to make special trips to the home of a patron, day or night with that fateful message which every loved

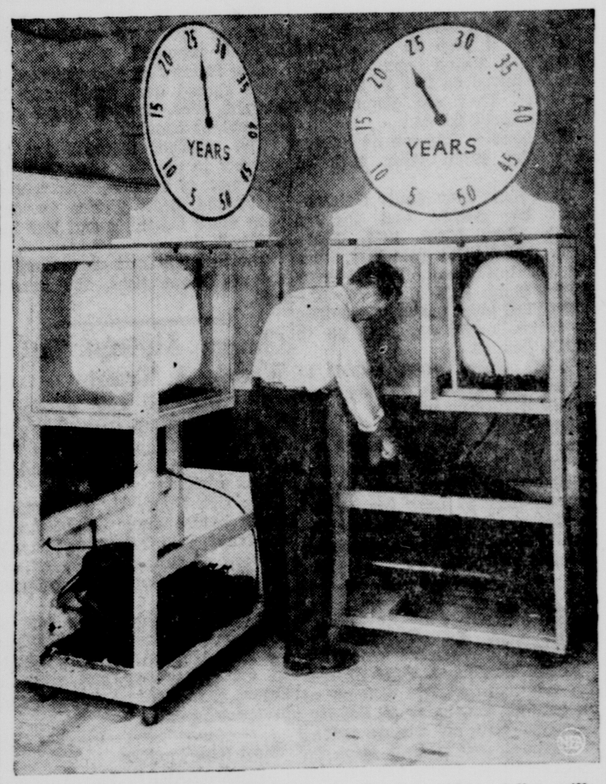
HOME WAS NEVER LIKE THIS—So you think you're hot. Think of a family of Eskimos in Chicago's 95-degree heat. The Angaboogoks, from Wales, Alaska, swelter in the Eskimo Village at Chicago's Riverside Park and wistfully think of their Arctic home. A big fan, cool drinks and ice cream don't help much. The family is en route to the Illinois State Fair at Springfield and will return home in September.



AND STILL GOING STRONG—In Dayton, Ohio, folks will show you what may be the oldest mechanical refrigerators in continuous operation. The one pictured at left has been running without letup for 27 years. Its mate is a close runner-up, having started freezing in 1924. Ordinary refrigerators only work part time, going on and off in cycles. Engineers figure that in comparison with ordinary refrigerators, these oldsters have run the equivalent of 108 and 100 years, respectively.

Address On Postal Service

one of those in the service of their country so dreaded to receive. It was most fitting that these messages begining with "we regret to inform you" should be conveyed by one who knew them most intimately, and who was truly a sympathetic friend who had, in most instances, watched their lost loved one grow to mannood. It was the most painful duty a rural carrier ever performed.

"On November 25, 1947, occured an event which was unprecented in all the annals of the history of the Postal Service. First Assistant Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson received a telephone call from the White House. President Truman was on the wire and completely "floored" Mr. Donaldson by asking him to accept the high post of Postmaster General. It was a tradition that this office should be held by the National Chairman of the political party in power. This action by the President breaking a tradition and appointing a career man as Postmaster General was widely acclaimed all over the Nation and, possibly, received more favorable publicity that any other major appointment had received for a long time. A man who had literally come up through the ranks and who knew more about the Postal Service than possibly any other man was placed in charge of 'his greatest business institutions of the Government. He started in the service by helping his father in a 4th class office, was a city carrier in Illinois, Post office clerk and supervisor in Muskogee, Okla., a Post office inspector assigned to the Kansas City division, Deputy 2nd Assistant Postmaster General, Deputy 1st Assistant, Chief Inspector, 1st Assistant Postmaster General and finally the Postmaster General of the United States.

Competent Postmaster General

"The Department has in Mr. Donaldson, the most competent and efficient Postmaster General in the history of the service. In this connection I want to bring to your attention a matter which is of vital concern to you gentlemen and which you, in the final analysis as co-owners of the service must decide. The Postoffice Department is the only major branch of the Government which brings in revenue. While the Service was established as a truly Service institution it was deemed necessary to charge certain fees for the various services rendered. This revenue has partly defrayed the cost of the Service and the wisdom of this move has never been denied. However, it has proven to be a source of considerable embarrassment to the Department. There have always been critics who have claimed that the Postal Service should be self-supporting and the Postmaster General has been confronted with this situation many times in asking Congress for the necessary appropaiations to run the Department. Postmaster General Donaldson was confronted with t'e greatest deficit in the history of the Department. This was inevitable for various reasons. The Service has been constantly growing with necessary increasing costs. Express rates had risen sharply throwing a greatly increased volume of parcel post on the Service. Parcel post has always been carried at a great loss. Salaries of all personel were raised to meet the increased cost of living. Something had to be done. Critics would soon be saying that the affairs of the Dapartment had just as well be in the hands of a politican if a career man who should know all the answers could not keep out of the red. There was just one thing to do and Postmaster General Donaldson placed the solution squarely in the hands of Congress by presenting legislation which would increase postal rates commensurate with the cost of operations. First class letters are the only class of mail which has ever been self supporting. Second class (newspapers and periodicals) third class and parcel post are carried at a great loss. It has been rather amusing to note the complete about face by some of the most powerful critics of the Service. Those who have been clamoring that the Service should be self-supporting are now piously proclaiming that the Postal Service was established as a Service Institution and should be financed out of the general revenue as are other Departments of the Government. It is for you, the American people to decide. In your thinking you must determine whether the great Postal Service should be a service institution and therefore removed from the burden of completely supporting itself. If you decide it should pay its way then certainly funds or revenue must be provided and tnis can only be done by a readjustment of postal rates on classes of mail that is carried at a great loss.

"The Postal Service has kept pace with the growth of America. It is necessary to maintain and promote the high ideals it has established and every American citizen should take just pride in this great institution which has played such a vital part in making America truly great."

Abe Rosenthal Visits His Old Home Town, Friends In Can.

Abe Rosenthal, 1003 West Seventh street, Mrs. Rosenthal and their two daughters have recently returned from a trip through the east and into Canada, Mr. Rosenthal's former home. They stopped in Brantford, where Mr. Rosenthal called on an old friend, a newspaper man.

After Cordial greetings the man remarked that Mr. Rosenthal's calling at that time was quite a coincidence, because only a few days before, in the "Twenty-five Years Ago" column, they had carried the following article:

"Abe Rosenthal, Hamilton, took over the leadership of the Temple Theatre Orchestra here."

In London, Ontario, Mr. Rosenthal was interviewed by a representative of the Free Press, where a lengthy story was carried. It reads in part:

"You can believe Abe Rosenthal when he says a town of 50,000 is capable of supporting a 50-piece symphony and a male choir. He's from Missouri and he can show you proof of both statements.

"When Abe was 14 and a resident of Hamilton, Ontario, he decided to learn how to play the violin. Three years later he made his living by music alone and continued music as a career until 1930, when he moved away from his home town.

Played at London

"In the meantime, he had conducted orchestras in theatres, and yesterday, when he paid a visit to The London Free Press, he recalled playing a road show at the Grand Theatre here. He was just beginning theatre stints and the show was appropriately titled, 'Experience.'

"He studied in Hamilton and Toronto and became concertmaster of the Hamilton Symphony."

"But Missouri called, and he went to Sedalia in 1930 to be employed by the Milton Oil Company. At present he is division manager of that company.

"'Tell them Sedalia is 80 miles from Harry Truman's home town of Independence,' Mr. Rosenthal advised.

Symphony Organized

"Whether nearness to the piano-playing president's town influenced him or not, remains an unanswered question. But the fact does stand that the Hamilton man turned to music in his leisure hours and helped organize the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra 15 years ago.

"Three years ago he began the Sedalia Choral Club, which at present consists of 34 members, all male, drawn from the town and surrounding district.

"The symphony had just 15 members its first few years. Mr. Rosenthal believes an orchestra should be started with a small number of good players and built up as additional able instrumentalists appear.

Depends on Conductor

"The success of an amateur orchestra depends greatly on the conductor, Mr. Rosenthal pointed out. He's the one who knows if a bassoon player (probably the only one in the symphony) can play a certain passage well. If he can't, he shouldn't be allowed to do so. The passage should be transcribed for another instrument whose player can play the notes properly.

"Sedalia has two schools of music in nearby towns to draw upon for players. The students give the orchestra superior talent and in return receive valuable exxperience in ensemble work. A board of judges 'passes' on every applicant for orchestral membership.

Offer Concerts

"Four concerts a year are given at a total cost to a subscriber of $1.50. Guest artists appear with the orchestra at performances which are given in the high school auditorium with seating capacity of 1,000.

"The choral concert, presented each year, has free admission. It depends on contributions for financial support. Only performance with admission charge in Sedalia was for the Freedom Train.

"The orchestra stays within Sedalia borders, but the male choir travels to near-by towns to present concerts.

Visiting Brother

"Abe Rosenthal is relaxing these days, visiting his brother, J. Rosenthal, at 917 Waterloo street. But it doesn't keep him from looking ahead to 'hobby days,' and training his 12-year-old daughter, Willis Ann, to play the flute so that she can be a member of the symphony's woodwind section. Another daughter, Joann, plays the piano and is accompanist for the orchestra.

"Greater things in the musical future of Sedalia are seen by its citizens."

Polio Mounts In The Nation

By The Associated Press

Infantile paralysis mounted sharply in the nation this week, but there are signs the peak has passed in some hardest hit areas.

A state by state survey by the Associated Press showed some 1,400 new cases developed in the last four days. This boosted the 1949 total to date to approximately 9,400—more than half again as high as for the comparable period in 1948, second worst polio year on record.

A note of cheer, however, was heard from health officials in Texas, Arkansas and in Detroit. And the U. S. Public Health Service in Washington also reported some evidence of a slackening in the upward pace in the country as a whole. A health service spokesman said there was a chance the polio season might end earlier this year.

In Texas, which is experiencing its worst polio year with 1,218 cases through June 30, Dr. George Cox, state health officer, expressed the cautious view that the disease has leveled out somewhat.

Joe W. Savage of New York, executive director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis made a tour of the hardest hit spots in Texas. He called the fight against spread of the disease there "outstanding, splendidly coordinated."

Mr. Williams could not be located Saturday to ascertain the amount of his loss. It was reported the loss was partly covered by insurance.

Somber Note In Signing

MIAMI, Okla., Aug. 6—(AP)— A somber note was injected today in the signing of an Eagle-Picher Mining and Smelting Co. wage contract ending the month-long layoff of 825 tri-state district employes, work will resume Monday.

Hoping the company can remain operating without further break, President Elmer Isern cautioned it was "largely dependent upon continuous operation of the steel industry.

Bringing pressure to bear on their union—the AFL's United Cement, Lime and Gypsum workers—idled employes voted this week to return to work at a cut in pay. The firm and said its acceptance would mean reopening.

Eagle-Picher shut down in the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma mining field June 30 because officals said it couldn't operate profitably with the price of zinc so low. It is the area's largest producer.

Hoover will climax the special program here Wednesday with a speech on the subject, "think of the next generation." It will be broadcast nationally.

Officers of the Hoover institute and library say they have a few birthday surprises for "the chief." They're keeping it a secret.

Mathews Asks For Hearing

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6—(AP)—Former Detective Sergeant Joseph L. Mathews, whose application for reinstatement to the St. Louis police force was rejected yesterday, asked today for a public hearing on charges made against him.

He offered in an interview with a St. Louis newspaper to donate $1,000 to charity if any of the charges are proven true. Mathews accused a group of high-ranking police officers of spreading rumors about him.

Mathews' bid for reinstatement was turned down for the third time at a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday. The board did not make public any charges made against Mathews.

'Big Devil And Little Devil'

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and his son came back to the United States today after a mountain climbing jaunt that set off an official uproar inside Russia.

The Russian radio protested that Douglas was accompanied by "a gang of spies" as he and his 17-year-old son, William, Jr., hiked through the mountains of Iran on Russia's southern borders.

"They dubbed me as 'the big devil from the United States,'" Douglas said, "and my son as 'the little devil.'"

Commissioner In Ouster Case

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 6—(AP)—The Kansas supreme court today appointed a commissioner to serve in ouster proceedings pending against Vernon C. Axton, recently suspended mayor of Parsons, Kas.

J. G. Somers, Newton attorney and former district judge, was named commissioner to report findings of fact and conclusions of law to the high court for its final determination in the ouster move.

The appointment followed by only a few hours the entering of a blanket denial by Axton to charges of misconduct in office.

The charges were filed several weeks ago by Attorney General Harold R. Fatzer. They allege:

1. That Axton conspired to establish a slot machine syndicate in the southeast Kansas town.

2. That he reappointed Police Chief Frank A. Williams at Parsons with full knowledge that Williams had been extorting money from gamblers and bootleggers for protection of their illegal enterprises.

Todd Nears Mangrum In All-American Golf

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP)—Harry Todd of Dallas, Tex., knocking brilliant approaches for a seven-under-par 65, today barged within a stroke of yesterday's pacesetter, Lloyd Mangrum, as the first round of the $20,000 All-American professional tourney ended.

Todd, whose most recent bid to fame was the Ozark open he won last fall at Springfield, Mo., banged home eight birdies to finish two taps ahead of leading money-winner Sammy Sneed and Bill Nary of Los Angeles, who had 67s.

A throng of 7,000 wandered over gailey-bedecked Tam O'Shanter course as some 120 tardy starters rushed after the eight-under-par 64 Mangrum posted in yesterday's first installment of the opening round.

The actual third spot holders, ahead of Snead and Nary, were Chick Harbet and Jim Turnesa, who fashioned 66's yesterday.

Appling Plays 2,154th Game

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—Luke Appling established a major league record today by playing his 2,154th game as Chicago scored a 6-5 win over Washington after twelve innings.

The 40-year-old Appling, playing shortstop, was honored by his teammates last night for his long stint in baseball and also received a bonus check. He said he hoped he could play another year.

"It was just another ball game for me," Appling said after today's game in Griffith stadium.

Asked about reports that he was planning to retire, Appling commented:

"I have 'retired' six times in the last 19 years. As long as I can lift a glove, I'll play baseball."

Today's game was a 5-5 deadlock going into the twelfth inning. But doubles by Dave Philley and Cass Michaels snapped the tie. The victory was credited to Ed Klieman, who took over from Bob Kupzava in the seventh.

It might have been a big day for Appling but it was a poor one for Washington.

It was the Senators' sixth straight defeat and the 21st in 23 games.

Duck Stamp Money For Wildlife Refuges

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The new $2 duck stamp is going to help buy a number of new wildlife refuges—but not right away.

J. Clark Salyer II, refuge chief for the Fish and Wildlife Service says land prices are too high, at present, for the acquisition of new hideouts for waterfowl. Besides, there are more urgent things to be done.

"This is the worst time in history to buy land," Salyer told a reporter.

Salyer said first priority will go to further development of the more than 3,000,000 acres on 200 waterfowl refuges now in operation.

"By flooding and other improvements which we have not heretofore been able to afford, we will be able to increase our service on our present refuges by 25 per cent," he said.

States with no wildlife refuges whatever are Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, West Virginia, Kansas and Indiana. Others have few, if any, waterfowl refuges.

Elder Statesman Hoover Grows in Esteem

AP Newsfeatures Writer

The nation's only living ex-president arrives at the three-quarter century mark Thursday (Aug. 10), still a hard-working public official.

At the moment Herbert Hoover is enjoying a brief respite from his 18-hour-a-day job. His birthday finds Hoover in the surroundings he loves best: The campus of his alma mater, Leland Stanford university, with time for a little fishing with his children and grandchildren.

For some years he has declined personal interviews and has made public statements only concerning his major interests, notably the Republican party and the work of the non-partisan commission on organization of the executive branch of government, of which he is chairman.

In Good Health

He is in excellent health, in good spirits and enjoys life. The round-faced man who persists in looking like a thoughtful cherub despite great personal dignity has come a long way in popularity since the day in 1933 he left the White House in defeat in the midst of a great depression.

After that he dropped from political sight for a couple of years. For his New York headquarters he went to work on jobs that interested him: Trustee of a number of philanthropic organizations and directing work of scientific and service groups.

He fished a little and traveled a lot. Eventually he emerged from his political retirement to become a forthright and highly vocal critic of his successor's New Deal, particularly of government interference in private business.

An Important Speaker

He has been an important speaker at his party's national conventions. In Philadelphia last year, when the Republicans were certain they were about to return to power, the spontaneous demonstration for Hoover was almost as loud and prolonged as the carefully planned whoop-de-do staged for men who sought the party nomination.

His position as party elder statesman is strong. A visit with Hoover in his New York home—an apartment in the Waldorf Astoria—is prescribed conduct for party men aspiring to important position.

Herbert Hoover, however, never has been a political prototype. The only political office he ever sought or ran for was that of president. An engineer by training, practice and aptitude, Hoover made his mark by his administrative skill. Latterly he has used this in steering the work of the Hoover commission in studying the executive branch of government to reorganize its sprawling authority.

Interesting Sidelight

It is an interesting sidelight on the character of the nation's 30th president (or 31st, if you count Grover Cleveland twice) that there are few anecdotes concerning him—nothing to compare with the endless Coolidge and Roosevelt stories. The popular picture of the man is of a quiet, thoughtful person, long on formality and even shy in a poised way.

His life is in the Horatio Alger pattern. An orphan at 10, he was self-supporting at 15. Using his savings, Hoover was one of the first students to matriculate at Stanford. Graduating in 1895 with a degree in mining engineering, he went to work with a pick and shovel in the mines.

Established in Australia as an engineer, he married the girl he met at Stanford, Lou Henry. They went to China, where Hoover was chief engineer for the Chinese Department of Mines.

Exciting Years

Those were exciting years, punctuated by the Boxer rebellion. He returned to the United States to set up an international engineering practice with offices over the world. By 1914 he was a hugely successful man, directing railways, mining and allied industries which employed as many as 160,000 men.

On a trip to London in 1914 he organized the repatriation of thousands of Americans, caught like himself in World War I. He headed the administration of relief for thousands of Belgians and French.

President Woodrow Wilson appointed him food administrator when the United States entered the war and the word "Hooverize" went into the American language. After the war specialist Hoover was named to head the Allied administration of relief whose activities eventually brought supplies to 23 war-impoverished countries.

Secretary of Commerce

President Warren G. Harding appointed him secretary of commerce, a post he held for eight years. From there he went into the White House on a landslide of Republican votes during an unprecedented boom.

But the boom blew up. Always a hard worker, Hoover sometimes spent 20 hours a day at his desk in his efforts to halt the decline. Nevertheless, he caught the lion's share of blame.

As his popularity waned his round face became grimmer and his manner more remote. Even his closest associates found him cold.

Understands Nation's Problems

Hoover's real niche in the esteem of the people today, however, is his measured and thoughtful approach to the nation's problems.

He summed up his philosophy a few weeks ago in an address at Ohio Wesleyan university (where he was made a doctor of humanities, his 75th honorary degree):

"The new era of today seems united in the nation that they have just discovered real liberalism and that all previous eras are reactionary," Hoover said.

"Another modernistic school adds to this that life still may be a race but that each step must be dictated by some official or unofficial bureaucrat with stop-and-go signals.

"Whether these newest eras are right or wrong, 'security' which eliminates the risks of life, also kills the joy that lies in competition, in indivdual adventure, new understandings and new achievements. These contain moral and intellectual impulses more vital than even profits. For from them alone come national progress."

Traffic Cases On Saturday

Six speeding cases were in police court, Saturday morning, of which three were fined $10.00 and three others forfeited their cash bonds of $10.00 each. Fifteen overtime parking violators also failed to appear in court and their cash bonds of one-dollar each were ordered forfeited by Judge Harry O. Berry.

One person forfeited a $1.00 bond for not displaying a city license sticker, Mrs. Henrietta Berry, 706 East Fourth street, and another, Herman Geiser, 325 North grand forfeited a $2.50 bond for not having a city license sticker.

Those who were fined for speeding were Jack Keele, 1909 South Prospect avenue, Charles L. Ressel, 703 West Third street, and Miss Allene Hall, 911 Crescent Drive. Those who forfeited their bonds were Harry Moffett, La-Monte, J. S. Noel, Sikeston, and Leland Phillips of Warrensburg.

Several others who received summons tickets Friday night are to appear at police headquarters Monday morning.

Return Home From Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. John Allen and Miss Verona Neumeyer, all of Smithton, and Miss Ann Sawford, of Sedalia, returned home Wednesday from a vacation trip of ten days which took them to Colorado Springs, Garden of the Gods, North Cheyenne Canon Drive, Pike's Peak region which goes to Helen Hunt Fall, South Cheyenne Canon which goes between towering cliffs to Seven Falls, Cheyenne Mountain to Will Rogers Shrine and the Williams Canon to the Cave of the Winds. They also visisted Glencove Inn, at the edge of Timberline, on Pike's Peak highway, made by a sightseeing bus going up and by log road coming down.

In Colorado Springs they visited the Van Buggle Art Pottery, Grand Lake where they spent two days and two nights at Green Mountain Ranch in the mountains. They then went to Rocky Mountain National Park, the Trail Ridge Road where they visited the Trail Ridge Museum and Post Office at Fall River Pass and from there they went to Estes Park and to the Big Thompson canyon. Gold Star Mother Is Held In Jail

Gets VA Support In Dispute Over Wartime Insurance

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 6—(AP)—A Utah Gold Star mother, held in jail for her stand on her son's wartime insurance benefits, has the backing of the Veterans' administration in her fight.

Mrs. Nettie W. Capps, 57, has been held in the Salt Lake county jail since Wednesday for refusing to obey a court order to transfer monthly payments to her son's remarried widow and the latter's three small children.

The VA announced in Washington it has stopped insurance benefit payments to Mrs. Capps from the policy left by her son, Jacob L. Capps, who was killed in the battle of the bulge in World War II. The VA said it acted on instructions from Mrs. Capp.

To Obey Mother

A spokesman said the VA holds Mrs. Capp alone is entitled to the payments and will follow her wishes before mailing any more checks.

When the $10,000 policy was issued, Mrs. Maurine Ingram Capps was named beneficiary. When the couple separated Capps changed the policy, naming his mother as beneficiary and his three children contingent recipients. His wife has since twice remarried.

A district court in Salt Lake City ruled that the dead man's mother be designated trustee of the funds for the benefit of the children, rather than continue as beneficiary. Mrs. Capps refused to accept that assignment. The First Security Trust Company of Utah was designated trustee.

Ordered To Endorse Checks

District Judge Ray Van Cott, Jr., ordered Mrs. Capps to accept the $53 monthly checks from the VA, endorse them and turn them over to a designated trustee. She refused, and the 30-day jail sentence resulted.

Mrs. Capps said she loves her grandchildren "but I will not give in because I know those kiddies won't get the full amount of money."

She added "I am going to comply with my son's wishes even if it means I sit here in jail."

The matronly grandmother said Judge Van Cott "made me take an oath that I would not retract the statements made in a letter to the Veterans administration." This letter asked that accumulated back payments totaling $1,200 be forwarded to her.

She said she later changed her mind and asked the VA to withhold the payments.

Meanwhile the offices of Gov. J. Bracken Lee and Mayor Earl J. Glade both were deluged with telegrams from persons in many states asking that Mrs. Capps be released.

A typical wire read "there's a nigger in the woodpile and it ain't Mrs. Capps. Use your power to clean up the dirt."

Lee is absent from the state attending the Chicago Railroad Fair. Glade said the matter is out of his jurisdiction.

INVADING ENGLAND—A fierce-looking Viking assumes the pose of his ancestors when they invaded England 1500 years ago. He stands at the prow of a replica of the original craft that will bring him and his companions from Copenhagen to invade English shores. The trip, planned by British and Danish travel associations, will commemorate the original landing. The modern Vikings will land on the beaches of Kent, then sail their craft up the Thames to London.

make the best contestants on a geographic basis.

"It isn't that they are any more intelligent or better informed," remarked Goodson. "They are simply more friendly and homey-talking.

"The New Englander is often too laconic—too brief in his answers. On the other hand the New Yorker tends to be over aggressive."

Who makes the ideal contestant?

"Oh, I'd say it would be a young man from Fort Worth, Tex., studying to be a doctor and married to a girl who was working to help him get his degree," said Goodson.

"It would help if the wife had just had a baby," laughed Todman. "The audience loves young fathers."

Things Are Not as Tough As They Used to Be

After a 10-day crossing of the North Sea, a band of 53 Danes sailed against mighty Britain to commemorate the 1500th anniversary of their forefathers' invasion of England. But times have changed. As these modern Saxons rowed their way to shore at Ramsgate in their dragon-prowed Viking craft, they were greeted, by thousands of flag waving Britishers on hand to welcome them. When the spear-carrying "conquerors" stormed ashore in their mock attack, amid the cheering "vanquished" people, they were escorted to waiting busses for further "conquests."

NEW YORK—(AP)—One lady in the radio studio audience waved some lingerie over her head. Another held up a live squawking chicken.

They were trying to attract the attention of an announcer selecting contestants from the audience to appear on a quick program.

"But that isn't the way to get on a quiz show," agreed Mark Goodson and Bill Todman. "We aren't looking for screwballs."

These two young men — both under 40—are authorities on how to be chosen to appear on the radio giveaways. They've picked thousands of contestants for the five network quiz shows they produce—Stop the Music, Winner Take All, Hit the Jackpot, Beat the Clock, and Spin to Win.

What do they look for?

"We're not looking for the greatest brains in the studio," said Todman. "We're looking for nice people the audience will like."

Avoid Those Off Balance

"Yes," said Goodson. "We want to avoid people who are off balance. There is a very thing line between the pleasant extravert and the real screwball, who may do anything once he gets on the air."

The art in getting selected as a contestant lies in attracting the announcer's eye without scaring him away by being too brash or anxious.

"A bald man is more likely to be picked, for example, than a man with hair," said Goodson. But if he is wearing a necktie that flashes off and on like an electric sign, we don't want him. He's trying too hard."

White Gloves Help

Women wearing white gloves and a large hat also are likely to be chosen merely because they stand out to the announcer as he passes through the audience in the pre-program warmup period looking for contestants. But a woman wearing flashy jewelry is automatically rejected.

"People don't like to see anyone win money who already looks as if he had more than he needed," explained Goodson.

The producers make every attempt to keep from putting on "semi-pros"—men or women with little to do who go from studio to studio trying to get on as many programs as possible. They also turn down anyone who, when asked why he wants to be a contestant, replies "to win a prize."

"He may be completely honest," said Goodson, "but the listeners often get the impression such a person is too selfish."

Over the years the producers have found that housewives often make better contestants than college teachers.

Housewife Relaxes

"The housewife doesn't feel she has to prove she's smart, so she is more relaxed," said Todman.

They also have learned that men or women from the south or southwestern part of America

FRECKLED NOBILITY—Herbert Harris, 11, takes a magnified look at Sally Brady, 9, after they were chosen King and Queen of Freckles at the Chicago Railroad Fair. The judges had a tough job trying to decide between Herbert and two other boys, until Herbert took off his shirt. Then he won with freckles to spare.

SHE HAS A NAME FOR IT—"I call it sculpture," says artist Jeannette Sherman, 24, of Detroit, as she explains to befuddled visitors to the Modern Art Exposition in Paris the symbolism of her decorative work. She explains, "It has in it the feeling of the sky, the sea, the mountains," and believes it contains all the forms used in sculpture.

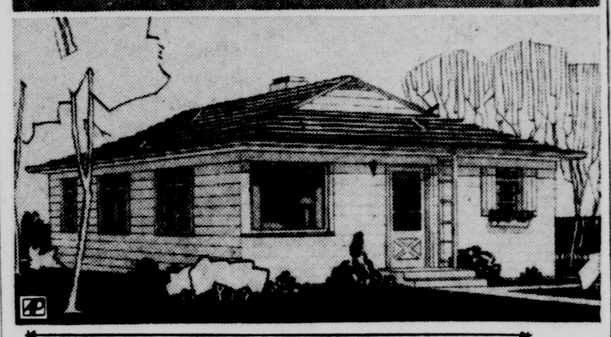
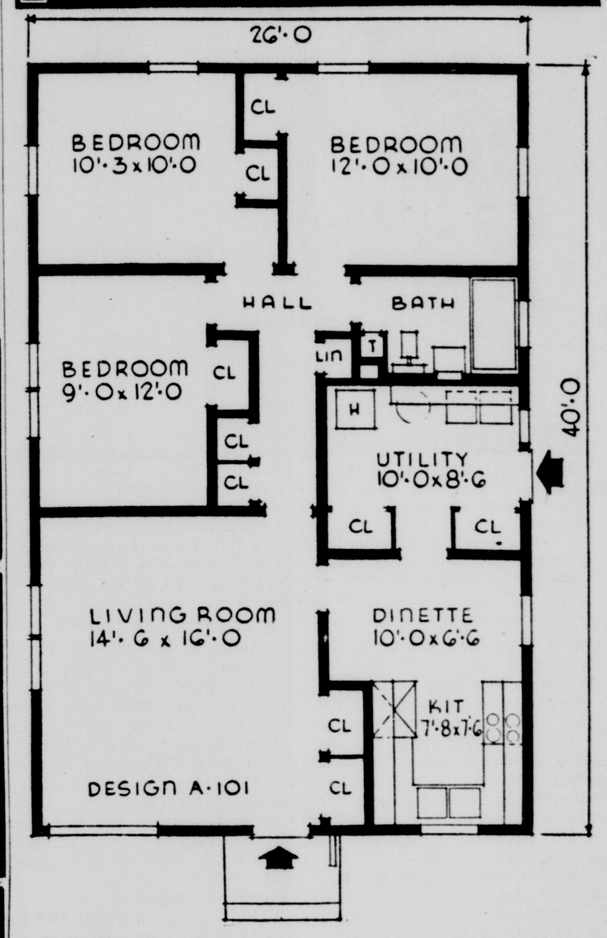
HOMES FOR AMERICANS





For a narrow lot, this house is designed without a basement. Its utility room accommodates laundry and heating equipment. This is plan A-101 by the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. It covers an area of 1,040 square feet and has a content of 12,480 cubic feet. Its low rectangular walls make the house adaptable to the use of concrete blocks or frame construction with wide siding. The designers suggest a roof of asphalt shingles.

Gets Return of Billfold That Was Not Even Missed

When people lose their billfolds they usually go around in circles trying to find them, but not with Mrs. B. S. Hutchinson, route 3, Sedalia. She even argued that she didn't lose hers.

The telephone rang at the Hutchinson home Wednesday afternoon and some member of the family was rather bewildered when the voice at the other end of the line said they had found Mrs. Hutchinson's billfold. She had not mentioned losing her billfold and consequently a lot of questions were asked the party who had called, questions he thought to be rather odd when he was trying to return a lost billfold. "What was in the billfold" and such things. If it had been the other way around and he was trying to claim it that would have been different, but trying to identify a billfold he wanted to give back was funny. Finally he left a telephone number and address and let it go at that.

When the person in the Hutchinson home who had done the talking tried to tell Mrs. Hutchinson she had lost her billfold she argued that she hadn't. And when they told her it was found on Kentuky avenue she said she hadn't been on Kentucky avenue, and there she was right.

Found by Visitor

Mrs. Hutchinson, a nurse at Woodland hosptal, was in a taxi going from work to her home and evidently dropped the billfold out of her purse. A young man, Norman Silberstein, who had just arrived in Sedalia from Columbia and who took the same taxi to the home of his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Silberstein, 1411 South Kentucky avenue, where he will spend a month's vacation, kicked the billfold out of the taxi and it fell on the ground. Being bright red he noticed it at once and picked it up. When he got in the house he began looking for some identification and found a telephone bill, which gave him the name, address and telephone number.

When Mrs. Hutchinson finally looked in her purse, certain she had not lost her billfold, she found it was gone, and went immediately to the telephone to call the honest young man. "That was really something," she said, "when some one calls you about returning your billfold even before you know you've lost it." Mrs. Hutchinson was very grateful for the thoughtfulness of Mr. Silberstein and was happy to have her billfold back. It contained a $55.00 bill, some change, a keepsake silver dollar, her keys and some papers.

Mr. Silberstein, whose home was originally in St. Louis, and who is a student at the University of Missouri, Columbia, came to Sedalia to spend the vacation between the summer and fall semesters with his brother. He is a nephew of Vic Eisenstein, 900 West Fifth street. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Silberstein have resided in Sedalia a little more than two years.

Early Filing Of Claims Is Necessary

Losses of Benefits In Social Security Might Ensue

Most workers seem to overlook the protection they have under the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program for their families in case they should die, according to Scott Webber, manager of the Sedalia Social Security office.

That this family insurance protection is substantial, as compared with the cost, is demonstrated by the widows' claims, based on the wage records of their deceased husbands, which cross Mr. Webber's desk every day. This protection for survivors is in addition to retirement benefits if the worker lives to age 65.

Webber says that he has just reviewed a claim under which the widow will receive monthly checks amounting to $78.63 for herself and two children over a long period of years. The total payments will amount to $20,781 over a period of 37 years, assuming the widow does not remarry and that she lives to age 77, which is the customary life expectancy of women who reach age 65. The total amount of survivors insurance payments in this claim is made up of the following:

Monthly payments of $22.46 to the eldest child, age 2 years, until age 18 or for 189 months—$4,244.94;

Monthly payments of $22.47 to the youngest child, age 8 months, until age 18 or for 208 months—$4,673.76;

Monthly payments of $33.70 to the widow until September, 1867, when the youngest child reaches age 18, or for 208 months—$7,009.60;

When the youngest child is 18, all payments stop, for the law assumes that a woman and grown children can support themselves; however, when the widow reaches age 65, her monthly payment of $33.70 begins again, and running out her life expectancy of 144 months, this means an additional $4,852.80.

Based on Wages

Tsese insurance benefits are based on the husband's total wages from January 1, 1937, until his death May 1, 1949, of $36,393.18. Thus, the family will receive survivors insurance payments totalig $20,781, at a premium cost of only $363.93 (1% of the husband's wages) with his employer having paid an equal amount. This is rather substantial protection in relation to the cost plus retirement protection if the worker attains age 65.

While $78.63 a month will not provide for full support of a family of three, in this case, with their modest home, some savings and private life insurance, the mother can rear the children in their home, which is what the Social Security Act was intended to accomplish.

Webber said that he would like again to emphasize that these benefits must be claimed—they are not paid automatically. The necessity for prompt filing of a claim is evidenced by another case where a retired worker lost over $3,000 in monthly payments because he waited until May, 1949, to file a claim, whereas he should have filed upon retirement in September, 1941. He lost 88 monthly payments of $36.13 since the law permits retroactive payments for only three months before the month of filing. His wife also lost 35 monthly payments of $18.07, a total of $632.45 because she also delayed filing her claim until May, 1949, whereas she could have claimed benefits from March, 1946, when she reached age 65. This worker explained that he did not file sooner because until recently he did not need the money and did not want to accept charity. As has been frequently pointed out in the press, these are insurance benefits paid as a right because "premiums" in the form of Social Security taxes were paid by worker and employer.

Nationalities Stores Planned For Moscow

MOSCOW —(AP)— Moscow is about to open a new group of restaurants and stores. They will represent various Soviet nationalities. "Ogonek," the Soviet picture magazine, recently carried drawings of the store and the restaurant of one of these nationalities—the Armenians. It appears from these drawings that great care is being taken to see that they are designed so as to typify the art and architecture of Armenia.

It is estimated that half of U. S. traffic moves on 300,000 miles of city streets.

Style Guide for today's woman

By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

My column this week is not about style, although it does have a slight relation. For several years, some of the merchants have wanted a shopping night downtown other than Saturday night. They felt so many customers, particularly in the surrounding communities would prefer another evening. Many people have only the evening to shop in and if they have an opportunity to go on a trip or do anything on Saturday night special it is impossible for them to do it, or sometimes they make a hurried shopping tour and end up with the wrong selection. Another thing, the stocks are replenished during the week for Saturday shopping and by Saturday evening many of the choice selections are gone. A group of us have decided to be open on Thursdays from nine until nine and on Saturday to close at six o'clock.

We are going to do this for a trial period and in the meantime we hope the public will make up our minds definitely what they would really prefer. This last Thursday night was our first night open, and although we were extremely busy in our shop, it seemed that our customers shopped in a more carefree manner and weren't in a rush to get someplace at an appointed hour. We were able to chat with them and get better acquainted with them so they would feel at home in our shop.

Through this column I feel closer to so many more people and I would like for you to help us make up our minds which is the best night. We want to do what is convenient for you—so drop us a note or call us 631 or the Chamber of Commerce 895, we'll surely appreciate it—next week there'll be some good news about suits.

Pleats, Plaid And Plain, Register for Class

By Epsie Kinard
NEA Fashion Editor

Pleats educated to stay creased by the baking-at-high-temperature processes will spread their charms over classrooms and campusses at no extra cost for upkeep. A promise of this good behavior for six months to skirts with knife pleats, box pleats or accordion pleats — is a written guarantee of California designer Stephanie Koret.

Smart new blouse style that can be worn out like a middy or in like a shirt is Koret's new torso-fitting wool jersey. Striped spirally like a barber's pole in two-toned colors, such blouses were designed to be the gay upper half of pleated skirt fashions. Typical styling of those is seen in the solid color wool jersey skirt, knife-pleated to look as straight as a plumb line when static, as fluted as an unfurled fan when it goes into action.

A Tall Story—About Tall Girls and Short Beds

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 — (AP) — Don't be too sorry for poor Cousin Lucy just because she happens to be six feet tall. Maybe she likes it that way.

Explains six foot two Catherine Bedell, New York telephone operator and member of the Stratoliner club:

"You're all by yourself up there—and it's nice. When I'm with our crowd I'm really annoyed because I can't see over their heads. A tall girl looks better in her clothes too—when she can get them. A lot of us make our own."

It isn't any harder for a tall gal to get a job, she asserts, and a lot of medium-sized men like to go out with a tall girl.

"How do we like it? Oh, we think it's fine. Still, we do like tall men."

Question six foot women and nine out of any ten probably will tell you they like it that way. And you will note, too, that most of them wear high heels.

A "Tall" Club

And where do you find ten six-foot women?

There were 200 men and women as tall or taller at a convention just held here.

There were delegates from 24 clubs the country over, such as the Kansas City Skyliners, Pittsburgh Star Dusters and a lot of others banded in the American Affiliation of Tall clubs. Men members must be six feet two; women can get by at five feet ten.

All of the elongated fraternity were much concerned with the problems as well as the advantages of their height.

"Being tall is all right, but it has a lot of complications," says Chester Aronson, six-foot-four president of the New York Stratoliners and chairman of the convention.

Hard To Find Clothes

"Tall people can't find ready made clothes or shoes or stockings to fit in many places. They can't stand up straight in a lot of buses or sit up straight in a lot of cars. Most hotel beds are too short for them and so are railway berths. And theater seats are so close to the row in front that there isn't room for us.

"Still, things are better than they used to be. But there is a lot of room for improvement. From where we stand it looks as thought the American people are growing taller. Statistics? Well U. S. Army statistics show that the average G.I. was an inch and a half taller than his dad. And we know there are lots of six-footers who don't belong to our clubs and thousands of others who are not quite high enough to get in, but are still quite tall."

Most of the convention's efforts to get a better deal for six footers consist in making their plight known to manufacturers and public services.

More Consideration

The tip toppers, higher-ups, skyscrapers, etc. say that since the clubs have worked for a better deal for six-footers, many more city shops have started clothing departments for tall people; women find it easier to find size 12 stockings and men to get size 15 shoes.

They claim more theaters have pushback seats which give more leg space and that more automobiles have greater head room. But they consider that is "just getting the door open a crack."

What they hope for is much more of the same. And many more hotel beds six and a half feet long before they get too old to travel. The girls would like to see more men remember that tall girls also like to have their cigarettes lighted and taxi doors opened for them. They say too many unconsciously let a tall girl shift for herself.

Cardinals Lose 3-1 To Giants, Only Six Hits

Waste Chance To Extend League Lead Over Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals were balked in their efforts to gain a full game on the Brooklyn Dodgers in the close National league race when they dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the New York Giants in the majors' only night game.

The Dodgers had lost, 5 to 2, to Cincinnati in a day contest, but remained one-half game behind the pace-setting Cards when the Giants won.

Three Balks

Adrain Zabala won his second straight game since returning from Mexican exile despite three balks. In the first inning a balk saved him two runs. After Nippy Jones had lined a pitch into the left field seats at Sportsmans park for an apparent home run with a man on base, the umpires ruled the Giant lefthander had balked before the delivery and the blast didn't count. It would have put the Cards ahead, 2-1.

Zabala balked again in the sixth with Jones once more at bat and in the eighth after Tommy Glaviano had singled to start the inning.

Out At Plate

Glaviano scored on a single by Red Schoendienst, after two were out Schoendienst was thrown out at the plate a moment later, trying to score on Stan Musial's double.

Max Lanier was charged with his third loss for the Cardinals. St. Louis still leads Brooklyn by a half game.

Auto Racing Stars Enter Fair Races

Lead-Footed Luptow Enters His Black Panther Offenhauser

Hailed as the surprise star of 1949 dirt speedway auto racing, lead-footed Frankie Luptow, Tampa, Fla., has entered his new Black Panther Offenhauser car in the Missouri State Fair big car speed championships on Sunday, August 21 and Saturday, the 27th. Luptow and his powerful Offy have been on top of the national championship point standing since February. He expects to increase his points for 1949 in the Missouri events.

New Promoters Here

Auto racing, this year, is promoted by two newcomers to the Missouri Fair, Al Sweeney and Gaylord White of Chicago, Ill., who are known to sign the best drivers that can be obtained for dirt track events. Both men in discussing the various racing events for the two days of activity said they promise faster, better and more daring drivers to be entered than at any previous racing program.

Deb Snyder, better known to racing enthusiasts as "Dapper Deb," is a noted driver of the dirt track contest. Hailing from Kent, Ohio, he has been a steady threat to Luptow's point system this season. Snyder is not to be confused with a dozen or more other racing drivers—he being, according to State Fair officials, the best of the lot.

To Use New Racing Rules

The racing this year is the first to be conducted under the banner of National Speedways, far-flung major league motor speed circuit.

The speedway-type racing will mark the first time that Indianapolis speedway 500-mile race rules governing engines have been in effect on the State Fair track, according to Roy S. Kemper, secretary of the fair.

Sweeney, White and Kemper in discussing the events, declare that racing records made on the track are expected to be shattered. The record of the late Gus Schrader will be at stake in both time trials and other racing events.

Many new speedway stars will be seen here this season, those whose names have appeared in the public press many times.

Junior Blues Lead League

Two games were played in the Boys' League last week, with the Junior Blues moving into first place in the league after winning one game while the Junior Athletics won one and lost one, to trail half a game.

On Monday, the Athletics shut out the First Baptist team, 9 to 0, with Williams the winning hurler and Wickliffe the loser. The Athletics had three homers, by Mines, Moore and Dey.

On Wednesday, the Athletics were defeated 10 to 13 by the Blues. Walters started for the losers, but was relieved by Fall, who was charged with the loss. Trent was the winner.

Next Wednesday the Athletics and Blues will play the final game of the season. A proposed seven-game play-off for these two teams is now under discussion.

Jim Blair Loses In Houston 'J C'

HOUSTON, Tex. Aug. 6—(AP)—Two young golfers who may be college roommates this fall meet here tomorrow in the championship match of the fourth annual National Jaycee Junior tournament

They are short, muscular Gene Littler, San Diego, Calif., the defending champion, and slender Bud Holscher, Santa Monica, Cal., last year's Hearst National Junior titlist.

Play in Heavy Rain

Both splashed through a heavy rain this afternoon to score semi-final victories. Littler turned back Don Addington, Houston, 3 and 1, while Holscher won from another Californian, Bill Casper, Chula Vista, 2 and 1.

All four finished with par-plus scores on the 6012 yard, par 71 Houston Country Club course. Littler was three over, Addington six, Holscher nine and Casper 10. Three and four putt holes were numerous for the water soaked greens.

In morning quarter final matches Littler took a 7 to 5 decision from Bob Atkinson, Portland, Ore. while Holscher turned back Jim Blair, Jefferson City, Mo., 2 up.

Addington won 1-up from Jack Weitzel, Reading, Pa., and Caster defeated Hobart Jameson, Altus, Okla., 6 and 5.

Hambletonian Entries To Be At State Fair

$18,000 Race Has All But One Of Major 3-Year-Olds

Harness racing enthusiasts visiting the State Fair at Sedalia during the Grand Circuit period of competition, August 22-27, will see a virtual carbon copy of the $67,000 Hambletonian, richest sulky classic of the year, which is to be raced at Goshen, N. Y., August 10.

All but one of the major candidates for the traditional classic for three-year-old trotters are entered at Sedalia in the Trotting Club's three-year-old event Thursday, August 25, valued at $18,000.

Seven Out of Eight Here

Trotting honors among the three-year-olds this year will definitely be shared by four colts and four fillies and seven of the eight will compete in the Sedalia race, August 25.

Topping the list is the fleet Bangaway, co-favorite for the Goshen race, owned by C. M. Saunders of Toledo, O. On the 1949 Grand Circuit the fast-stepping colt has annexed six heat wins and has to his credit victories in the $10,000 Historic-Dickerson Cup at Goshen, the $5,000 Adirondack, and the $10,000 Saratoga, both at Saratoga raceway.

Tough Competitor

A. L. Derby's Martha Doyle, from Wichita, Kans., is also on the list. She won the $15,000 Coaching Club Trotting Oakes at Goshen and was second to Bangaway in the Saratoga. At this point she is considered Bangaway's toughest competitor for midwestern honors.

The competent team of Stotch Pal and Atomic Maid, both from the Hayes Rair Acre stable of DuQuoin, Ill., will also seen action in the rich trot at Sedalia. Scotch Pal won the $5,000 Hambletonian Preview Trot at Old Orchard Beach, Me., two weeks ago, while Atomic Maid took one heat of the $6,000 Matron Stake at Fairmount Park earlier this year. The eventual winner of that race, O. L. Mear's Guy Ambassador, is the only major Hambletonian candidate not scheduled to race in the "repeat" contest in Missouri.

Scott Higgins Shows a Winner

"Easter Night," 5-year-old stallion, owned and ridden by Scott Higgins of La Monte, was the first place winner in the five-gaited stake in the North Kansas City horse show the past week. The show was sponsored by the Clay County Bit and Spur Club at the high school stadium.

"Easter Night" has made an excellent record this season and was the winner of the Combination Championship stake at Slater, recently.

In the class at the North Kansas City Show which was won by Easter Night, two other horses well known to show followers of Sedalia placed two and three. "Trail Blazer," owned by Elliott and Johnson of Trenton was second, and "My Winning Ways," owned by Ralph Knight, Kansas City motor car dealer, was third.

"Blondie," owned by Mr Hawkins, Buffalo, Mo., and ridden by Jimmy Higgins, son of Scott Higgins, placed second in the Pleasure Horse class.

In the five-gaited junior stake, "Vanity Fair," another Higgins entry, was fourth. "Vanity Fair," a three-year-old, was ridden by Mr. Higgins.

Chiefs Play At Columbia Tonite

The Sedalia Chiefs will journey to Columbia tonight for a league game with the Ban Johnson team of that city. The team will leave Cal Rodgers station at 5:30 o'clock with game time scheduled for 8:00 o'clock.

The Chiefs are currently in second place in the Central Missouri Ban Johnson league, one-half game behind Moberly. The league leaders have played and won one more game than the local aggregation.

Friday night, the Sedalia All-Stars defeated the Chiefs 5 to 2, when Knob Noster, the scheduled team, failed to arrive with a full squad. The All-Stars were composed of players from the Sedalia Athletics, Sedalia Blues, Knob Noster and Marshall.

The Chiefs used for the first time five players recently acquired from the Junior Legion—Bill Brown, Bob Ray, Bill Holst, Dale Ruffin and Ralph Walker.

Brown and Ray pitched for the Chiefs, with White, Barbour, and Whitworth catching. Patton and Barnes worked the hill for the All-Star and Sullivan caught.

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

THRILL seeking fans will have a full program—come August 21-28, the dates of the Missouri State Fair. Roy Kemper, secretary of the fair, sometime ago began announcing from time to time the weekly program. It includes everything from thrills to the horse show.

The week opens on Sunday the 21st with an afternoon packed with a program of thrilling automobile races. Some of the best known drivers in the country will compete in the various speed events. Sunday night opens the horse show which will bring to Missouri some of the finest bred show horses in the country. Horse shows will be held every night up to Saturday.

Starting Monday afternoon the Grand Circuit horse racing program, for five afternoons, will get underway. Horses which will race in the famous Hambletonian this week will be entered in the daily events to be here.

On Saturday another day of automobile racing will be presented:

Sunday, Joe Chitwood, the "Wild Indian," brings his thrill show of World Champion auto and motorcycle daredevils. These famous thrill drivers will present one of the country's best known thrill shows to Missourians for the first time.

Chitwood hardly needs an introduction, having been publicized in the newspapers throughout the world in his racing career at Indianapolis Speedway, as well as showing in his thrill shows in practically every large city in the country.

All in all it's going to be a big time at the fair.

JACK Cooney, Friday night, got a tryout at St. Joseph, Mo. where a St. Louis Cardinal scout was on hand to give him the "once-over" as to his baseball playing. Cooney plays first base and does some pitching and I imagine the scout had him do a little work at both.

The tryout was during the warmup period before the Joplin and St. Joseph ball game in the Western Association.

Cooney plans on attending Westminster College at Fulton, this fall, having been awarded a scholarship for this college.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Cooney and formerly resided in Sedalia. While here he played baseball with the Post 16, American Legion Junior baseball team.

The two teams will meet again on the Houstonia diamond, Wednesday night at 8:00 o'clock, for a seven-inning game.

Dodgers Drop 5 To 2 At Cincinnati

Three Errors By 3rd Baseman During 5-Run 8th Inning

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds scored five runs in the eighth inning today with the aid of three errors by third baseman Billy Cox to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-2.

Johnny Wyrostek homered to start the eighth for the Reds and Cox then came up with a siege of butter fingers.

Cox fumbled Jimmy Bloodworth's grounder. The Dodger third sacker then booted Herm Wehmeier's sacrifice bunt. Harry Walker beat out a bunt to Cox to load the bases.

Palica Relieves Branca

Erv Palica relieved Ralph Branca at this point and Lloyd Merriman greeted him with a two-run single to put the Reds in front, 3-2.

Grady Hatton bunted and Palica tossed to third but Cox dropped the ball for his third error and the bases again were loaded. Palica disposed of the next two batters but Ted Kluezewski followed with a two run single to left. Wyrostek, up for the second time, flied out to end the inning.

The Dodgers scored an unearned run in the third and added another in the eighth on Gene Hermanski's eighth home run of the season.

Branca Loser

Branca had the Reds blanked on three hits until the eighth. The big right-hander was charged with the loss, his fourth against 12 victories.

Wemeier held the Dodgers to four hits in posting his seventh victory and fifth straight. The loss snapped a six game Brooklyn winning streak. Cox' three errors tied the National league record for most errors in an inning by a third baseman established by Phil Geier of Boston and Lew Riggs of Brooklyn.

Houstonia Wins A 12-11 Slugfest

The Houstonia Merchants took a free-hitting slugfest, 12 to 11, from the Higginsville Merchants, Thursday night, at Houstonia. Messer and Sevier were on the mound for the winners, giving up nine hits, while Summers allowed 15 for the losers.

Houstonia scored four runs in the first inning, but Higginsville bounced back with six in the second on four hits and three errors. Higginsville led from that point until the seventh inning, 11-10.

Houstonia scored two runs in the last of the seventh to win. Pummill singled, Thomas reached first on a fielders' choice, with Pummill forced at second. Woods flied out, Shields singled, Thomas going home on the play for the first score. Sevier doubled, with Shields going to third, and then Tuck, the catcher, singled home the winning run.

The Houstonia Merchants will play Marshall at Houstonia, Tuesday for their final league game of this season.

Yanks Stage A Home Run Hitting Show

Blast Browns 9-8; Indians Bow 2-0 To The Athletics

By Ralph Roden

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The New York Yankees staged one of their greatest home run hitting displays since their pennant winning years of 1936-39 today, blasting out six home runs to edge the St. Louis Browns, 9-8.

Trailing all the way, the Yanks won in the ninth inning when with one out, Tommy Henrich and Joe DiMaggio belted successive home runs. DiMaggio's blow was second of the game and tenth of the season. Henrich's blast was his 20th. The other Yank homers belonged to little Phil Rizzuto who hit two and squat Yogi Berra. The Browns piled up an early 8-3 lead, thanks to home runs by Paul Lehner, Sherm Lollar and Gerry Priddy.

Falls Short of Record

The nine home runs fell one short of tying the major league record for most home runs hit in a single game by two clubs.

Lefty Joe Page, fourth Yankee pitcher, received credit for the victory his tenth. Cliff Fannin, who made only one pitch, DiMaggio's second home,. was the loser.

The triumph also increased the Yanks' American league margin to four games over the Cleveland Indians The Indians bowed, 2-0, to the Athletics in Philadelphia.

Dick Fowler scattered eight hits in out-pitching the Indians' Bob Lemon The A's picked up a run in the second when Wally Moses singled home Mike Guerra from second. Guerra tripled home Nelson Fox with the final run in the seventh.

Lefty Mel Parnell became the first major league pitcher to win 16 games as he pitched the red hot Boston Red Sox to a 3-0 triumpeh over the Detroit Tigers. The victory was Boston's seventh straight and their second consecutive shutout over the Tigers.

Parnell Checks Tigers

Parnell checked the Tigers on five hits, walked only one and fanned three. Dom DiMaggio collected two of the Sox' nine hits to stretch his consecutive game hitting streak to 33.

Ted Williams tripled and Vern Stephens doubled for Boston's first run in the opening inning. Johnny Pesky and Bobby Doerr doubled for another run in the sixth and Al Zarilla doubled home Billy Goodman with the final marked in the eighth.

The Chicago White Sox edged the Washington Senators, 6-5, in a 12-inning battle at Washington. Doubles by Dave Philley and Cass Michaels were the deciding blows.

Shortstop Luke Appling of the White Sox played his 2,154th game at that post to break the previous major league record held by Rabbit Maranville.

Reds Upset Dodgers

The Cincinnati Reds upset the National league's pennant contending Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-2. The Reds scored all of their runs in the eighth inning with the aid of three errors by Dodger third sacker Billy Cox.

Herm Wehmeier went all the way for the Reds and allowed the Dodgers four hits in posting his seventh victory and fifth straight.

The Philadelphia Phillies edged the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3, Dick Sisler winning the game in the ninth inning with a pinch-hit single.

Del Ennis and Andy Seminick homered for the Phils and Dino Restelli and Ralph Kiner for the Pirates. Kiner's blow was his 28th of the season.

The Chicago Cubs trounced the Boston Braves, 10-4, to extend Boston's losting streak to five games. Hank Sauer socked his 24th homer and Andy Pafko his 14th for the Cubs.

Walt Dubiel had the Braves blanked on one hit going into the ninth when with two out the Braves wrapped out six straight singles good for four runs.

The league-leading St. Louis Cardinals entertained the New Giants in the major's lone night game.

Merchants Down Warrensburg, 6-1

The Sedalia Merchants softball team downed the Warrensburg Lions, 6 to 1, in a game played on the Warrensburg diamond, Friday night.

Norman Thompson pitched a one-hitter for Sedalia, and was robbed of his no-hitter when MacHoffie, Warrensburg pitcher, beat out a bunt for the only hit of the game. Thompson's wildness kept him from a shutout, however, as he walked three men. He fanned eight batters.

Sedalia jumped to a three-run lead in the fourth on a home run by Thompson with one man on, and Simon made the score 3 to 0 with another round-tripper.

Warrensburg got their lone run in the fifth on a bunt, two walks, and a run scoring on a double play. Richards, Merchants center fielder made a neat running catch to retire the side in that inning and prevent further damage.

Simon led the hitters with two for three, with Carver getting two for four.

The score by innings:

Satchel Paige Depends On Fast Ball In Pinch

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6—(AP)—Ageless Satchel Paige, the Cleveland Indians' colorful relief hurler, says there's only one pitch to use when you are in a jam—the fast ball.

Although the ancient Negro has a variety of deliveries ranging from the bat dodger to the hesitation pitch, he calls on just one when the chips are down.

Even if he were 20 years younger, it would still be the fast ball in the clutch for Satch.

The All-Stars Grid Game On Friday Night

Bud Wilkinson To Use Split "T" And Regular "T" Plays

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 — (AP) — A determined and talented band of college all-stars will trot into Soldier Field Friday night seeking revenge from the National Football League in a battle which will kick off the 1949 gridiron season.

Sixteenth Annual Scrap

The occasion is the 16th annual scrap between the All-Stars and the National Football League champions—this year the Philadelphia Eagles. The advance ticket sale indicates a crowd of around 100,000 persons will be on hand.

The squad of 70 collegians, coached by Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, will seek to wipe out the 28 to 0 trimming handed last year's All-Stars by the Chicago Cardinals, the national pro- league champs.

Wilkinson has a flock of standout backs and linemen to throw at the Eagles in "split-T" and regular "T" formation.

But he is worried about his defense. He pointed out his stars must stop Steve Van Buren, who spearheads the Eagles' running attacks, and also must play flawless defense against the passing of Tommy Thompson.

Big Assignments for Stars

"These are big assignments," Wilkinson mourned. "The Eagles' professional opponents couldn't do it consistently last year.'

The starting offensive and defensive lineups of the stars will not be named until the final practice next Thursday. Among lineman expected to get a chance to stop Van Buren and the Eagles are Bill Fischer and Marty Wendell of Notre Dame; Al Derogatis, Duke; Barney Poole, Northwestern; Chuck Dednarik, Pennsylvania; Alex Sarkision, Northwestern; Dick Harris and George Petrovich, Texas; Phil O'Rielly, Purdue, and Goble Bryant and Joe Steffy, Army.

Wilkinson has plenty of standout backs to operate offensively. They include Clyde Scott, Arkansas; John Rauch, Georgia; Stan Heath, Nevada, and Harper Davis, Mississippi State.

Available Quarterbacks

"T" formation quarterbacks available include Jack Mitchell from Wilkinson's own Oklahoma eleven; Frank Tripucka, Notre Dame; Al Dimarco, Iowa; Norm Van Brocklin, Oregon; as well as Rauch and Heath.

The All-Stars began emphasis on defense Friday. They held another rugged drill today and plan two more, in addition to lighter workouts and lectures.

The Eagles are working out daily at their training camp near Grand Rapids, Mich. Johnny Baker, head coach of Denver University looked them over yesterday and pronounced them "by far the best conditioned team I have ever seen at this early stage."

Twenty-Five Hurt As Grandstand Collapsed

RHINEBECK, N. Y., Apg. 6—(AP)—About 25 auto raceway spectators were injured tonight as part of the grandstand collapsed at the Duchess county fair grounds here.

More than 5,000 persons were in the stands watching weekly stock car races as the back segment of a new grandstand gave way. The injured persons were rushed to the northern Duchess hospital.

A hospital spokesman said there were "quite a few broken arms and legs."

A member of the Duchess county sheriff's office said the injured persons fell about 16 to 20 feet.

The racing program continued after the accident, a fair grounds spokesman said.

Earthquake Kills Over 200 In Ecuador

Several Towns Are Struck; Troops Sent To Control Disorder

QUITO, Ecuador, Saturday, Aug. 6—(AP)—An eyewitness broadcasting by radio from Ambato said early Friday about 200 persons were killed there by an earthquake that shook Ecuador's populous central mountain district yesterday.

Reports reaching the capital here said at least six other cities and towns besides Ambato were shattered by a sharp series of earth shocks.

Ambato, 55 miles south of Quito, apparently was the worst hit. Wrecked bridges and communications lines prevented accurate estimates of total casualties.

The broadcast from Ambato said the number of injured had reached "an alarming figure."

Reports from Latacunga, 35 miles south of Quito, indicated most of the city was destroyed and many killed.

(A government announcement issued at Guayaquil, Ecuador, said 40 persons, mostly soldiers, were killed when an army barracks building collapsed at Ambato. Collapse of a church also was reported to have buried a group of girls praying inside. This announcement did not specify whether the 40 persons were included in the 80 whose bodies were recovered.)

Panic And Disorders

Ambato has a population of about 50,000 and Latacunga about 20,000. Other towns stricken included Salcedo, Pujili and Sacquisili, in the provinces of Cotopaxi and Tungurahua. Panic and disorders were reported to be general.

President Galo Plaza Lasso took personal charge of arrangements for first aid and relief. He left for Ambato to supervise rescue work, after dispatching several army air force planes with medicine and doctors. The Red Cross mobilized forces, and two relief trains were en route south.

An official bulletin said troops were directed to reestablish order and safeguard property in the stricken zones and along the Latacunga-Ambato highway.

Casualties Increase

In Ambato, capital of the Tungurahua province, the provincial governor said the number of victims was increasing constantly. He indicated the thickly populated northern industrial section of the city was in ruins.

The governor called for aid but warned that many highway bridges into the city and sections of the Latacunga-Ambato railway had been destroyed.

Railways Damaged

(Guayaquil reported that rail traffic was disrupted by twisted or broken tracks. A passenger train which had left Guayaquil this morning was isolated 30 miles from Riobama.)

One report said that one coach of a passenger train had been overturned near Luisa.

Flat Creek Club Picnic August 14

The Flat Creek Extension club held its July meeting with Mrs. J. O. McMurdo. A contributive luncheon was served at the noon hour.

The afternoon business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. T. Edmundson. Roll call was answered with "What Rationing Taught Me." The flower committee reported two bouquets sent this month. Mrs. Robert Welliver told of the 4-H club activities coming up. The Achievement day committee gave an outline of what they have planned for an exhibit. Mrs. E. R. Wilhoit reviewed "Party Line."

The club will have the annual picnic August 14 at the Edmundson home instead of at the park as was previously planned.

Mrs. Fred Dillon was a visitor at the meeting. Pal box gifts were distributed.

The September meeting will be with Mrs. Ralph Milburn.

On Alert Over Bloody Clashes In Macedonia

Premier Tito Has Troops Ready For Possible Safeguard

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 6—(AP)—Yugoslav troops were in a state of alert Friday to guard against what Premier Marshal Tito called provocations and intimidation by his Soviet-dominated neighbors.

Tanjug, the official news agency, last night quoted Marshal Tito as saying bloody clashes already had taken place in Macedonia. The stormy Balkan region lies between Communist Bulgaria and Albania, with Greece on the southern border.

Tito said his troops were in a "state of alert in order to safeguard the peaceful construction of our Socialist country."

The premier, who defied Soviet dictation a year ago in a row with the cominform (Communist International Information Bureau), accused his eastern neighbors of trying to intimidate Yugoslavia by spreading rumors of a threatened red army invasion.

Tito called them "nothing but ordinary rumors," but added:

"Nevertheless, we are not unvigilant here either . . . We are prepared to prevent all provocations, to defend our country against everyone."

Slap at Moscow

In a slap as Moscow, Tito added Yugoslavia would defend the principles of Markish-Leninism "even against the creators of these principles, should they go against them."

Tanjug reported the statements were made Wednesday in a speech to army and political leaders in Skoplje, Macedonia. Tito repeated previous statements that Yugoslavia would not sacrifice its Marxist Communism for western friendship, then launched into his toughest talk to date against his Cominform neighbors.

"You are on a sector of defense of our country," he told the Macedonian leaders, "which is of great importance and on which provocations took place, where they are still occurring today and will probably take place in the future.

"You are in a state of alert in order to safeguard the peaceful reconstruction of our Socialist country . . .

"There are cases already where they (Yugoslav soldiers) had to confront the enemy face to face. Blood has already been shed here in defense of our Socialist homeland."

There are an estimated 3,000,000 miles of rural roads in the United States.

Thursday Night Shoppers

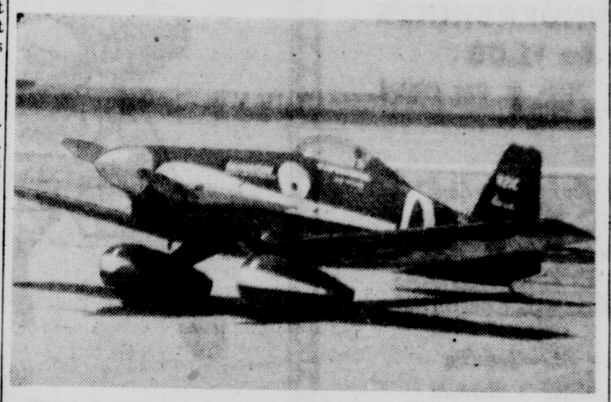
Model of 'Minnow'



Pictured above is a model of the Goodyear winner Cosmic Wind, "Minnow." This little "hot rock" was only one of the thousands of model planes at the 18th National A.M.A. (Academy of Model Aeronautics) Model Airplane Meet that was held July 26 through 31 at the United States Naval Air Station, Olathe, Kas., with indoor events in the Municipal Auditorium, Kansas City. This picture was taken Sunday by one of the members of the Sedalia group.

Several cars of weary model enthusiasts stole into this sleeping community early Monday morning and brought with them memories of one of the most stupendous events in the yearly life of an active model builder and flier, the National's. Anyone who has ever been fortunate enough to witness a national model plane meet will quickly agree that after returning home the sole topic of conversation is nothing but remembering and recalling some of the most exciting and near impossible feats of model acrobatics.

The group of modelers from Sedalia were present for the last and closing day of the meet. According to Johnny Flashpoler, local model dealer and leader of just about all model activity in Sedalia, the day was crammed full of thrills. John said one of the outstanding features of the day was the air show featuring the "Blue Angles," USNAS, that started late in the afternoon. The four bright blue Grumman Bearcats (F-8-F's) performed precision flying and intricate group maneuvers that thrilled all present, including the local boys. Johnny said along with the Bearcats there was a clown in an old SN-J who mocked the "Blue Angels" in some of their tricks.

Indoor Events

Some of the many parts of the meet that occurred during the week were the indoor events held in the Municipal Auditorium in Kansas City on Tuesday (registration for all events was on Monday). On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday the many phases of the outdoors events were held at the Olathe Air Base. Events at Olathe included all classes in the free flight divisions, in Control-Line, and in radio control, glider and rubber powered jobs.

At 8:00 o'clock Sunday night the awards were presented to the winners in all events, at the USNAS Auditorium.

Some Sedalians who were there Sunday are: Johnny Flashpoler, Lee White, Bill Aven, Forrest Banner, Bill Stodgell, Niles Sims and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hayworth and their son Val Jean and Ralph Morgan.

Decree Passes Flunked Students

BANGKOK—(AP)—A government decree gave passing grades to 29 students who flunked university entrance examinations. Within a few days the Ministry of Education was deluged with requests from parents that their children who had flunked other tests be given passing marks.

Top Education Ministry officials sought to resign in shame over the Thailand cabinet's action, but were persuaded to hang on only because their terms were expiring shortly anyway.

The education squabble began when the son of a member of parliament got 49.6 on an examination. The passing grade was lowered from 50 to include all who scored 49.5 or better.

Peasant housewives in Italy and North Africa use fans to drive air into crude charcoal stoves, thereby fanning the flame to boil coffee or fry potatoes.

Care Only Treatment When Crippler Strikes

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, — (AP) — When your child gets polio—infantile paralysis—his fate passes out of your hands.

All you can do is to turn him over to specialists, doctors and nurses, and there are not many of these specialists in the entire United States.

That's where the dimes you and the children gave last winter come to your aid. They produced more than $20,000,000 now ready to do the incredible medical job of making this scarce aid ready everywhere.

Your community has a local chapter of the national foundation for infantile paralysis, one of 2,800 in the United States.

Call the community or nearest national foundation office. They have plans ready. For those unable to pay the full expenses, the foundation expects to pay the balance. And this is a lot of money, about $1,000 being an average expense for a single case. Some run far higher.

How Funds are Divided

Local chapters of the foundation keep half of the March of Dimes funds collection, and most of this goes to pay patients' bills. The policy of the foundation is to pay all or part of the expense, depending upon each family's need for help. When local funds are exhausted, the national headquarters advances money to help meet the costs. Last year the foundation and its chapters spent $17,000,000 on patient care, including $6,700,000 from the national headquarters.

The foundation undertakes to find a hospital where this care can be given. Many hospital have neither the equipment nor the experienced personnel.

Where cases are numerous, the foundation maintains teams of expert doctors and nurses to go to that area and train nurses and advise local doctors. These teams are top men in polio, in the leading medical institutions of the United States.

Large Sum Left

The foundation last winter took in $25,000,000 in the March of Dimes. Half this went to the local chapters, and half into the national foundation. Deducting the expenses, there is about twenty million dollars left for polio aid and for research.

In last summer's epidemic the national foundation spent about $4,000,000 more than is received in dimes money.

Some things which the experts will do can later be done at home by you. That will be in the cases where it takes years of training stricken muscles.

Where children are unable to move a muscle, nurses or parents or apparatus built for the purpose does ths excercise. Someday the weakened mucles get able to do some of their own work. Results sometimes look like miracles. The reasons are intricate, but there is little guess-work.

Lost Some Power

Bulbar polio, the kind that comes from damage to the "bulb" at the top of the spinal cord, has lost some of its death-dealing power. Bulbar kills in several ways. It may paralyze swallowing muscles, or breathing muscles or interfere with heart action. In the sawollowing trouble, the child chokes to death. Opening the windpipe saves most of these, and that was discovered only two years ago. Iron lungs keep them alive in the breathing paralysis and pure oxgen helps tide over the heart crises.

The doctors may give the sufferer myanesin of priscol to relieve pain, but not because they think there is any curative effect. They use curare to loosen muscles that insist on tying themselves into knots. They have tried new remedies like darvisul and gureomycin. There are swimming pools, rocking beds and other devices for mild exercises.

Making Tests

There are more than a score of medicines being used on animals, with hopeful effects, and two vaccines, again for animals. Whether any of these will work for human beings is unknown.

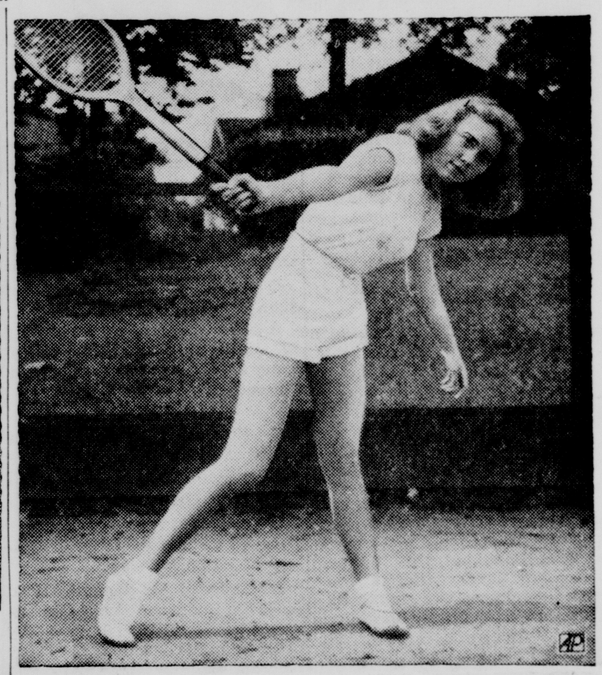
The best and only remedies go under the broad name of physiotherapy, which means long patient, understanding and affectionate care and painstaking direction in teaching stricken muscles to make a comeback.

How to Avoid The Perils of Polio

KEEP CLEAN—Garbage cans should be covered tightly. If disposal facilities are lacking garbage should be burned. Keep food tightly covered and safe from flies and insects which might carry virus.

DON'T SWIM IN DIRT—Polluted water and places marked "no swimming" should be especially avoided. It is safest to use only authorized beaches and public pools declared safe by health officials.

DON'T GET CHILLED—Sitting in front of a fan when overheated is bad. Remove wet garments at once. Keep warm clothes handy in case of need.



KEEP OUT OF CROWDS—Tennis is one of the sports which does not involve close contact with other people. It is wise to stop playing before you get overtired. The injunction to avoid fatigue and crowds applies to work, although it is more difficult to adjust work schedules.

When ice is frozen without being agitated, it usually is cloudy or white.

Red Cross Corner

A Red Cross First Aid tent was set up at the Catholic Center Center Sunday, with Michael Wolfel, chairman of Safety Services, in charge, with Mrs. A. A. Studebaker assisting. Only one person required treatment.

Mrs. Herman Seifert, Chairman of Home Service, announces that there will be a change in the Home Service meetings, which have been held in Sedalia for the past two years, with seven chapters attending. In the future, our chapter workers will attend sessions at the Chapter House in Kansas City, with Missouri and Kansas chapters participating. The first meeting will be held Monday, August 8, and our Chapter workers plan to attend. The Red Cross office will be open in order that any emergency may be taken care of.

We are proud of the two registered nurses who have volunteered to serve as polio nurses during this critical period. They have gone to Kansas City to nurse in Menorah hospital, and after this training, they will be qualified as Red Cross nurses. Both have been working at Bothwell Hospital, and the transfer, on a loan basis, was arranged through the local Red Cross office. All Red Cross chapters have been alerted by National Headquarters for the recruitment of nurses for the polio period. The nurses are Miss Cleo Hartnett, R. N. and Mrs. Zeta Woodward, R. N.

The Pettis County Chapter is again having a display at the Missouri State Fair. This booth will be located in the Educational Building. Mrs. Arthur M. Hoffman, chairman of Staff Aides, is asking for volunteers to serve at the booth. Any Aides willing to serve, please call Mrs. Hoffman, No. 3046, or the Red Cross office, No. 618.

Crossroads Comment

by G. H. S.

A guild of employees of a New York magazine has come up with a dilly. Claiming the guild wants to correct an "injustice," the male members are negotiating for a one-week "paternity leave" in its contract with the publication.

This plea for "expectant fathers" is based on the theory that the guild members can't afford to pay a nurse when their wives return home from the hospital, and can't afford to take a week off without pay to do the household chores.

Maybe the little lady should have a part in these negotiations. We'll bet a holeless doughnut she'll side with the employer and say: "Keep John at work. The baby and I are strong enough to see the chores are done without having him under foot."

This pregnant idea for "expectant fathers" was probably cooked up by guys who want to get a week's pay for a week's drunk following the advent of dear Junior.

A good poker player never tries to "shoot a singing bird." Yet Harry T. and Harry V. tried it—and lost when Harry B. (the too-many Byrds in Congress) came through in the Virginia elections to put his gubernatorial candidate in the victory seat and maintain his own party leadership of 25 years' duration.

The two White House Harrys have been after the scalp of the Virginia Harry and most folks thought a Byrd was going to get his wings clipped.

Evidently Senator Harry E. Byrd made things pretty hot in Virginia because the same morning after his victory song hit the front pages, brother Richard E. Byrd, veteran polar explorer, chirped he was taking off for the South Pole.

The singing Byrds continue to fly, politically and exploratively.

Just Who Are The "Selfish Interests"

Who are these "selfish interests" at whom those high in authority in Washington point with scorn? The old whipping boy—business—of course.

This line of propaganda is wearing pretty thin—the idea if you repeat some accusation often enough the people will believe it.

One thing beginning to jell in the public mind is that the "selfish interests" seem to be among politicians, elected officials of both parties in Congress, the bureaucrats, who seem to be more intent on building issues for next year's elections than providing for the welfare of the country.

—O—

Last week America celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of the invention of the hamburger, reviving a dispute between St. Louis, St. Joseph and Springfield, Missouri as to the place where the invention occurred. This argument should be settled definitely as soon as the politburo in Moscow hears about it. Why, of course, hamburger was a Russian invention, first made of bear meat. The way some of them taste over here, Americans might be convinced any Soviet claim would be correct.

—O—

Other communities have started a campaign to "swat the fly." Years ago Sedalia had these campaigns. There were organized efforts to eliminate the disease-carrying pests. Boys and girls formed teams, setting out screened fly traps. Everybody became "fly" conscious. Swatting became as much exercise as golf-playing today. Money prizes were awarded. It seemed like tons of dead flies were brought in.

Even without an organized effort of this kind now, individual families can strike a notable blow against disease by encouraging personal efforts among all members of the family to "swat that fly" for better health.

—O—

What are the meanings of hand signals made by motorists in traffic?

Interpretations are as conflicting as the signals themselves which mean one thing in one state, something else in another.

In the name of uniformity this should be corrected on a national basis. Somehow states get together on the license plate colors so there will be no conflict year to year. If this can be done with such facility with license plates why can't a uniform national code of hand signals be promulgated and publicized?

What a wonderful accomplishment this would be if it could be done without "passing a law."

Parnell Thomas Recovers Health But Doesn't Go On Trial

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—It has now been exactly one year since this column first exposed both the kickback skulduggery of Congressman Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and the fact that he had soldiers transferred away from the war front in return for political contributions. Since then, Thomas has been indicted, but pled sickness and has never faced trial.

The other day, however, he was seen driving up to the Statler hotel in a sleek green Cadillac convertible looking in better health than ever.

Despite his good health and prosperity, Republican leaders in the House of Representatives have quietly gone to Democratic leaders to ask that the indictment against Thomas be dropped. Congressmen stick together, and Democratic leaders are planning to pass this plea on to the Justice Department.

What will be done about it—if anything—will be one of the first problems faced by the new attorney general, J. Howard McGrath.

Congressman Barden and the Pope

Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina, bitterly attacked by Cardinal Spellman over his aid-to-education bill, was in Rome last year where he was received by His Holiness Pope Pius. With the congressman was Mrs. Barden and their pretty 15-year-old daughter, Agnes.

Barden and the Pope had a most cordial conversation, following which His Holiness presented the former North Carolina schoolteacher with a bronze papal pocket-piece bearing the likeness of the pope. He also gave one to Agnes Barden, and in doing so, he took the girl's hand in both of his and said: "Blessings on you, my beautiful child."

Greatly impressed, little Agnes never forgot that visit. A Presbyterian, she sang the pope's praises to other children when she got back to North Carolina.

Then, one morning last month she picked up the paper from the front door and brought it to her father. Across the front page were headlines: "Cardinal Spellman attacks Congressman Barden."

"Oh, Daddy," exclaimed Agnes, in distress, "I'm sure the pope couldn't have told him to say that."

Will Vaughan Be Ousted?

Around the White House its now said that President Truman is looking for a painless way to kick Gen. Harry Vaughan upstairs providing "that S.O.B. Drew Pearson" and the Senate Investigating committee don't make things too hot.

This stubborn loyalty quirk in Harry Truman's makeup has been admired by some people but doesn't benefit the taxpayers or those interested in good government.

Furthermore, the new White House thinking about General Vaughan arises just as another question-mark in the extraordinary life of the general is being raised—namely what connection he had with the attempted purchase of all the remaining army scrap iron in Germany.

This was another deal involving lobbyist James V. Hunt whose diary reads as if he were almost a member of the White House staff, and who, with Vaughan, once had the army band play one of Hunt's musical compositions at a White House garden party.

The scrap-iron deal took place in March, 1947, when Benny Bender of Shreveport, La., went to Germany and signed a contract with the army for 150,000 tons of scrap iron on behalf of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company. Returning to the U.S.A., Bender found himself in some trouble with Carnegie-Illinois, which apparently had not given him full authority to act and which refused to honor a draft against them for $206,000.

Bender was then faced with the problem of getting the army contract for the scrap iron transferred to his name rather than that of Carnegie-Illinois, a rather difficult deal, since Bender had no sizeable funds of his own.

Red Tape Vanishes

It was at this point that Bender went to Vaughan's friend, lobbyist Hunt, the reputed miracle man who was supposed to be able to accomplish anything with the army. Hunt signed a contract with Bender April 15, '47 by which he agreed to get the army to transfer the scrap iron from Carnegie-Illinois to Bender. Hunt's fee for this transfer was to be $12,500.

If the transfer was for the best interests of the army, of course, no fee or undue influence should have been necessary.

During their conversations, Hunt introduced Bender to General Vaughan outside Hunt's office in the Barr building as the "man I told you about who is interested in that scrap-iron deal." Vaughan had left the White House to call at Hunt's office. This was the only time Bender actually met Vaughan, though lobbyist Hunt harped on the idea that Vaughan was helping him arrange the transfer.

Whatever influence was used, the transfer went through with amazing speed—one day and a half. For those accustomed to government red tape, this was phenomenal. Four army teletype messages were exchanged with Germany, whereupon the transfer of title from the giant Carnegie-Illinois corporation to little Benny Binder of Shreveport, La., for all the remaining scrap iron in Germany was accomplished.

In the end, the scrap-iron ring in the United States made it difficult for Bender to sell his scrap and the deal fell through. Bender and Hunt quarreled over payment, and Hunt finally sued Bender for his $12,500 fee. Bender, in turn, took bankruptcy and the fee was settled for $10,000.

But the secret strings by which Vaughan's friend so blithely and quickly transferred the scrap iron from Carnegie-Illinois to Benny Binder still has those who know the army gasping.

Here's a New Handbook For Husband Hunters

The first question a young woman wants to get married ought to ask herself is: "Why am I single?"

If she needs help in figuring out the answer to that one, she may possibly find it in a new book compiled by Hilda Holland, "Why Are You Single?" In this book medical and other authorities on marriage discuss the various reasons why 29,000,000 people of marriageable age in the United States are single.

Once she has figured out why she's single, then she's ready for the last chapter of the book, "Why be single?" and its suggestions for improving her personality and her attitude toward others so that she will be attractive to the right man if he comes along.

Check Yourself by These Tips

Here are some of the suggestions included in the helpful last chapter:

Become a good conversationalist.

Recognize and compliment others' good qualities.

Go out of your way to do little favors.

Hold on to old friends and make new ones of both sexes.

Dress neatly and appropriately.

Pay close attention to personal hygiene.

Get rid of any peculiar mannerisms.

Learn to dance, to play games, to enjoy sports.

Know what etiquette requires and observe it.

Develop a hobby that interests others.

Join several organizations and take part in their activities.

Inventory yourself every three months to see how you can be more attractive.

When you know something is wrong, do something about it now.

That may strike you as a formidable list at first glance. But when you start checking yourself by it, it may not be so tough since you've probably already mastered a good many of the suggestions.

Then all you've got to do is concentrate on the points where you are weak. Good luck and good hunting to the new YOU.

Be Wary in Using Drugs For Relief of Hay Fever

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Millions of sufferers from hay fever dread the arrival of August 15. At about that date (perhaps earlier this year because of the advanced season) the common ragweed begins to release pollen into the air.

The running or stuffed-up nose, itching and watering eyes, and the sneezing fits of the hay fever victim make for a miserable time. Some people are so seriously affected that they cannot sleep. They loose weight, become irritable and exhausted and feel of little use to themselves or to anyone else during the four or five weeks of "the season."

Many victims of hay fever have obtained great relief by taking the injections or "shots" of pollen before the season starts. The purpose of these injections is to reduce the sensitiveness to the pollen.

Some people cannot take large enough doses to do much good. Others, for reasons which are not yet entirely understood, fail to respond very well. Many, however, obtain some relief and a few get over their symptoms entirely.

Temporary Relief

Once the season has started these preventive injections are not of much help. Many who can get away try to seek areas where there is less pollen, but others have to stay where they are and grin and bear it. Air conditioned public buildings often bring some relief. Some people who can afford it feel better if they stay in a room with an air filter in the window.

Several drugs which bring considerable relief are now on the market. These drugs act for only a short time, but they do help many hay fever sufferers when their symptoms are intolerable. They are not entirely lacking in undesirable effects, however, and therefore should not be taken without some medical supervision.

THE DOCTOR ANSWERS
BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

QUESTION: I drink anywhere from five to seven quarts of beer a night. I also have sinus trouble and become irritable and nasty when I have an attack. My wife says the beer bothers my sinus.

ANSWER: It is hard to tell whether the sinus or the beer would have the most effect on your disposition. Why don't you give up the beer for a while and see what happens?

THE STORY: A wealthy widow, Mrs. Everson, believes that an atomic war is impending and with it will come the destruction of civilization. She has sold all her belongings and put her money into jewels. She has equipped two giant trailers with comforts and is fleeing with her servants to "a place of safety." In the party is Mrs. Margaret Malone, her cook, who did not understand the expedition until she was a part of it and who has since been tempted to run away. Mrs. Malone has learned that Mrs. Everson is in love with her handsome chauffeur, Rudy, a disgraced movie star, but Rudy likes Mrs. Everson only for her money. Victor, the Filipino houseboy, and the Marchese Dellacasa, an exiled nobleman, are the others in the party. Mrs. Everson's fear of the impending "great explosion" is heightened by her frantic appeals to Rudy to "hurry." "She's sure scared of that bomb," Victor tells Mrs. Malone. Mrs. Malone answers: "Who isn't?"

XVI

MRS. MALONE peered out of the window again and then turned to Rudy.

"Where are we?" she asked.

"The arrow points toward Colorado or Montana," Rudy said. "We're going the hard way, but don't ask me why. Maybe she's still throwing pursuers off the scent."

He stretched again.

"Me for the hay!"

"I too," Victor said.

"But Mrs. Everson . . ."

"Let her sleep," Rudy interrupted. "She's out like a light."

"How about the Bomb?" Mrs. Malone said sarcastically. "If we don't hurry along, maybe we'll be too late!"

Rudy's smile flickered.

"You can only die once," he said. "As for me, I'm against driving over a cliff in my sleep. Come on, Victor."

The minutes passed in a silence so absolute that Mrs. Malone found herself pausing to listen, straining to hear, holding her breath with a sort of dread. It was a silence composed of the loneliness of deserted rocks and empty skies. Here, on this high, still place, man the builder and man the destroyer seemed no longer to exist. The fever and the fury of great cities were far away, dwarfed into inconsequence, left behind.

The steps were down; Mrs. Malone went outside and forward along the trailer's shining flank to the truck. Mrs. Everson was asleep, her head on her arms, her face hidden. Mrs. Malone hesitated, then crossed the road and stood on the brink, looking off at the great platter of earth.

"I wish Joe were here," she thought.

ALL through those long years with him there had been the peace and security of love, his strength and wisdom, a way of striking through the mazes of doubt to the heart of a situation, or to the truth of a human being. She had relied on him too long.

In a few brief days the protecting wall he had built around her had crumbled and fallen, had vanished forever. Joe was gone. Yet with her eyes closed, now, she could see his kind, quizzical American face, could hear his voice, dry and gentle, could feel his arms around her.

She tore her mind away, knowing that it was hopeless and wrong to remember. She must live, now, with emptiness and loneliness. But what would Joe have decided about these people? Could she believe Victor? Or the implacable Rudy, tensed for some sudden, fierce spring? Could she believe the foreigner? Or Mrs. Everson?

And then, suddenly, she knew what Joe would have done: he would have got out of there—fast! Nothing in the world could have persuaded him to string along with such a gang.

She turned, with some half-formed idea of escape. She could be halfway down the other side of the grade before any of them awakened. She might get a lift—this road was used—surely a car would overtake her.

"Malone!"

Mrs. Everson was sitting up. Now she opened the cab door and swung herself down.

"Where's Rudy?"

"He and Victor are asleep, Madam."

MRS. EVERSON'S face gave evidence of the long night's vigil. Her eyes were darkly shadowed; the carefully painted lips were blurred.

She crossed the road and stood beside Mrs. Malone. Two steps beyond, the mountain fell away into space. They could see the grade twisting down between the canyon walls, coil after coil, to the valley floor.

"Let them sleep," Mrs. Everson said in her somber voice. "The rest is easy. We can make time today. And day after tomorrow we'll be there. Safe."

She was not speaking to Mrs. Malone, but to herself. Her expression, as she looked off at the panorama of uninhabited land, was again triumphant. She made Mrs. Malone think of some ruler or prehistoric priestess.

The gulf of space beneath her only deepened the impression. Mile beyond mile the emptiness stretched away, transfixed in silence. Over it all the strange, pallid woman seemed to hold dominion. As if, somehow, she knew the secret of its destiny . . .

Suddenly she said: "You were meaning to run away just now, weren't you? Are you afraid of me?"

"No," Mrs. Malone answered.

"You hate me."

Vivacious Sunny Daye, heard on Dinnerbell Roundup, and a regular star on the Brush Creek Follies each Saturday night over KMBC, is one of the most popular stars on the staff. In addition, Sunny is currently featured in her own program at 3:15 each afternoon, Monday through Friday, with songs and ballads familiar to old and young alike. She's as pleasant as her name, and we hope you'll tune in on her program.

Well-known baritone Lenny Stokes will be the featured soloist on "The Choraliers" program this Sunday at 1 o'clock on KMBC. Eugene Lowell conducts the all-male choir, and selections on this week's program include "Pale Moon," "Strike Up the Band," "Alice Blue Gown" and "Wizard of Oz."

Tiny Tillman, folk-song artist, is winning new friends each week in the KMBC-KFRM area. Tiny, who is featured on Dinnerbell Roundup each week-day noon, and is a regular star on Brush Creek Follies, is also heard on his own program at 6:15 each morning. Not long ago Tiny asked over the air what the folks thought about his morning show. The mail that poured in to the KMBC-KFRM mail room was testimony enough to indicate that he's a favorite with area audiences.

The Family Hour of Stars this afternoon at 5 o'clock will present screen actress Wanda Hendriz in "Hold Back The Dawn." It's a story of an international romance, with unusual complications. Paul Frees plays the part of a Rumanian refugee who wishes to marry in order to secure American citizenship. We invite you to tune in on this intriguing story.

Ken Parsons, assistant director of the KMBC-KFRM Service Farms, is another one of The Team's busy men these days. Ken, like Phil Evans, lives on the Service Farms, and is a practical farmer. In addition, Ken is heard on KMBC at 6:55 each morning with his "Better Farming" program, and presents several other farm programs each day over KFRM. Ken is an expert agronomist, and trade area listeners are finding his programs of real value in this important business of agriculture.

"First Nighter," heard on KMBC at 9 p. m. each Thursday, will present a romantic drama of a 16th century swordsman on this week's program. Barbara Luddy and Olan Soule are the stars of "the little theatre off Times Square," and this week's story concerns a soldier who undertakes a dangerous mission to rescue two beautiful ladies.

Allotment of 1950 Wheat Is Announced

A 1950 wheat allotment of 25,903 acres for Pettis county has been announced by the county Agricultural Conservation Committee.

This represents Pettis county's proportionate share of the national wheat acreage allotment of 68.9 million acres for the crop that will be harvested next year, Jas. A. Harvey, committee chairman explains. The national allotment is the acreage, that at normal yields, will produce an amount of wheat which together with the expected carryover next July 1 will supply contemplated domestic and export requirements and provide a safe reserve.

Individual farm allotment, based on acreage and production data collected over the past several months, have been established, Harvey stated, and notices to Pettis county wheat growers were mailed from the county office on July 29. Any farmer who has grown wheat on his farm during one or more of the past three years and who did not receive a Wheat Allotment Notice should contact the county committee to determine who such notice had not been received.

Not Enforce Limitation

Acreage allotments are not an enforced limitation on productnon, but provide a limitation on Government expenditures for price support beyond the national interest, Harvey explains. Only those farmers who seed within their farm allotments will be entitled to price supporting comcodity loans or purchase agreements on their 1950 crop.

Although adverse conditions during the growing and harvesting season have resulted in a smaller 1949 wheat crop than expected earlier, this year's harvest will still be the third largest of record and the sixth consecutive wheat crop in excess of one billion bushels, Harvey points out. The average yearly domestic consumption of wheat is only 700 million bushels, and only abnormally high exports supported by ECA allotments and army purchases for occupied countries have prevented the accumulation of price-depressing surpluses.

Harvey emphasizes that if wheat growers comply with acreage allotments, thus adjusting production to expected requirements, it may be necessary to use marketing quotas for future crops.

Geoglogists to Be at The Fair

The quest for uranium in Missouri will be reflected at the State Fair here, August 21-28, when the State Geological Service will operate a service to examine any specimens of minerals, rocks or ores that have been brought in by citizens of the state, using a Geiger counter and a black lamp, or untra-violet light, it has been announced by Edward L. Clark, state geologist, of Rolla. The tests will be made at the geological exhibits in the Missouri Building and two experts, Garrett Muilenburg and O. M. Bishop, geologists, will be on duty.

The geologists, naturally, will be on the lookout for any significant specimens aside from those indicating uranium, Mr. Clark said, and it is desired that persons who have specimens send them directly to Rolla, although any brought to the Fair will be examined.

Living Standards Fret German State

KIEL, Germany—(AP)—The citizens of the west German state of Schleswig-Holstein complained that their cabinet ministers were living too well.

When the state parliament discussed the matter, minister president (governor) Hermann Lueddemann rose and put two bottles of wine on the table. "I herewith invite all deputies who live more modestly than I for a bottle of wine in my one-and-a-half-room apartment," he said. "I think two bottles are enough."

Judgeship Remains Temporary

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The roving federal district judgeship in Missouri will remain temporary under the omnibus court bill signed yesterday by President Truman.

The post now is held by Judge Richard Duncan, of St. Joseph.

The house approved a provision making the post permanent. However, the senate later eliminated the provision at the suggestion of the state's two senators, Donnell and Kem, both Republicans. Both houses later accepted a conference committee report which went along with the senate.

Mrs. Leonard Smirl, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and her grandson, James Russell, nine months, carry picket signs near the Cedar Rapids courthouse where attorneys for Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr., St. Louis, were asking for a new trial for the doctor. Dr. Rutledge was convicted of murder in the death of Byron Hattman, also of St. Louis, in a Cedar Rapids hotel room. During the trial the defense contended that Hattman was killed in a fight over alleged intimacies between Hattman and Mrs. Sydney Rutledge, the doctor's wife. The signs read "free the doctor, forgive Sydney" and "set the Dr. free for tots like me." (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Suits Are Tailor-made For Amputees—

Amputees back from the war, with hooks where their hands used to be, found it wasn't too tough to learn to drive a car or operate machinery. What really got them down were ordinary everyday little things, like trying to dress themselves. Today they can wear suits that look exactly like the well-draped styles other men wear. They don't present the trouble ordinary suits do to the amputees. The secret lies in well concealed details, some of which are pictured above, especially adapted to the requirements of men who wear artificial arms or hands.

Shaping Course In China

Acheson Expected To Direct New Anti-Communist Moves In Far East

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 — (AP) —Sen. Vandenberg, Republican foreign policy leader, said tonight that the United States must take a fresh-look at its China policies and determine its course "unhampered by past prejudicies or emotions."

Speaking out on the government's China policy "white paper," the Michigan Senator said this country must make "relentlessly clear" its support for the Chinese people and for freedom in the Far East.

Patrick J. Hurley, who headed a wartime mission to China, assailed the white paper in a statement as "a smooth alibi for the pro-Communists in the state department."

In several ways Vandenberg's statement coincided with views expressed by Secretary of State Acheson.

Hope Of Saving China

Acheson, who has abandoned hope of saving China by propping up the Nationalist regime, has before him the problem of shaping a positive new approach.

Aides and associates expected him to move along three lines in directing new administration moves against Communism in the Far East. This possibly includes assistance to anti-Communist forces which may remain or spring up to oppose Chinese Red control.

Vandenberg, top Republican on the Senate foreign relations committee, declared that the United States must not accept results of "aggression." He said he did not believe the aggression in China can permanently succeed. Acheson had declared in a statement on the white paper yesterday that he was not "defeatist."

Calls For Fresh Look

Vandenberg called for "a fresh look, unhampered by past prejudices or emotions." Acheson has announced that he was bringing in outside advisers to work with state department officials on devising new moves with respect to China and the Far East.

Vandenberg further declared that the United States "deal with the realities" of the situation. Acheson likewise has demanded that the country adopt a "realistic" attitude toward its problems in China.

In line with what Vandenberg advocated, Acheson had pinned American policy to support of the Chinese people when, through release of the white paper, he effectively ended support of the Nationalist government.

The points of agreement in the statements issued by the two men were regarded by diplomatic observers as important. They indicated a possible new approach to the development of China policy with a degree of bi-partisanship, as between the state department and Vandenberg, which has not existed in the past.

To Receive Consideration

There appeared to be no doubt that Vandenberg's views would receive careful consideration by Acheson and his advisers.

Officials believe that Acheson, in the expected three lines of anti-Communist action, may urge aid for any resistance forces showing signs of a determined stand against the Communists.

The three lines along which policy moves are expected to be ordered are these:

1. Resistance to any threat of aggression by the Chinese Communists against China's neighbors —such as Burma and French Indo-China.

2. Promotion of political policies among China's neighbors from Korea through Japan and the Philippines around to India which will better living conditions of the people and thereby weaken the position of Communism working from the inside.

3. Take advantage of all opportunities to weaken the position of Communism inside China by giving encouragement and, where practical, assistance to any Chinese movement aimed at restoring the country's independence of Communism.

Ford Fails To Get Order In Strike Case

Decision Means Walkout Vote Will Start On Monday

DETROIT, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Ford Motor Company failed today to obtain a court order to halt the holding of a strike vote among its employes at polling places close to headquarters of the CIO United Auto Workers.

In Lansing, Supreme Court Justice Leland W. Carr denied the company's plea for an order to force the State Labor Mediation Board to change the election setup.

The decision meant that the strike vote among Ford's 80,000 employes in Michigan will start Monday as scheduled.

The company immediately put full page advertisements in all three Detroit Sunday morning newspapers appealing to the members of Walter P. Reuther's big union.

The ads appeared over the signature of Henry Ford II, and urged the workers to weigh their strike decision carefully.

"It is the apparent hope of union leadership." Ford asserted, "that you will vote yourself into another long strike. In fact, they seem to want only those of you who favor a strike actually to cast ballots in the coming election.

"That is why we are doing everything we can to have polling places located where the greatest possible number of you may vote."

Henry Ford II gave the company's version of the wage negotiation dispute with the union. He conclude:

"But however you decide, you must vote."

Legionnaires Street Parade

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6—(AP)—Some 5,000 Legionnaires marched through downtown streets this afternoon in their annual parade —traditional highlight of the American Legion's annual state convention.

Steve Kriwanek, veteran grand marshal of St. Louis Legion parades, said there were 225 units representing all of the 17 districts from the Missouri department taking part in the hour and a half-long event.

Bands and troops from the Missouri National Guard and the Air Force base at nearby Scott Field, Ill., joined in the marching.

Child Killed In Fall From Car

BETHANY, Mo., Aug. 6—(AP)—A four-year-old girl was killed today when she fell from a motor car.

The child was Kathleen Mary Waller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Waller, Manson, Va. She toppled out as the family motor car, driven by the father, rounded a curve on U. S. highway 69 two miles south of here.

Cheaper Pork Chops Ahead

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The agriculture department advised housewives today cheaper pork chops are in prospect this fall. It also forecast generally lower prices for other meats resulting from increased supplies.

The department said meat and livestock prices are expected to remain generally steady until fall marketings begin. The large spring pig crop will then become available.

Contract For Biggest Bombs Is Announced

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 6—(AP)—A $1,,199,464 contract for the Air Force's biggest bombs—50,000 and 22,000 pounds—was announced by Boeing Airplane Co. here today.

The contract calls for ten lifts for 25-ton bombs and six for the 11-tonners.

Completion is scheduled by mid-November, next year, with first deliveries scheduled next July.

Electric motors, actuating a hydraulic system in the 25-ton lift, can hoist the huge bombs to 12½ feet, toll then 360 degrees in either direction, shift them four inches either side of center and 10 inches fore and aft, and tilt them six degrees up or down.

One man, operating six levers, thus can handle the huge bombs with ease.

Can Be Transported By Air

Behind a jeep or truck, and carrying a 25-ton bomb, the lifts can be towed as fast as 20 miles an hour. They are demountable for transport by air

The smaller lifts can do essentially the same with 12½-ton bombs.

Both have been under development by Boeing and the Air Force since early 1947. Since then, under prior contracts, Boeing has built two of the 50,000-pound bomb lifts, three for 22,-000-pound bombs. and 126 dollies to carry bombs weighing up to 12,000 pounds.

These have been tested at Wright - Patterson, Eglin and Muroc Air Force bases.

When contracted in April, 1947, to design, engineer and build the 25-tonner Boeing lift, it also contracted to modify a B-29 Superfortress here to carry the newly-developed 21-ton "earthquake" bomb. Modified, it has completed a series of tests.

Vagabonds Are Not Welcome In Sedalia

Edgar Neighbors, chief of police, has notified his officers to pick up all vagabonds in Sedalia, strangers with no visible means of support, and if they have no real reason for being here, to get them out of town.

A similar procedure was carried out last year before the opening of the State Fair, and according to Chief Neighbors, there were no break-ins nor pickpockets reported in the city during the fair.

Thousands Of Dime-Sized Frogs Blitz Mobile Streets

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 6—(AP)—Thousands of dime-sized brown frogs, apparently all hopped up over something, blitzed two streets here today.

vasion before dawn and by day-

The frogs jumped off on the inbreak had just about covered the yards.

J. M. Ramsey said he noticed all frogs seemed westward bound from a nearby water-hole and figured "they're just migrating."

Paul English said his duck found the frogs at dawn and by 8 a. m. had eaten so many they couldn't stand.

"They just sat on the ground," said English, "and kept eating every frog that hopped close enough."

Where the frogs came or why was a mystery.

Deadly Forest Fire Rages In Montana

Three Parachuting Smoke-Jumpers And Others Killed

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 6—(AP)—At least 11 men are dead and two are missing in a forest fire that formed a raging death trap for forest service parachutists.

The blaze is centered in a primitive mountain area 25 miles northeast of here.

Nine charred bodies have been found in the embers and eight of the nine are believed the bodies of "smoke jumpers" who parachuted into the gates of the mountain sector yesterday to fight the flames.

Only three of 15 'chutists dropped from planes over the area are known to be safe.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 6—(AP)—Montana's deadliest forest fire of years ravaged hundreds more primitive acres near here today after killing three parachuting smoke-jumpers and two other men.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 6—(AP)—The forest fire which turned the primitive "gates of the mountains" wilderness near Helena into an inferno caught forest service parachutists as they fled up a mountain, a survivor related today.

The "smokejumpers" were described by a veteran rescue worker as "all young kids . . . college students . . . who were jumping for the sport of it."

Another eight men were missing in the blackened, smoking inferno 25 miles northeast of Helena. There seemed scant hope that any of these would be found alive by the hundreds of fire-fighters striving desperately to curb the wind-driven flames which have raced unbridled across more than 3,000 acres since they burst out yesterday.

Fifteen of the specially trained 'chutists jumped into the inaccessible Big Belt mountain area yesterday. Two were killed, one other died today of burns and six were among the missing. One of the survivors said the jumpers landed all right but "we were enveloped in flames" almost at once and trapped by the horse-race pace of the blaze. Three were known to have escaped the trap but the fate of the other three was not definitely known tonight.

University Student Dies

Joseph Silva, University of Minnesota student, was among the 'chutists brought to the hospital and he died this afternoon. Names of the other two dead jumpers were withheld pending notification of the next of kin.

The other identified dead were James O. Harrison of Missoula, Mont., a forest service employe from the nearby canyon ferry ranger station and Bill Hellman of Kalispell, Mont., who died in a hosptial today.

Men from Montana and Idaho are being flown here to help fight the Big Belt mountain blaze and another fire a few miles to the east, in the York-Bull Run gulch area.

The forest service hopes to have 500 men on the fire lines by tomorrow.

U. S. Service Report

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The U. S. Forest Service reported tonight that 11 persons have been killed in a forest fire raging in Montana.

Two men missing in a canyon also are presumed dead, service officials reported.

One forest fire was reported to have spread over 3,000 acres by tonight, with another blaze raging out of control.

The weather forecast for tomorrow in the fire area, 25 miles northeast of Helena, was reported by the forest service as "dry, with more lightning and low humidity."

Those conditions are conductive to more fires, the service said.

'Three Day Permanent Cure' With One Pill For Malaria

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Chicago Herald-American reported tonight that a "three-day permanent cure" with one pill has been discovered for Malaria.

The newspaper, in a copyrighted story, said the discovery resulted from a $7,000,000 (M) federal project involving experiments with 300 convicts at Illinois' Stateville prison as malaria "guinea pigs."

The tests have been going 18 months, the Herald-American said.

Credited by the newspaper for the discovery are Dr. Alf Sven Alving, University of Chicago medical expert, and Dr. John Arnold, an Army scientist. They directed the experiments at Stateville.

"It was indicated the three-day malaria cure will be put on the market by May, 1950, after the federal pure food and drug division adds its stamp of approval," the Herald-American said.

Asked about the Herald-American report, Dr. Arnold refused to confirm or deny that a quick cure had been found. He added: "If you want verification be at the American College of Physicians convention at Indianapolis in November."

In its article the Herald-American said a report on the drug will be made at this convention.

Warden Joseph E. Ragen of Stateville declined comment. Dr. Alving is vacationing in Wenatchee, Wash.

Kansas Citian Electrocuted

Archie A. Alleman, 44, was electrocuted late Friday while rewiring the kitchen of his farm home two and one-half miles south of Buckner.

Alleman was underneath the house, rewiring the electrical connections to the kitchen because of the installation of a new refrigerator.

His wife, Mrs. Roberta Alleman, said she was snapping the switch on and off in the kitchen according to his shouted directions. The last time he called, she said, she turned the switch on. She heard him cry out and snapped the switch off and ran to him. She found him motionless.

She telephoned to neighbors, who arrived to assist. The Missouri Public Service company office at Lee's Summit sent linemen who removed the body from the damp ground, it being feared that inexperienced persons might be shocked. A pulmotor from the Webb funeral home, Blue Springs, was used.

Surviving also are two sons, Pfc. George A. Alleman, 20, army, Germany; and Archie A. Alleman, Jr., 10, of the home; three daughters, Miss Betty Ann Alleman, 18, Flora Lee Alleman, 15, and Helen K. Alleman, 12, all of the home, and his mother, Mrs. Henry Stock, Boonville.

Thousand Persons Stop Dancing And Witness Ceremony

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 6—(AP)—Charles Donelson, who advertised just five days ago for a bride, marched to a ballroom bandstand tonight and was married to blue-eyed, 18-year-old Irene Krebs.

About a thousand persons stopped dancing and watched the 21-year-old ex-soldier and former circus fire-eater calmly repeat the vows with his smiling 90-pound bride.

Brilliant spotlights flashed on the scene. News-reel cameras ground away. Flash bulbs flickered. A 12-piece dance band gave out with fitting wedding music.

Among the happiest persons in the crowd was the major domo of the whole business, Jimmy Hakes, proprietor of the Frog Hop ballroom, who had said everybody wanted to make it a "serious, solemn ceremony."

Double Wedding

It was a double wedding, with Donelson's roofing business partner, Orville Mortimore, 20, being married to Miss Delores Haskey, 19.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William R. Oursler, 67, retired Presbyterian minister of Maryville, Mo.

Hope To Persuade Star To Remain In Motion Picture

ROME, Aug. 6 — (AP) — Roberto Rossellini, the Italian movie director, may persuade Ingrid Bergman to remain in motion pictures.

A source close to the Swedish actress said today he confidently expects Miss Bergman to resume acting after about a year of retirement.

"She may make another picture with Rossellini," he said, "although her next role my be directed by some one else."

The informant said Miss Bergman intends to marry the divorced, 43-year-old director shortly after her own divorce from Swedish surgeon Dr. Peter Lindsrom becomes final.

No legal action has yet been taken, the information added. but Miss Bergman's attorneys are preparing to file first divorce papers here as soon as Dr. Lindstrom's attitude becomes known. This may be in a matter of a few days.

Lindstrom, resident surgeon of Los Angeles hospital, told reporters yesterday that he had not known of his wife's intentions to seek a divorce.

Quake In Ecuador, 1,400 Die

Casualties Mount, Hundreds More May Be Under Rubble; Thousands Homeless

By Jorge Mantilla

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 6—(AP)—The city of Ambato counted more than 400 dead and 1,000 injured today following an earthquake which virtually destroyed the industrial center of 50,-000. The casualty list was mounting steadily and hundreds more may be buried in the rubble.

(A dispatch from Lima, Peru, said Ecuadorean President Galo Plaza Lasso reported in a broadcast tonight from Ambato that 1,000 persons were killed by the quakes at Patate which he described as a small town. No town by that name had been mentioned previously in reports from the stricken area.

(Ecuadorean. radio stations heard at Medellin, Colombia, gave estimates of the Ambato death toll ranging from 300 to 1,500.)

(The Ecuadorean embassy in Washington said it had been officially confirmed that 500 were dead in Ambato alone. Ambassador Augusto Dillon said 70 per cent of the provincial capital's buildings were laid waste. Not only were 500 killed, Dillon said, but probably more than 2,000 were injured and 10,000 people probably will be out of work in Ambato.)

Series Of Shocks

The earthquake struck at 1 p. m. (EST) yesterday and continued until 1:45 p. m. in a series of six violent shocks. During the longest shock—which lasted 40 seconds—most of Ambato's biggest buildings crashed to the ground. It was Ecuador's worst disaster since colonial times.

The entire Ecuadorean cabinet, except Interior Minister Salaza Gomez who went to Ambato with President Galo Plaza Lasso, was on 24-hour duty coordinating relief work.

Railway officials said the Quito-Guayaquil line was blocked by so many landslides it will take a week to reopen it. Twenty-seven slides were reported on one 3-mile stretch of track. This line, principal freight carrier between Quito and the Pacific coast, passes through the entire earthquake zone.

Floods Too

Floods added to the distress in the quake area. Landslides blocked streams which then changed their courses and inundated farmlands. The first contingents of troops helped calm panicky Ambato residents when they arrived there this morning.

The earthquake struck a wide mountainous area of the Andes range surrounding Ambato, which lies 55 miles due south of Quito The cities of Latacunga, Guaranda and Riobamba also were hit. The governor of Chimboranzo province reported there were numerous dead and many injured in Riobamba, the provincial capital. This city, with 60,000 inhabitants, is 100 miles south of Quito.

Towns and villages suffering major damage included: San Miguel, Pujili, Cevallos, San Andres, Mocha, Cochimabma, Guamote and Guano. The latter, famous for its Indian rugs, was reported almost destroyed with an undetermined number of dead and injured. The towns of Salcedo and Santa Rosa also were reported to have been damaged.

Ambato, which was destroyed by an earthquake in 1797, again was a scene of desolation. When the first shock rocked the city, many residents dashed into streets and parks for safety. Hundreds took refuge in churches and prayed. Great cracks opened in the streets. Water mains burst and communication lines were ripped apart. Bridges crumbled into bits. Nearly the whole population was left homeless.

The cathedral was destroyed while 50 children were inside taking a Catechism lesson. The military barracks crashed to the ground killing 150 soldiers and injuring 60 others. The palace of the provincial government was a heap of ruins. Four other churches also were demolished—Santo Domingo, San Francisco. La Merced and the church of the Josephine Fathers.

Farm Improvement Train Not Coming

Address on Postal Service Given to Members of Kiwanis

"The Postal Service, and Rural Free Delivery," was the subject of a talk by Paul G. Benson, Sedalia, rural mail carrier, and National Committeeman of the Rural Mail Carriers, Association, before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Benson's remarks were as follows:

"The Postal Service has been in existence since time immemorial. Posts were used to hearld the fall of Ancient Babylon and numerous references are made in the Bible to the use and swiftness of the Posts. The original Posts could really be classified as Rural Delivery Service as they consisted of horses and men in relays to forward messages from outlying Provinces to the various Capitals of Ancient time.

"The Postal Service in this Country was established by the Continental Congress in 1775 and Benjamin Franklin was the first Postmaster General. It has kept pace with the growth of this great Nation until it now ranks in the scope of its operations with the country's largest business enterprises. It is owned by and operated for the American people. The Constitution of the United States provided for a national Postal system established as a Service institution. Since its inception—its motto has been "The Mail Must Go Through." This motto is rooted and grounded in the heart of every Postal Employee.

Taken for Granted

"The average citizen takes the Postal Service for granted giving little, if any, thought to the vast and intricate system that has been set up in order to give him prompt and efficient service. As long as the service operates for him in a normal manner he is satisfied. However, every citizen would have a greater appreciation of the Service if he would familiarize himself with the magnitude of this great institution which serves him daily and of which he owns a part interest. I am justly proud to be a small part of this vast enterprise which is so vital to the success of every business and professional man in Sedalia.

"The complete operations of the Service is administered in Washington, D. C. by the Post Office Department. The Department is headed by the Postmaster General who is a member of the President's Cabinet. His immediate staff includes the Director of the Budget, the Solicitor and the Purchasing Agent. The office of the Purchasing Agent buys every single item of equipment used in the Service from Mail Trucks to twine. The Department is further organized into Four Major Bureaus each headed by an Assistant Postmaster General. In addition to these four major Bureaus there is the Bureau of the Chief Inspector and the Bureau of Accounts.

Some Duties

"The Bureau of the First Assistant Postmaster General is charged with the establishment, organization and maintenance of the Service in General and has supervision over all personel. The Bureau of the Second Assistant has jurisdiction over all transportation of the mails including the Railway Mail Service, Air transportation and International Postal Service. The Third Assistant has jurisdiction over all transportation of the mails including the Railway Mail Service, Air transportation and International Newspapers and periodicals, stamps, Registry Service, Postal Savings, Parcel Post and Finance. The Bureau of the Fourth Assistant has under its jurisdiction Postoffice Quarters, Motor Vehicle Service, Division of Equipment and supplies, Federal Buildings and Mail Equipment Shops.

"The First Assistant Postmaster General has three deputy assistants and his Bureau is organized into six divisions.—Division of Budget and Administrative Services, Division of Post Office Clerical Servcie Division of City Delivery Service, Division of Post Office Personnel, Division of Postmasters and Division of Rural Delivery Service. Each of these Divisions is headed by a Director. The Director of the Rural Delivery Service is a former rural carrier who was National Pres. of our Organization. Hon. J. E. Cooper.

"I would like to give you gentlemen a brief summary of the history and growth of the Rural Delivery Service of which I am proud to be a part. The question might arise as to why you as residents of a city would be interested in Rural Mail Delivery but I will venture to assert that every member of this club utilizes the Rural Mail Service regularly in connection with your business or profession. The success of every urban community depends to a large extent on its rural trade territory and the Rural Mails are used extensively in the effort to bring the rural patrons to town.

Rural Delivery Service

"The Rural Delivery Service was instituted in 1896. In this rapidly expanding country there was a definite need of rural postal service. When legislation for this Service was introduced in the House of Representatives there was much opposition from those who feared such a plan would bankrupt the country. However with an appropriation of $40,000 for its backing, the first experimental rural delivery service was made available from Charlestown, Halltown and Uvilla, West Virginia, effective October 1, 1896. West Virginia was the home state of the Postmaster General at that time, the Honorable William L. Wilson. Each of these routes averaged about 20 miles and each of the five carriers received a yearly salary of $200.00. In the first 9 months there had been established 82 routes from 43 Postoffices in in 29 states. By 1903 there wre 15,000 rural carriers over the United States. From that humble beginning the Service rapidly expanded and reached its peak in 1925 when there was a total of 45,189 rural routes in the country. At that time, due to constant road improvement and the change in the method of delivery from horse and buggy to automobiles, a program of consolidation of rural routes was instituted. Routes were lengthened in this manner until at the present time the average route length is 45 miles. The 50th anniversary Golden Jubliee of the Rural Delivery Service was celebrated in 1946. The National Rural Letter Carriers' Association held a most impressive memorial service at the grave of the first rural carrier in the United States in the cemetery at Charlestown, West Virginia. As a member of the National Board of Control of this Association it was a high honor and privilege for me to be present at this impressive cermony. Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson, who was then First Assistant gave the memorial address. The Association which has so signally honored me has always held high the noble traditions of the Rural Delivery Service

Rural Routes

"On January 1, 1949, there were 32,494 rural routes in operation, the rural carriers serving these routes traveling 1,500,000 miles each day and giving complete Postal Serivce to 30,000,000 rural Americans. Missouri is among the states having the largest number of rural carriers. There are over 1500 rural carriers in this state serving almost half the population of the state. Illinois has the largest number of rural carriers with 1722. Wyoming is the smallest state in which we have an organization with 32 carriers. We do not have an organization in the states of Nevada and Utah there being less than a dozen carriers in each of these states.

"The rural carriers truly operates a "Postoffice on wheels" bringing every facility of the Postal Service to the farmer's mail box He delivers and collects mail, sells stamps, takes applications for money orders, registers letters, insures packages and his daily stops at the familiar rural mail boxes are cageraly awaited by his patrons. The rural carrier enjoys a closer personal relationship with his patrons than any other postal employee. In many instances the farmers use the same make of tires, batteries, chains, automobiles etc. as do their rural carriers as they well know these commodities get a good trial on a rural mail route. In many isolated sections of our country the rural carrier is the only representative of the Government with whom rural people come in contact. To these people the mail man is truly "The United States Government." It would surprise you to know the extent in which the advice and counsel of the mail man is sought by rural Americans in many of their more personal affairs. In return it is traditional with the rural service that the mail must go through and the and the trials and hardships endured by rural carriers in serving their routes during all kinds of weather conditions go hand and hand with the growth of the service. Neither snow, nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

War Services

"During the war the rural carrier extended many special services one of which was to make special trips to the home of a patron, day or night with that fateful message which every loved

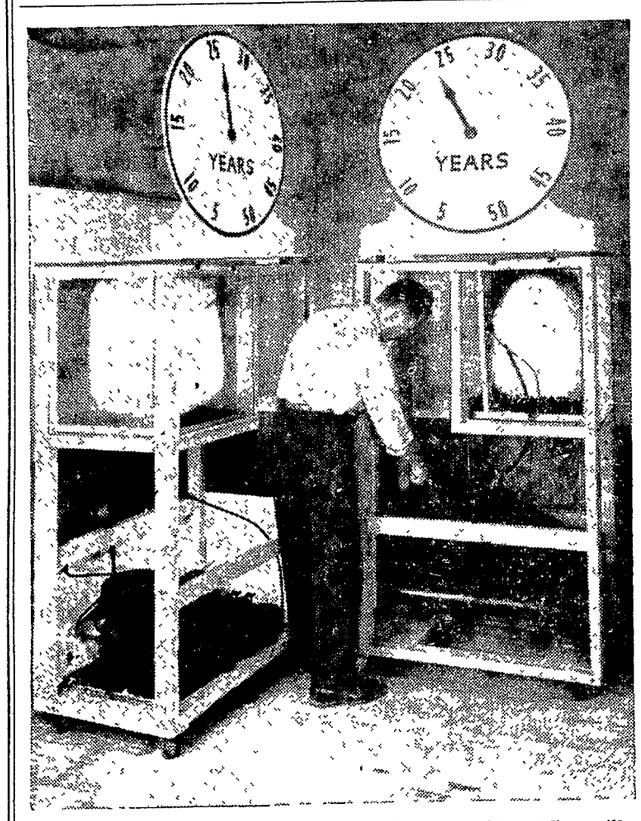
HOME WAS NEVER LIKE THIS—So you think you're hot. Think of a family of Eskimos in Chicago's 95-degree heat. The Angaboogoks, from Wales, Alaska, swelter in the Eskimo Village at Chicago's Riverside Park and wistfully think of their Arctic home. A big fan, cool drinks and ice cream don't help much. The family is en route to the Illinois State Fair at Springfield and will return home in September.



AND STILL GOING STRONG—In Dayton, Ohio, folks will show you what may be the oldest mechanical refrigerators in continuous operation. The one pictured at left has been running without letup for 27 years. Its mate is a close runner-up, having started freezing in 1924. Ordinary refrigerators only work part time, going on and off in cycles. Engineers figure that in comparison with ordinary refrigerators, these oldsters have run the equivalent of 108 and 100 years, respectively.

one of those in the service of their country so dreaded to receive. It was most fitting that these messages begining with "we regret to inform you" should be conveyed by one who knew them most intimately, and who was truly a sympathetic friend who had, in most instances, watched their lost loved one grow to mannood. It was the most painful duty a rural carrier ever performed.

"On November 25, 1947, occured an event which was unprecented in all the annals of the history of the Postal Service. First Assistant Postmaster General Jesse M Donaldson received a telephone call from the White House. President Truman was on the wire and completely "floored" Mr. Donaldson by asking him to accept the high post of Postmaster General. It was a tradition that this office should be held by the National Chairman of the political party in power. This action by the President breaking a tradition and appointing a career man as Postmaster General was widely acclaimed all over the Nation and, possibly, received more favorable publicity that any other major appointment had received for a long time. A man who had literally come up through the ranks and who knew more about the Postal Service than possibly any other man was placed in charge of this greatest business institutions of the Government He started in the service by helping his father in a 4th class office, was a city carrier in Illinois, Post office clerk and supervisor in Muskogee, Okla, a Post office inspector assigned to the Kansas City division, Deputy 2nd Assistant Postmaster General, Deputy 1st Assistant, Chief Inspector, 1st Assistant Postmaster General and finally the Postmaster General of the United States.

Competent Postmaster General

"The Department has in Mr. Donaldson, the most competent and efficient Postmaster General in the history of the service. In this connection I want to bring to your attention a matter which is of vital concern to you gentlemen and which you, in the final analysis as co-owners of the service must decide. The Postoffice Department is the only major branch of the Government which brings in revenue. While the Service was established as a truly Service institution it was deemed necessary to charge certain fees for the various services rendered This revenue has partly defrayed the cost of the Service and the wisdom of this move has never been denied. However, it has proven to be a source of considerable embarrassment to the Department There have always been critics who have claimed that the Postal Service should be self-supporting and the Postmaster General has been confronted with this situation many times in asking Congress for the necessary appropaiations to run the Department. Postmaster General Donaldson was confronted with the greatest deficit in the history of the Department. This was inevitable for various reasons. The Service has been constantly growing with necessary increasing costs. Express rates had risen sharply throwing a greatly increased volume of parcel post on the Service. Parcel post has always been carried at a great loss Salaries of all personel were raised to meet the increased cost of living. Something had to be done. Critics would soon be saying that the affairs of the Dapartment had just as well be in the hands of a politican if a career man who should know all the answers could not keep out of the red. There was just one thing to do and Postmaster General Donaldson placed the solution squarely in the hands of Congress by presenting legislation which would increase postal rates commensurate with the cost of operations. First class letters are the only class of mail which has ever been self supporting. Second class (newspapers and periodicals) third class and parcel post are carried at a great loss. It has been rather amusing to note the complete about face by some of the most powerful critics of the Service. Those who have been clamoring that the Service should be self-supporting are now piously proclaiming that the Postal Service was established as a Service Institution and should be financed out of the general revenue as are other Departments of the Government. It is for you, the American people to decide. In your thinking you must determine whether the great Postal Service should be a service institution and therefore removed from the burden of completely supporting itself. If you decide it should pay its way then certainly funds or revenue must be provided and this can only be done by a readjustment of postal rates on classes of mail that is carried at a great loss.

"The Postal Service has kept pace with the growth of America. It is necessary to maintain and promote the high ideals it has established and every American citizen should take just pride in this great institution which has played such a vital part in making America truly great."

Abe Rosenthal Visits His Old Home Town, Friends In Can.

Abe Rosenthal, 1003 West Seventh street, Mrs. Rosenthal and their two daughters have recently returned from a trip through the east and into Canada, Mr. Rosenthal's former home. They stopped in Brantford, where Mr. Rosenthal called on an old friend, a newspaper man.

After Cordial greetings the man remarked that Mr. Rosenthal's calling at that time was quite a coincidence, because only a few days before, in the "Twenty-five Years Ago" column, they had carried the following article:

"Abe Rosenthal, Hamilton, took over the leadership of the Temple Theatre Orchestra here."

In London, Ontario, Mr. Rosenthal was interviewed by a representative of the Free Press, where a lengthy story was carried. It reads in part:

"You can believe Abe Rosenthal when he says a town of 50,000 is capable of supporting a 50-piece symphony and a male choir. He's from Missouri and he can show you proof of both statements.

"When Abe was 14 and a resident of Hamilton, Ontario, he decided to learn how to play the violin. Three years later he made his living by music alone and continued music as a career until 1930, when he moved away from his home town.

Played at London

"In the meantime, he had conducted orchestras in theatres, and yesterday, when he paid a visit to The London Free Press, he recalled playing a road show at the Grand Theatre here. He was just beginning theatre stints and the show was appropriately titled, 'Experience.'

"He studied in Hamilton and Toronto and became concertmaster of the Hamilton Symphony."

"But Missouri called, and he went to Sedalia in 1930 to be employed by the Milton Oil Company. At present he is division manager of that company.

"'Tell them Sedalia is 80 miles from Harry Truman's home town of Independence,' Mr. Rosenthal advised.

Symphony Organized

"Whether nearness to the piano-playing president's town influenced him or not, remains an unanswered question. But the fact does stand that the Hamilton man turned to music in his leisure hours and helped organize the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra 15 years ago.

"Three years ago he began the Sedalia Choral Club, which at present consists of 34 members, all male, drawn from the town and surrounding district.

"The symphony had just 15 members its first few years. Mr. Rosenthal believes an orchestra should be started with a small number of good players and built up as additional able instrumentalists appear.

Depends on Conductor

"The success of an amateur orchestra depends greatly on the conductor, Mr. Rosenthal pointed out. He's the one who knows if a bassoon player (probably the only one in the symphony) can play a certain passage well. If he can't, he shouldn't be allowed to do so. The passage should be transcribed for another instrument whose player can play the notes properly.

"Sedalia has two schools of music in nearby towns to draw upon for players. The students give the orchestra superior talent and in return receive valuable exxperience in ensemble work. A board of judges 'passes' on every applicant for orchestral membership.

Offer Concerts

"Four concerts a year are given at a total cost to a subscriber of $1.50. Guest artists appear with the orchestra at performances which are given in the high school auditorium with seating capacity of 1,000.

"The choral concert, presented each year, has free admission. It depends on contributions for financial support. Only performance with admission charge in Sedalia was for the Freedom Train.

"The orchestra stays within Sedalia borders, but the male choir travels to near-by towns to present concerts.

Visiting Brother

"Abe Rosenthal is relaxing these days, visiting his brother, J. Rosenthal, at 917 Waterloo street. But it doesn't keep him from looking ahead to 'hobby days,' and training his 12-year-old daughter, Willis Ann, to play the flute so that she can be a member of the symphony's woodwind section. Another daughter, Joann, plays the piano and is accompanist for the orchestra.

"Greater things in the musical future of Sedalia are seen by its citizens."

Polio Mounts In The Nation

By The Associated Press

Infantile paralysis mounted sharply in the nation this week, but there are signs the peak has passed in some hardest hit areas.

A state by state survey by the Associated Press showed some 1,400 new cases developed in the last four days. This boosted the 1949 total to date to approximately 9,400—more than half again as high as for the comparable period in 1948, second worst polio year on record.

A note of cheer, however, was heard from health officials in Texas, Arkansas and in Detroit. And the U. S. Public Health Service in Washington also reported some evidence of a slackening in the upward pace in the country as a whole. A health service spokesman said there was a chance the polio season might end earlier this year.

In Texas, which is experiencing its worst polio year with 1,218 cases through June 30. Dr. George Cox, state health officer, expressed the cautious view that the disease has leveled out somewhat.

Joe W. Savage of New York, executive director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis made a tour of the hardest hit spots in Texas. He called the fight against spread of the disease there "outstanding, splendidly coordinated."

Four-Room House Destroyed By Fire

Fire, about 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, destroyed the four-room residence of R. L. "Bob" Williams, Thirtieth street and Ingram avenue. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

The fire companies were called but could go only to Twenty-eighth street and Ingram, the city limits. However, the fire had gained considerable headway before the fire companies arrived even at the city limits.

Mr. Williams could not be located Saturday to ascertain the amount of his loss. It was reported the loss was partly covered by insurance.

He offered in an interview with a St. Louis newspaper to donate $1,000 to charity if any of the charges are proven true. Mathews accused a group of high-ranking police officers of spreading rumors about him.

Commissioner In Ouster Case

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 6—(AP)—The Kansas supreme court today appointed a commissioner to serve in ouster proceedings pending against Vernon C. Axton, recently suspended mayor of Parsons, Kas.

J. G. Somers, Newton attorney and former district judge, was named commissioner to report findings of fact and conclusions of law to the high court for its final determination in the ouster move.

The appointment followed by only a few hours the entering of a blanket denial by Axton to charges of misconduct in office.

The charges were filed several weeks ago by Attorney General Harold R. Fatzer. They allege:

1. That Axton conspired to establish a slot machine syndicate in the southeast Kansas town.

2. That he reappointed Police Chief Frank A. Williams at Parsons with full knowledge that Williams had been extorting money from gamblers and bootleggers for protection of their illegal enterprises.

Todd Nears Mangrum In All-American Golf

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP)—Harry Todd of Dallas, Tex., knocking brilliant approaches for a seven-under-par 65, today barged within a stroke of yesterday's pacesetter, Lloyd Mangrum, as the first round of the $20,000 All-American professional tourney ended.

Todd, whose most recent bid to fame was the Ozark open he won last fall at Springfield, Mo., banged home eight birdies to finish two taps ahead of leading money-winner Sammy Sneed and Bill Nary of Los Angeles, who had 67s.

A throng of 7,000 wandered over gailey-bedecked Tam O'Shanter course as some 120 tardy starters rushed after the eight-under-par 64 Mangrum posted in yesterday's first installment of the opening round.

The actual third spot holders, ahead of Snead and Nary, were Chick Harbet and Jim Turnesa, who fashioned 66's yesterday.

Appling Plays 2,154th Game

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—Luke Appling established a major league record today by playing his 2,154th game as Chicago scored a 6-5 win over Washington after twelve innings.

The 40-year-old Appling, playing shortstop, was honored by his teammates last night for his long stint in baseball and also received a bonus check. He said he hoped he could play another year.

"It was just another ball game for me," Appling said after today's game in Griffith stadium.

Asked about reports that he was planning to retire, Appling commented:

"I have 'retired' six times in the last 19 years. As long as I can lift a glove, I'll play baseball."

Today's game was a 5-5 deadlock going into the twelfth inning. But doubles by Dave Philley and Cass Michaels snapped the tie. The victory was credited to Ed Klieman, who took over from Bob Kupzava in the seventh.

It might have been a big day for Appling but it was a poor one for Washington.

It was the Senators' sixth straight defeat and the 21st in 23 games.

Duck Stamp Money For Wildlife Refuges

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—(AP)—The new $2 duck stamp is going to help buy a number of new wildlife refuges—but not right away.

J. Clark Salyer II, refuge chief for the Fish and Wildlife Service, says land prices are too high, at present, for the acquisition of new ndeouts for waterfowl. Besides, there are more urgent things to be done.

"This is the worst time in history to buy land," Salyer told a reporter.

Salyer said first priority will go to further development of the more than 3,000,000 acres on 200 waterfowl refuges now in operation.

"By flooding and other improvements which we have not heretofore been able to afford, we will be able to increase our service on our present refuges by 25 per cent," he said.

States with no wildlife refuges whatever are Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, West Virginia, Kansas and Indiana. Others have few, if any, waterfowl refuges.

Assisting Greenwade and Zwilling will be Bill Skiff and Bill Holm, manager and coach respecctively of this year's Blues team.

All aspirants attending the tryout camp are to bring their own uniform, glove and shoes.

Remember when the old-time photographer would say, "Hold it, please?" The nervous groom, seated stiffly on the edge of a chair, was always posed holding his derby hat in one hand. Beside him, blushing prettily posed in all her wedding finery, stood the bride her hand resting proudly on his shoulder. Remember?

Elder Statesman Hoover Grows in Esteem

AP Newsfeatures Writer

The nation's only living ex-president arrives at the three-quarter century mark Thursday (Aug. 10), still a hard-working public official.

At the moment Herbert Hoover is enjoying a brief respite from his 18-hour-a-day job. His birthday finds Hoover in the surroundings he loves best: The campus of his alma mater, Leland Stanford university, with time for a little fishing with his children and grandchildren.

For some years he has declined personal interviews and has made public statements only concerning his major interests, notably the Republican party and the work of the non-partisan commission on organization of the executive branch of government, of which he is chairman.

In Good Health

He is in excellent health, in good spirits and enjoys life. The round-faced man who persists in looking like a thoughtful cherub despite great personal dignity has come a long way in popularity since the day in 1933 he left the White House in defeat in the midst of a great depression.

After that he dropped from political sight for a couple of years. For his New York headquarters he went to work on jobs that interested him: Trustee of a number of philanthropic organizations and directing work of scientific and service groups.

He fished a little and traveled a lot. Eventually he emerged from his political retirement to become a forthright and highly vocal critic of his successor's New Deal, particularly of government interference in private business.

An Important Speaker

He has been an important speaker at his party's national conventions. In Philadelphia last year, when the Republicans were certain they were about to return to power, the spontaneous demonstration for Hoover was almost as loud and prolonged as the carefully planned whoop-de-do staged for men who sought the party nomination.

His position as party elder statesman is strong. A visit with Hoover in his New York home—an apartment in the Waldorf Astoria—is prescribed conduct for party men aspiring to important position.

Herbert Hoover, however, never has been a political prototype. The only political office he ever sought or ran for was that of president. An engineer by training, practice and aptitude, Hoover made his mark by his administrative skill. Latterly he has used this in steering the work of the Hoover commission in studying the executive branch of government to reorganize its sprawling authority.

Interesting Sidelight

It is an interesting sidelight on the character of the nation's 30th president (or 31st, if you count Grover Cleveland twice) that there are few anecdotes concerning him—nothing to compare with the endless Coolidge and Roosevelt stories. The popular picture of the man is of a quiet, thoughtful person, long on formality and even shy in a poised way.

His life is in the Horatio Alger pattern. An orphan at 10, he was self-supporting at 15. Using his savings, Hoover was one of the first students to matriculate at Stanford. Graduating in 1895 with a degree in mining engineering, he went to work with a pick and shovel in the mines.

Established in Australia as an engineer, he married the girl he met at Stanford, Lou Henry. They went to China, where Hoover was chief engineer for the Chinese Department of Mines.

Exciting Years

Those were exciting years, punctuated by the Boxer rebellion. He returned to the United States to set up an international engineering practice with offices over the world. By 1914 he was a hugely successful man, directing railways, mining and allied industries which employed as many as 160,000 men.

On a trip to London in 1914 he organized the repatriation of thousands of Americans, caught like himself in World War I. He headed the administration of relief for thousands of Belgians and French.

President Woodrow Wilson appointed him food administrator when the United States entered the war and the word "Hooverize" went into the American language. After the war specialist Hoover was named to head the Allied administration of relief whose activities eventually brought supplies to 23 war-impoverished countries.

Secretary of Commerce

President Warren G. Harding appointed him secretary of commerce, a post he held for eight years. From there he went into the White House on a landslide of Republican votes during an unprecedented boom.

But the boom blew up. Always a hard worker, Hoover sometimes spent 20 hours a day at his desk in his efforts to halt the decline. Nevertheless, he caught the lion's share of blame.

As his popularity waned his round face became grimmer and his manner more remote. Even his closest associates found him cold.

Understands Nation's Problems

Hoover's real niche in the esteem of the people today, however, is his measured and thoughtful approach to the nation's problems.

He summed up his philosophy a few weeks ago in an address at Ohio Wesleyan university (where he was made a doctor of humanities, his 75th honorary degree):

"The new era of today seems united in the nation that they have just discovered real liberalism and that all previous eras are reactionary," Hoover said.

"Another modernistic school adds to this that life still may be a race but that each step must be dictated by some official or unofficial bureaucrat with stop-and-go signals.

"Whether these newest eras are right or wrong, 'security' which eliminates the risks of life, also kills the joy that lies in competition, in indivdual adventure, new understandings and new achievements. These contain moral and intellectual impulses more vital than even profits. For from them alone come national progress."

Traffic Cases On Saturday

Six speeding cases were in police court, Saturday morning, of which three were fined $10.00 and three others forfeited their cash bonds of $10.00 each. Fifteen overtime parking violators also failed to appear in court and their cash bonds of one-dollar each were ordered forfeited by Judge Harry O. Berry.

One person forfeited a $1.00 bond for not displaying a city license sticker, Mrs. Henrietta Berry, 706 East Fourth street, and another, Herman Geiser, 325 North grand forfeited a $2.50 bond for not having a city license sticker.

Those who were fined for speeding were Jack Keele, 1909 South Prospect avenue, Charles L. Ressel, 703 West Third street, and Miss Allene Hall, 911 Crescent Drive. Those who forfeited their bonds were Harry Moffett, La-Monte, J. S. Noel, Sikeston, and Leland Phillips of Warrensburg.

Several others who received summons tickets Friday night are to appear at police headquarters Monday morning.

Return Home From Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. John Allen and Miss Verona Neumeyer, all of Smithton, and Miss Ann Sawford, of Sedalia, returned home Wednesday from a vacation trip of ten days which took them to Colorado Springs, Garden of the Gods, North Cheyenne Canon Drive, Pike's Peak region which goes to Helen Hunt Fall, South Cheyenne Canon which goes between towering cliffs to Seven Falls, Cheyenne Mountain to Will Rogers Shrine and the Williams Canon to the Cave of the Winds. They also visisted Glencove Inn, at the edge of Timberline, on Pike's Peak highway, made by a sightseeing bus going up and by log road coming down.

In Colorado Springs they visited the Van Buggle Art Pottery, Grand Lake where they spent two days and two nights at Green Mountain Ranch in the mountains. They then went to Rocky Mountain National Park, the Trail Ridge Road where they visited the Trail Ridge Museum and Post Office at Fall River Pass and from there they went to Estes Park and to the Big Thompson canyon. Gold Star Mother Is Held In Jail

Gets VA Support In Dispute Over Wartime Insurance

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 6—(AP)—A Utah Gold Star mother, held in jail for her stand on her son's wartime insurance benefits, has the backing of the Veterans' administration in her fight.

Mrs. Nettie W. Capps, 57, has been held in the Salt Lake county jail since Wednesday for refusing to obey a court order to transfer monthly payments to her son's remarried widow and the latter's three small children.

The VA announced in Washington it has stopped insurance benefit payments to Mrs. Capps from the policy left by her son, Jacob L. Capps, who was killed in the battle of the bulge in World War II. The VA said it acted on instructions from Mrs. Capp.

To Obey Mother

A spokesman said the VA holds Mrs. Capp alone is entitled to the payments and will follow her wishes before mailing any more checks.

When the $10,000 policy was issued, Mrs. Maurine Ingram Capps was named beneficiary. When the couple separated Capps changed the policy, naming his mother as beneficiary and his three children contingent recipients. His wife has since twice remarried.

A district court in Salt Lake City ruled that the dead man's mother be designated trustee of the funds for the benefit of the children, rather than continue as beneficiary. Mrs. Capps refused to accept that assignment. The First Security Trust Company of Utah was designated trustee.

Ordered To Endorse Checks

District Judge Ray Van Cott, Jr., ordered Mrs. Capps to accept the $53 monthly checks from the VA, endorse them and turn them over to a designated trustee. She refused, and the 30-day jail sentence resulted.

Mrs. Capps said she loves her grandchildren "but I will not give in because I know those kiddies won't get the full amount of money."

She added "I am going to comply with my son's wishes even if it means I sit here in jail."

The matronly grandmother said Judge Van Cott "made me take an oath that I would not retract the statements made in a letter to the Veterans administration." This letter asked that accumulated back payments totaling $1,200 be forwarded to her.

She said she later changed her mind and asked the VA to withhold the payments.

Meanwhile the offices of Gov. J. Bracken Lee and Mayor Earl J. Glade both were deluged with telegrams from persons in many states asking that Mrs. Capps be released.

A typical wire read "there's a nigger in the woodpile and it ain't Mrs. Capps. Use your power to clean up the dirt."

Shading shows the extent of Communist control of China August 5, when the United States State Department in a bitingly critical white paper wrote off China's Nationalist government as a total failure before the onslaught of Communism. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, in a March 15 memorandum opposing more aid to China, declared that the Communists hold all important military areas from Manchuria (black) to the Yangtze river and have the military capability of expanding their control to the populous areas of the Yangtze valley and eventual domination of south China (arrows). Must Have Social Security Cards

With the Missouri State Fair only two weeks away, Scott Webber, manager of the Sedala Social Security office, reminds all workers who plan to seek employment at the Fairgrounds that they must have Social Security account number cards.

"A lot of people still have wrong impressions that a worker must be a certain age, or be steadily employed to get a number," Webber said. "There is no age limit, and part-time work or temporary jobs are covered by Social Security and must be reported."

All persons needing a card for the first time, or duplicates to replace lost cards, are urged to contact the office at 106½ West Fifth street at once.

Webber also pointed out that privately operated concessions on the Fairgrounds (those not operated by churches or other non-profit organizations) must report Social Security on their employes the same as any other business. INVADING ENGLAND—A fierce-looking Viking assumes the pose of his ancestors when they invaded England 1500 years ago. He stands at the prow of a replica of the original craft that will bring him and his companions from Copenhagen to invade English shores. The trip, planned by British and Danish travel associations, will commemorate the original landing. The modern Vikings will land on the beaches of Kent, then sail their craft up the Thames to London.

Things Are Not as Tough As They Used to Be

After a 10-day crossing of the North Sea, a band of 53 Danes sailed against mighty Britain to commemorate the 1500th anniversary of their forefathers' invasion of England. But times have changed. As these modern Saxons rowed their way to shore at Ramsgate in their dragon-prowed Viking craft, they were greeted, by thousands of flag waving Britishers on hand to welcome them. When the spear-carrying "conquerors" stormed ashore in their mock attack, amid the cheering "vanquished" people, they were escorted to waiting busses for further "conquests."

NEW YORK—(AP)—One lady in the radio studio audience waved some lingerie over her head. Another held up a live squawking chicken.

They were trying to attract the attention of an announcer selecting contestants from the audience to appear on a quick program.

"But that isn't the way to get on a quiz show," agreed Mark Goodson and Bill Todman. "We aren't looking for screwballs."

These two young men — both under 40—are authorities on how to be chosen to appear on the radio giveaways. They've picked thousands of contestants for the five network quiz shows they produce—Stop the Music, Winner Take All, Hit the Jackpot, Beat the Clock, and Spin to Win.

What do they look for?

"We're not looking for the greatest brains in the studio," said Todman. "We're looking for nice people the audience will like."

Avoid Those Off Balance

"Yes," said Goodson. "We want to avoid people who are off balance. There is a very thing line between the pleasant extravert and the real screwball, who may do anything once he gets on the air."

The art in getting selected as a contestant lies in attracting the announcer's eye without scaring him away by being too brash or anxious.

"A bald man is more likely to be picked, for example, than a man with hair," said Goodson. But if he is wearing a necktie that flashes off and on like an electric sign, we don't want him. He's trying too hard.

White Gloves Help

Women wearing white gloves and a large hat also are likely to be chosen merely because they stand out to the announcer as he passes through the audience in the pre-program warmup period looking for contestants. But a woman wearing flashy jewelry is automatically rejected.

"People don't like to see anyone win money who already looks as if he had more than he needed," explained Goodson.

The producers make every attempt to keep from putting on "semi-pros"—men or women with little to do who go from studio to studio trying to get on as many programs as possible. They also turn down anyone who, when asked why he wants to be a contestant, replies "to win a prize."

"He may be completely honest," said Goodson, "but the listeners often get the impression such a person is too selfish."

Over the years the producers have found that housewives often make better contestants than college teachers.

Housewife Relaxes

"The housewife doesn't feel she has to prove she's smart, so she is more relaxed," said Todman.

They also have learned that men or women from the south or southwestern part of America make the best contestants on a geographic basis.

"It isn't that they are any more intelligent or better informed," remarked Goodson. "They are simply more friendly and homey-talking.

"The New Englander is often too laconic—too brief in his answers. On the other hand the New Yorker tends to be over aggressive."

Who makes the ideal contestant?

"Oh, I'd say it would be a young man from Fort Worth, Tex., studying to be a doctor and married to a girl who was working to help him get his degree," said Goodson.

"It would help if the wife had just had a baby," laughed Todman. "The audience loves young fathers."

Approximately 17,000,000 work days were lost in farm accidents in this country in 1948.

FRECKLED NOBILITY—Herbert Harris, 11, takes a magnified look at Sally Brady, 9, after they were chosen King and Queen of Freckles at the Chicago Railroad Fair. The judges had a tough job trying to decide between Herbert and two other boys, until Herbert took off his shirt. Then he won with freckles to spare.

She explains, "It has in it the feeling of the sky, the sea, the mountains," and believes it contains all the forms used in sculpture.

It covers an area of 1,040 square feet and has a content of 12,480 cubic feet Its low rectangular walls make the house adaptable to the use of concrete blocks or frame construction with wide siding. The designers suggest a roof of asphalt shingles.

Gets Return of Billfold That Was Not Even Missed

When people lose their billfolds they usually go around in circles trying to find them, but not with Mrs. B. S. Hutchinson, route 3, Sedalia. She even argued that she didn't lose hers.

The telephone rang at the Hutchinson home Wednesday afternoon and some member of the family was rather bewildered when the voice at the other end of the line said they had found Mrs. Hutchinson's billfold. She had not mentioned losing her billfold and consequently a lot of questions were asked the party who had called, questions he thought to be rather odd when he was trying to return a lost billfold. "What was in the billfold" and such things. If it had been the other way around and he was trying to claim it that would have been different, but trying to identify a billfold he wanted to give back was funny. Finally he left a telephone number and address and let it go at that.

When the person in the Hutchinson home who had done the talking tried to tell Mrs. Hutchinson she had lost her billfold she argued that she hadn't. And when they told her it was found on Kentuky avenue she said she hadn't been on Kentucky avenue, and there she was right.

Found by Visitor

Mrs. Hutchinson, a nurse at Woodland hosptal, was in a taxi going from work to her home and evidently dropped the billfold out of her purse. A young man, Norman Silberstein, who had just arrived in Sedalia from Columbia and who took the same taxi to the home of his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Silberstein, 1411 South Kentucky avenue, where he will spend a month's vacation, kicked the billfold out of the taxi and it fell on the ground. Being bright red he noticed it at once and picked it up. When he got in the house he began looking for some identification and found a telephone bill, which gave him the name, address and telephone number.

When Mrs. Hutchinson finally looked in her purse, certain she had not lost her billfold, she found it was gone, and went immediately to the telephone to call the honest young man. "That was really something," she said, "when some one calls you about returning your billfold even before you know you've lost it." Mrs. Hutchinson was very grateful for the thoughtfulness of Mr. Silberstein and was happy to have her billfold back. It contained a $55.00 bill, some change, a keepsake silver dollar, her keys and some papers.

Mr. Silberstein, whose home was originally in St. Louis, and who is a student at the University of Missouri, Columbia, came to Sedalia to spend the vacation between the summer and fall semesters with his brother. He is a nephew of Vic Eisenstein, 900 West Fifth street. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Silberstein have resided in Sedalia a little more than two years.

Early Filing Of Claims Is Necessary

Losses of Benefits In Social Security Might Ensue

Most workers seem to overlook the protection they have under the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program for their families in case they should die, according to Scott Webber, manager of the Sedalia Social Security office.

That this family insurance protection is substantial, as compared with the cost, is demonstrated by the widows' claims, based on the wage records of their deceased husbands, which cross Mr. Webber's desk every day. This protection for survivors is in addition to retirement benefits if the worker lives to age 65.

Webber says that he has just reviewed a claim under which the widow will receive monthly checks amounting to $78.63 for herself and two children over a long period of years. The total payments will amount to $20,781 over a period of 37 years, assuming the widow does not remarry and that she lives to age 77, which is the customary life expectancy of women who reach age 65. The total amount of survivors insurance payments in this claim is made up of the following:

Monthly payments of $22.46 to the eldest child, age 2 years, until age 18 or for 189 months—$4,244.94;

Monthly payments of $22.47 to the youngest child, age 8 months, until age 18 or for 208 months—$4,673.76;

Monthly payments of $33.70 to the widow until September, 1867, when the youngest child reaches age 18, or for 208 months—$7,009 60;

When the youngest child is 18, all payments stop, for the law assumes that a woman and grown children can support themselves; however, when the widow reaches age 65, her monthly payment of $33.70 begins again, and running out her life expectancy of 144 months, this means an additional $4,852.80.

Based on Wages

Tsese insurance benefits are based on the husband's total wages from January 1, 1937, until his death May 1, 1949, of $36,393.18. Thus, the family will receive survivors insurance payments totaling $20,781, at a premium cost of only $363.93 (1% of the husband's wages) with his employer having paid an equal amount. This is rather substantial protection in relation to the cost plus retirement protection if the worker attains age 65.

While $78.63 a month will not provide for full support of a family of three, in this case, with their modest home, some savings and private life insurance, the mother can rear the children in their home, which is what the Social Security Act was intended to accomplish.

Webber said that he would like again to emphasize that these benefits must be claimed—they are not paid automatically. The necessity for prompt filing of a claim is evidenced by another case where a retired worker lost over $3,000 in monthly payments because he waited until May, 1949, to file a claim, whereas he should have filed upon retirement in September, 1941. He lost 88 monthly payments of $36.13 since the law permits retroactive payments for only three months before the month of filing. His wife also lost 35 monthly payments of $18 07, a total of $632.45 because she also delayed filing her claim until May, 1949, whereas she could have claimed benefits from March, 1946, when she reached age 65. This worker explained that he did not file sooner because until recently he did not need the money and did not want to accept charity. As has been frequently pointed out in the press, these are insurance benefits paid as a right because "premiums" in the form of Social Security taxes were paid by worker and employer.

Nationalities Stores Planned For Moscow

MOSCOW —(AP)— Moscow is about to open a new group of restaurants and stores. They will represent various Soviet nationalities. "Ogonek," the Soviet picture magazine, recently carried drawings of the store and the restaurant of one of these nationalities—the Armenians. It appears from these drawings that great care is being taken to see that they are designed so as to typify the art and architecture of Armenia.

It is estimated that half of U. S. traffic moves on 300,000 miles of city streets.

Marriages, Society, Club Activities In And Around Sedalia

Mr. and Mrs. Clay M. Swope, 2000 South Engineer, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Ann, to Mr. Thomas Clayton Perry, of Windsor, Mo. The marriage will take place August 21.

Mr. F. A. Bremer of Smithton, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Lois, to Clarence Eichholz, son of Mrs. Ed Eichholz, of Smithton. The marriage will take place August 26th.

Mrs. Lessie Sluder, of Mora, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Angeline May, to Mr. Leon Donald Burkhalter, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Burkhalter, of Sedalia.

Miss Irene Stuart, daughter of Mrs. Helen Stuart of Smithton, became the bride of Charles Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. P. Smith of Smithton at 5:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 30, at the Methodist church in Versailles. The single ring service was read by the Rev. Val Strader, pastor of the church.

The bride wore a suit of white gabardine trimmed in navy blue with white accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. For something old she carried her grandmother's wedding handkerchief.

Max Smith, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The bride is a graduate of the Smithton high school class of 1949, the bridegroom of the same school. He served in the United States army for two years, one and one-half years of which were spent over seas in Germany.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at Flat Creek Inn on South 65 highway.

After a short trip, the couple will be at home at 1101½ East Fifth street, Sedalia.

Miss Irene Stuart was honored with a miscellaneous shower on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Paul Erfurth, Smithton.

The afternoon was spent in playing games, followed by the bride-to-be opening the many gifts.

Refreshments of home made ice cream, angel food and devil food cake, lemonade, tea and mints were served.

Those present were: The honoree, her mother, Mrs. Helen Stuart, her sisters, Miss Virginia Stuart and Mrs. Robert Lindstrom, Miss Dorothy Lou Smith, Mrs. Curtis Bluhm, Mrs. Stanley Kahrs, Mrs. Vernon Monsees, Mrs. Joe Monsees, Mrs. Sherman Lewis and Evelyn, Mrs. Melvin Hampy and children Billy and Helen, Mrs. Ernie Lewis, Miss Carolyn Jean Jackson, Miss Mary Lou Calvin, Miss Bonnie Bultemier, Mrs. Paul Erfurth and daughters.

Those who sent gifts, but who were unable to attend were: Mrs. K. D. Smith, Mrs. Howard Scott, Mrs. Robert Devine and Miss Betty Jane Monsees.

A large number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cureton, of route 2, Nelson, on Sunday, July 31, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Ben A Holden, who were married on July 8 at Marshall.

Miss Angeline May Sluder, daughter of Mrs. Lessie Sluder, of Mora, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Leon Donald Burkhalter, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Burkhalter, of Sedalia, is announced today by her mother. (Photo by Lehmer)

All the guests contributed to a dinner served at noon. The recently married couple cut a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Following the dinner the bride opened their gifts.

Mrs. Holden was formerly Miss Betty Jo Kabler, daughter of Mrs. Laura Kabler and the late Joseph Kabler. Mr. Holden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Holden of the Postal community.

The following were guests for the wedding dinner and shower:

By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

My column this week is not about style, although it does have a slight relation. For several years, some of the merchants have wanted a shopping night downtown other than Saturday night. They felt so many customers, particularly in the surrounding communities would prefer another evening. Many people have only the evening to shop in and if they have an opportunity to go on a trip or do anything on Saturday night special it is impossible for them to do it, or sometimes they make a hurried shopping tour and end up with the wrong selection. Another thing, the stocks are replenished during the week for Saturday shopping and by Saturday evening many of the choice selections are gone. A group of us have decided to be open on Thursdays from nine until nine and on Saturday to close at six o'clock.

We are going to do this for a trial period and in the meantime we hope the public will make up our minds definitely what they would really prefer. This last Thursday night was our first night open, and although we were extremely busy in our shop, it seemed that our customers shopped in a more carefree manner and weren't in a rush to get someplace at an appointed hour. We were able to chat with them and get better acquainted with them so they would feel at home in our shop.

Through this column I feel closer to so many more people and I would like for you to help us make up our minds which is the best night. We want to do what is convenient for you—so drop us a note or call us 631 or the Chamber of Commerce 895, we'll surely appreciate it—next week there'll be some good news about suits.

Pleats educated to stay creased by the baking-at-high-temperature processes will spread their charms over classrooms and campusses at no extra cost for upkeep. A promise of this good behavior for six months to skirts with knife pleats, box pleats or accordion pleats — is a written guarantee of California designer Stephanie Koret.

Smart new blouse style that can be worn out like a middy or in like a shirt is Koret's new torso-fitting wool jersey. Striped spirally like a barber's pole in two-toned colors, such blouses were designed to be the gay upper half of pleated skirt fashions. Typical styling of those is seen in the solid color wool jersey skirt, knife-pleated to look as straight as a plumb line when static, as fluted as an unfurled fan when it goes into action.

A Tall Story—About Tall Girls and Short Beds

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 — (AP) — Don't be too sorry for poor Cousin Lucy just because she happens to be six feet tall. Maybe she likes it that way.

Explains six foot two Catherine Bedell, New York telephone operator and member of the Stratoliner club:

"You're all by yourself up there—and it's nice. When I'm with our crowd I'm really annoyed because I can't see over their heads. A tall girl looks better in her clothes too—when she can get them. A lot of us make our own."

It isn't any harder for a tall gal to get a job, she asserts, and a lot of medium-sized men like to go out with a tall girl.

"How do we like it? Oh, we think it's fine. Still, we do like tall men."

Question six foot women and nine out of any ten probably will tell you they like it that way. And you will note, too, that most of them wear high heels.

A "Tall" Club

And where do you find ten six-foot women?

There were 200 men and women as tall or taller at a convention just held here.

There were delegates from 24 clubs the country over, such as the Kansas City Skyliners, Pittsburgh Star Dusters and a lot of others banded in the American Affiliation of Tall clubs. Men members must be six feet two; women can get by at five feet ten.

All of the elongated fraternity were much concerned with the problems as well as the advantages of their height.

Hard To Find Clothes

"Tall people can't find ready made clothes or shoes or stockings to fit in many places. They can't stand up straight in a lot of buses or sit up straight in a lot of cars. Most hotel beds are too short for them and so are railway berths. And theater seats are so close to the row in front that there isn't room for us.

"Still, things are better than they used to be. But there is a lot of room for improvement. From where we stand it looks as thought the American people are growing taller. Statistics? Well U. S. Army statistics show that the average G.I. was an inch and a half taller than his dad. And we know there are lots of six-footers who don't belong to our clubs and thousands of others who are not quite high enough to get in, but are still quite tall."

Most of the convention's efforts to get a better deal for six footers consist in making their plight known to manufacturers and public services.

More Consideration

The tip toppers, higher-ups, skyscrapers, etc. say that since the clubs have worked for a better deal for six-footers, many more city shops have started clothing departments for tall people; women find it easier to find size 12 stockings and men to get size 15 shoes.

They claim more theaters have pushback seats which give more leg space and that more automobiles have greater head room. But they consider that is "just getting the door open a crack."

What they hope for is much more of the same. And many more hotel beds six and a half feet long before they get too old to travel. The girls would like to see more men remember that tall girls also like to have their cigarettes lighted and taxi doors opened for them. They say too many unconsciously let a tall girl shift for herself.

Cardinals Lose 3-1 To Giants, Only Six Hits

Waste Chance To Extend League Lead Over Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals were balked in their efforts to gain a full game on the Brooklyn Dodgers in the close National league race when they dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the New York Giants in the majors' only night game.

The Dodgers had lost, 5 to 2, to Cincinnati in a day contest, but remained one-half game behind the pace-setting Cards when the Giants won.

Three Balks

Adrain Zabala won his second straight game since returning from Mexican exile despite three balks. In the first inning a balk saved him two runs. After Nippy Jones had lined a pitch into the left field seats at Sportsmans park for an apparent home run with a man on base, the umpires ruled the Giant lefthander had balked before the delivery and the blast didn't count. It would have put the Cards ahead, 2-1.

Zabala balked again in the sixth with Jones once more at bat and in the eighth after Tommy Glaviano had singled to start the inning.

Out At Plate

Glaviano scored on a single by Red Schoendienst, after two were out Schoendienst was thrown out at the plate a moment later, trying to score on Stan Musial's double.

Lead-Footed Luptow Enters His Black Panther Offenhauser

Hailed as the surprise star of 1949 dirt speedway auto racing, lead-footed Frankie Luptow. Tampa, Fla., has entered his new Black Panther Offenhauser car in the Missouri State Fair big car speed championships on Sunday, August 21 and Saturday, the 27th. Luptow and his powerful Offy have been on top of the national championship point standing since February. He expects to increase his points for 1949 in the Missouri events.

New Promoters Here

Auto racing, this year, is promoted by two newcomers to the Missouri Fair, Al Sweeney and Gaylord White of Chicago, Ill., who are known to sign the best drivers that can be obtained for dirt track events. Both men in discussing the various racing events for the two days of activity said they promise faster. better and more daring drivers to be entered than at any previous racing program.

Deb Snyder, better known to racing enthusiasts as "Dapper Deb," is a noted driver of the dirt track contest. Hailing from Kent, Ohio, he has been a steady threat to Luptow's point system this season. Snyder is not to be confused with a dozen or more other racing drivers—he being, according to State Fair officials, the best of the lot.

To Use New Racing Rules

The racing this year is the first to be conducted under the banner of National Speedways, far-flung major league motor speed circuit.

The speedway-type racing will mark the first time that Indianapolis speedway 500-mile race rules governing engines have been in effect on the State Fair track, according to Roy S. Kemper, secretary of the fair.

Sweeney, White and Kemper in discussing the events, declare that racing records made on the track are expected to be shattered. The record of the late Gus Schrader will be at stake in both time trials and other racing events.

Many new speedway stars will be seen here this season. those whose names have appeared in the public press many times.

Junior Blues Lead League

Two games were played in the Boys' League last week with the Junior Blues moving into first place in the league after winning one game while the Junior Athletics won one and lost one, to trail half a game.

On Monday, the Athletics shut out the First Baptist team, 9 to 0, with Williams the winning hurler and Wickliffe the loser. The Athletics had three homers, by Mines, Moore and Dey.

On Wednesday, the Athletics were defeated 10 to 13 by the Blues. Walters started for the losers, but was relieved by Fall, who was charged with the loss. Trent was the winner.

Next Wednesday the Athletics and Blues will play the final game of the season. A proposed seven-game play-off for these two teams is now under discussion.

Jim Blair Loses In Houston 'J C'

HOUSTON, Tex. Aug. 6—(AP)—Two young golfers who may be college roommates this fall meet here tomorrow in the championship match of the fourth annual National Jaycee Junior tournament

They are short, muscular Gene Littler, San Diego, Calif., the defending champion, and slender Bud Holscher, Santa Monica. Cal., last year's Hearst National Junior titlist.

Play in Heavy Rain

Both splashed through a heavy rain this afternoon to score semi-final victories. Littler turned back Don Addington, Houston, 3 and 1, while Holscher won from another Californian, Bill Casper, Chula Vista, 2 and 1.

All four finished with par-plus scores on the 6012 yard, par 71 Houston Country Club course. Littler was three over, Addington six, Holscher nine and Casper 10. Three and four putt holes were numerous for the water soaked greens.

In morning quarter final matches Littler took a 7 to 5 decision from Bob Atkinson, Portland, Ore. while Holscher turned back Jim Blair, Jefferson City, Mo., 2 up.

Addington won 1-up from Jack Weitzel, Reading, Pa., and Caster defeated Hobart Jameson, Altus, Okla., 6 and 5.

Hambletonian Entries To Be At State Fair

$18,000 Race Has All But One Of Major 3-Year-Olds

Harness racing enthusiasts visiting the State Fair at Sedalia during the Grand Circuit period of competition, August 22-27, will see a virtual carbon copy of the $67,000 Hambletonian, richest sulky classic of the year, which is to be raced at Goshen, N. Y.. August 10.

All but one of the major candidates for the traditional classic for three-year-old trotters are entered at Sedalia in the Trotting Club's three-year-old event Thursday, August 25, valued at $18,000.

Seven Out of Eight Here

Trotting honors among the three-year-olds this year will definitely be shared by four colts and four fillies and seven of the eight will compete in the Sedalia race. August 25.

Topping the list is the fleet Bangaway, co-favorite for the Goshen race, owned by C. M. Saunders of Toledo, O. On the 1949 Grand Circuit the fast-stepping colt has annexed six heat wins and has to his credit victories in the $10,000 Historic-Dickerson Cup at Goshen, the $5,000 Adirondack, and the $10,000 Saratoga, both at Saratoga raceway.

Tough Competitor

A. L. Derby's Martha Doyle, from Wichita, Kans., is also on the list. She won the $15,000 Coaching Club Trotting Oakes at Goshen and was second to Bangaway in the Saratoga. At this point she is considered Bangaway's toughest competitor for midwestern honors.

The competent team of Stotch Pal and Atomic Maid, both from the Hayes Rair Acre stable of DuQuoin, Ill., will also seen action in the rich trot at Sedalia. Scotch Pal won the $5,000 Hambletonian Preview Trot at Old Orchard Beach, Me., two weeks ago, while Atomic Maid took one heat of the $6.000 Matron Stake at Fairmount Park earlier this year. The eventual winner of that race, O. L. Mear's Guy Ambassador, is the only major Hambletonian candidate not scheduled to race in the "repeat" contest in Missouri.

Scott Higgins Shows a Winner

"Easter Night," 5-year-old stallion, owned and ridden by Scott Higgins of La Monte, was the first place winner in the five-gaited stake in the North Kansas City horse show the past week. The show was sponsored by the Clay County Bit and Spur Club at the high school stadium.

"Easter Night" has made an excellent record this season and was the winner of the Combination Championship stake at Slater, recently.

In the class at the North Kansas City Show which was won by Easter Night, two other horses well known to show followers of Sedalia placed two and three. "Trail Blazer," owned by Elliott and Johnson of Trenton was second, and "My Winning Ways," owned by Ralph Knight, Kansas City motor car dealer, was third.

"Blondie," owned by Mr Hawkins, Buffalo, Mo., and ridden by Jimmy Higgins, son of Scott Higgins, placed second in the Pleasure Horse class.

Chiefs Play At Columbia Tonite

The Sedalia Chiefs will journey to Columbia tonight for a league game with the Ban Johnson team of that city. The team will leave Cal Rodgers station at 5:30 o'clock with game time scheduled for 8:00 o'clock.

The Chiefs are currently in second place in the Central Missouri Ban Johnson league, one-half game behind Moberly. The league leaders have played and won one more game than the local aggregation.

Friday night, the Sedalia All-Stars defeated the Chiefs 5 to 2, when Knob Noster, the scheduled team, failed to arrive with a full squad. The All-Stars were composed of players from the Sedalia Athletics, Sedalia Blues, Knob Noster and Marshall.

The Chiefs used for the first time five players recently acquired from the Junior Legion—Bill Brown, Bob Ray, Bill Holst, Dale Ruffin and Ralph Walker.

Brown and Ray pitched for the Chiefs, with White, Barbour, and Whitworth catching. Patton and Barnes worked the hill for the All-Star and Sullivan caught.

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

THRILL seeking fans will have a full program—come August 21-28, the dates of the Missouri State Fair. Roy Kemper, secretary of the fair, sometime ago began announcing from time to time the weekly program. It includes everything from thrills to the horse show.

The week opens on Sunday the 21st with an afternoon packed with a program of thrilling automobile races. Some of the best known drivers in the country will compete in the various speed events. Sunday night opens the horse show which will bring to Missouri some of the finest bred show horses in the country. Horse shows will be held every night up to Saturday.

Starting Monday afternoon the Grand Circuit horse racing program, for five afternoons, will get underway. Horses which will race in the famous Hambletonian this week will be entered in the daily events to be here.

On Saturday another day of automobile racing will be presented:

Sunday, Joe Chitwood, the "Wild Indian," brings his thrill show of World Champion auto and motorcycle daredevils. These famous thrill drivers will present one of the country's best known thrill shows to Missourians for the first time.

Chitwood hardly needs an introduction, having been publicized in the newspapers throughout the world in his racing career at Indianapolis Speedway, as well as showing in his thrill shows in practically every large city in the country.

All in all it's going to be a big time at the fair.

JACK Cooney, Friday night, got a tryout at St. Joseph, Mo. where a St. Louis Cardinal scout was on hand to give him the "once-over" as to his baseball playing. Cooney plays first base and does some pitching and I imagine the scout had him do a little work at both.

The tryout was during the warmup period before the Joplin and St. Joseph ball game in the Western Association.

Cooney plans on attending Westminster College at Fulton, this fall, having been awarded a scholarship for this college.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Cooney and formerly resided in Sedalia. While here he played baseball with the Post 16, American Legion Junior baseball team.

Dodgers Drop 5 To 2 At Cincinnati

Three Errors By 3rd Baseman During 5-Run 8th Inning

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds scored five runs in the eighth inning today with the aid of three errors by third baseman Billy Cox to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-2.

Johnny Wyrostek homered to start the eighth for the Reds and Cox then came up with a siege of butter fingers.

Palica Relieves Branca

Erv Palica relieved Ralph Branca at this point and Lloyd Merriman greeted him with a two-run single to put the Reds in front, 3-2.

Grady Hatton bunted and Palica tossed to third but Cox dropped the ball for his third error and the bases again were loaded. Palica disposed of the next two batters but Ted Kluezewski followed with a two run single to left. Wyrostek, up for the second time, flied out to end the inning.

The Dodgers scored an unearned run in the third and added another in the eighth on Gene Hermanski's eighth home run of the season.

Branca Loser

Branca had the Reds blanked on three hits until the eighth. The big right-hander was charged with the loss, his fourth against 12 victories.

Wemeier held the Dodgers to four hits in posting his seventh victory and fifth straight. The loss snapped a six game Brooklyn winning streak. Cox' three errors tied the National league record for most errors in an inning by a third baseman established by Phil Geier of Boston and Lew Riggs of Brooklyn.

Yanks Stage A Home Run Hitting Show

By Ralph Roden

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The New York Yankees staged one of their greatest home run hitting displays since their pennant winning years of 1936-39 today, blasting out six home runs to edge the St. Louis Browns, 9-8.

Trailing all the way, the Yanks won in the ninth inning when with one out. Tommy Henrich and Joe DiMaggio belted successive home runs. DiMaggio's blow was second of the game and tenth of the season. Henrich's blast was his 20th. The other Yank homers belonged to little Phil Rizzuto who hit two and squat Yogi Berra. The Browns piled up an early 8-3 lead, thanks to home runs by Paul Lehner, Sherm Lollar and Gerry Priddy.

Falls Short of Record

The nine home runs fell one short of tying the major league record for most home runs hit in a single game by two clubs.

Lefty Joe Page, fourth Yankee pitcher, received credit for the victory his tenth. Cliff Fannin, who made only one pitch, DiMaggio's second home,. was the loser.

The triumph also increased the Yanks' American league margin to four games over the Cleveland Indians The Indians bowed, 2-0, to the Athletics in Philadelphia.

Dick Fowler scattered eight hits in out-pitching the Indians' Bob Lemon The A's picked up a run in the second when Wally Moses singled home Mike Guerra from second. Guerra tripled home Nelson Fox with the final run in the seventh.

Letty Mel Parnell became the first major league pitcher to win 16 games as he pitched the red hot Boston Red Sox to a 3-0 triumpeh over the Detroit Tigers. The victory was Boston's seventh straight and their second consecutive shutout over the Tigers.

Parnell Checks Tigers

Parnell checked the Tigers on five hits, walked only one and fanned three. Dom DiMaggio collected two of the Sox' nine hits to stretch his consecutive game hitting streak to 33.

Ted Williams tripled and Vern Stephens doubled for Boston's first run in the opening inning. Johnny Pesky and Bobby Doerr doubled for another run in the sixth and Al Zarilla doubled home Billy Goodman with the final marked in the eighth.

The Chicago White Sox edged the Washington Senators, 6-5, in a 12-inning battle at Washington. Doubles by Dave Philley and Cass Michaels were the deciding blows.

Shortstop Luke Appling of the White Sox played his 2,154th game at that post to break the previous major league record held by Rabbit Maranville.

Reds Upset Dodgers

The Cincinnati Reds upset the National league's pennant contending Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-2. The Reds scored all of their runs in the eighth inning with the aid of three errors by Dodger third sacker Billy Cox.

Herm Wehmeier went all the way for the Reds and allowed the Dodgers four hits in posting his seventh victory and fifth straight.

The Philadelphia Phillies edged the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3, Dick Sisler winning the game in the ninth inning with a pinch-hit single.

Del Ennis and Andy Seminick homered for the Phils and Dino Restelli and Ralph Kiner for the Pirates. Kiner's blow was his 28th of the season.

The Chicago Cubs trounced the Boston Braves, 10-4, to extend Boston's losting streak to five games. Hank Sauer socked his 24th homer and Andy Pafko his 14th for the Cubs.

Walt Dubiel had the Braves blanked on one hit going into the ninth when with two out the Braves wrapped out six straight singles good for four runs.

Merchants Down Warrensburg, 6-1

The Sedalia Merchants softball team downed the Warrensburg Lions, 6 to 1. in a game played on the Warrensburg diamond, Friday night.

Norman Thompson pitched a one-hitter for Sedalia, and was robbed of his no-hitter when MacHoffie, Warrensburg pitcher, beat out a bunt for the only hit of the game. Thompson's wildness kept him from a shutout, however, as he walked three men. He fanned eight batters.

Sedalia jumped to a three-run lead in the fourth on a home run by Thompson with one man on, and Simon made the score 3 to 0 with another round-tripper.

Warrensburg got their lone run in the fifth on a bunt, two walks, and a run scoring on a double play. Richards, Merchants center fielder made a neat running catch to retire the side in that inning and prevent further damage.

Simon led the hitters with two for three, with Carver getting two for four.

The score by innings:

Sedalia	000	301	2	—6	6	1
Warrensburg	000	010	0	—1	1	4

Satchel Paige Depends On Fast Ball In Pinch

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6—(AP)—Ageless Satchel Paige, the Cleveland Indians' colorful relief hurler, says there's only one pitch to use when you are in a jam—the fast ball.

Although the ancient Negro has a variety of deliveries ranging from the bat dodger to the hesitation pitch, he calls on just one when the chips are down.

Even if he were 20 years younger, it would still be the fast ball in the clutch for Satch.

Town and Country Plays at Southeast Sedalia Diamond

The Town and Country baseball team will meet the La Monte team at 2:30 o'clock at the Southeast Sedalia diamond.

This diamond, occupying a square block between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets and Center and Porter avenues, is in good shape, with much work having been done for its improvement this past week. A new backstop has been erected.

The All-Stars Grid Game On Friday Night

Bud Wilkinson To Use Split "T" And Regular "T" Plays

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 — (AP) — A determined and talented band of college all-stars will trot into Soldier Field Friday night seeking revenge from the National Football League in a battle which will kick off the 1949 gridiron season.

Sixteenth Annual Scrap

The occasion is the 16th annual scrap between the All-Stars and the National Football League champions—this year the Philadelphia Eagles. The advance ticket sale indicates a crowd of around 100,000 persons will be on hand.

The squad of 70 collegians, coached by Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, will seek to wipe out the 28 to 0 trimming handed last year's All-Stars by the Chicago Cardinals, the national pro- league champs.

Wilkinson has a flock of standout backs and linemen to throw at the Eagles in "split-T" and regular "T" formation.

But he is worried about his defense. He pointed out his stars must stop Steve Van Buren, who spearheads the Eagles' running attacks. and also must play flawless defense against the passing of Tommy Thompson.

Big Assignments for Stars

"These are big assignments," Wilkinson mourned. "The Eagles' professional opponents couldn't do it consistently last year.'

The starting offensive and defensive lineups of the stars will not be named until the final practice next Thursday. Among lineman expected to get a chance to stop Van Buren and the Eagles are Bill Fischer and Marty Wendell of Notre Dame; Al Derogatis, Duke; Barney Poole, Northwestern; Chuck Dednarik. Pennsylvania: Alex Sarkision, Northwestern; Dick Harris and George Petrovich, Texas; Phil O'Rielly, Purdue, and Goble Bryant and Joe Steffy, Army.

Wilkinson has plenty of standout backs to operate offensively. They include Clyde Scott, Arkansas; John Rauch, Georgia; Stan Heath, Nevada, and Harper Davis, Mississippi State.

Available Quarterbacks

"T" formation quarterbacks available include Jack Mitchell from Wilkinson's own Oklahoma eleven; Frank Tripucka, Notre Dame: Al Dimarco, Iowa; Norm Van Brocklin, Oregon; as well as Rauch and Heath.

The All-Stars began emphasis on defense Friday. They held another rugged drill today and plan two more, in addition to lighter workouts and lectures.

The Eagles are working out daily at their training camp near Grand Rapids, Mich. Johnny Baker, head coach of Denver University looked them over yesterday and pronounced them "by far the best conditioned team I have ever seen at this early stage."

More than 5,000 persons were in the stands watching weekly stock car races as the back segment of a new grandstand gave way. The injured persons were rushed to the northern Duchess hospital.

A hospital spokesman said there were "quite a few broken arms and legs."

A member of the Duchess county sheriff's office said the injured persons fell about 16 to 20 feet.

Earthquake Kills Over 200 In Ecuador

Several Towns Are Struck; Troops Sent To Control Disorder

QUITO, Ecuador, Saturday, Aug. 6—(AP)—An eyewitness broadcasting by radio from Ambato said early Friday about 200 persons were killed there by an earthquake that shook Ecuador's populous central mountain district yesterday.

Reports reaching the capital here said at least six other cities and towns besides Ambato were shattered by a sharp series of earth shocks.

Ambato, 55 miles south of Quito, apparently was the worst hit. Wrecked bridges and communications lines prevented accurate estimates of total casualties.

The broadcast from Ambato said the number of injured had reached "an alarming figure."

Reports from Latacunga, 35 miles south of Quito, indicated most of the city was destroyed and many killed.

(A government announcement issued at Guayaquil, Ecuador, said 40 persons, mostly soldiers, were killed when an army barracks building collapsed at Ambato. Collapse of a church also was reported to have buried a group of girls praying inside. This announcement did not specify whether the 40 persons were included in the 80 whose bodies were recovered.)

Panic And Disorders

Ambato has a population of about 50,000 and Latacunga about 20,000. Other towns stricken included Salcedo, Pujili and Sacquisili, in the provinces of Cotopaxi and Tungurahua. Panic and disorders were reported to be general.

President Galo Plaza Lasso took personal charge of arrangements for first aid and relief. He left for Ambato to supervise rescue work, after dispatching several army air force planes with medicine and doctors. The Red Cross mobilized forces, and two relief trains were en route south.

An official bulletin said troops were directed to reestablish order and safeguard property in the stricken zones and along the Latacunga-Ambato highway.

Casualties Increase

In Ambato, capital of the Tungurahua province, the provincial governor said the number of victims was increasing constantly. He indicated the thickly populated northern industrial section of the city was in ruins.

The governor called for aid but warned that many highway bridges into the city and sections of the Latacunga-Ambato railway had been destroyed.

Railways Damaged

(Guayaquil reported that rail traffic was disrupted by twisted or broken tracks. A passenger train which had left Guayaquil this morning was isolated 30 miles from Riobama.)

One report said that one coach of a passenger train had been overturned near Luisa.

Flat Creek Club Picnic August 14

The Flat Creek Extension club held its July meeting with Mrs. J. O. McMurdo. A contributive luncheon was served at the noon hour.

The afternoon business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. T. Edmundson. Roll call was answered with "What Rationing Taught Me." The flower committee reported two bouquets sent this month. Mrs. Robert Welliver told of the 4-H club activities coming up. The Achievement day committee gave an outline of what they have planned for an exhibit. Mrs. E. R. Wilhoit reviewed "Party Line."

The club will have the annual picnic August 14 at the Edmundson home instead of at the park as was previously planned.

Mrs. Fred Dillon was a visitor at the meeting. Pal box gifts were distributed.

The September meeting will be with Mrs. Ralph Milburn.

On Alert Over Bloody Clashes In Macedonia

Premier Tito Has Troops Ready For Possible Safeguard

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Aug. 6—(AP)—Yugoslav troops were in a state of alert Friday to guard against what Premier Marshal Tito called provocations and intimidation by his Soviet-dominated neighbors.

Tanjug, the official news agency, last night quoted Marshal Tito as saying bloody clashes already had taken place in Macedonia. The stormy Balkan region lies between Communist Bulgaria and Albania, with Greece on the southern border.

Tito said his troops were in a "state of alert in order to safeguard the peaceful construction of our Socialist country."

The premier, who defied Soviet dictation a year ago in a row with the cominform (Communist International Information Bureau), accused his eastern neighbors of trying to intimidate Yugoslavia by spreading rumors of a threatened red army invasion.

Tito called them "nothing but ordinary rumors," but added:

"Nevertheless, we are not unvigilant here either . . . We are prepared to prevent all provocations, to defend our country against everyone."

Slap at Moscow

In a slap as Moscow, Tito added Yugoslavia would defend the principles of Markish-Leninism "even against the creators of these principles, should they go against them."

Tanjug reported the statements were made Wednesday in a speech to army and political leaders in Skoplje, Macedonia. Tito repeated previous statements that Yugoslavia would not sacrifice its Marxist Communism for western friendship, then launched into his toughest talk to date against his Cominform neighbors.

"You are on a sector of defense of our country," he told the Macedonian leaders, "which is of great importance and on which provocations took place, where they are still occurring today and will probably take place in the future.

"You are in a state of alert in order to safeguard the peaceful reconstruction of our Socialist country . . .

"There are cases already where they (Yugoslav soldiers) had to confront the enemy face to face. Blood has already been shed here in defense of our Socialist homeland."

There are an estimated 3,000,000 miles of rural roads in the United States.

Thursday Night Shoppers

Loading up with purchases made while down town Thursday night, the first in Sedalia, in a two-month trial, to determine whether citizens prefer that night to Saturday night to visit the retail stores. (Bill Padgett Phot.)

Model of 'Minnow'

Several cars of weary model enthusiasts stole into this sleeping community early Monday morning and brought with them memories of one of the most stupendous events in the yearly life of an active model builder and flier, the National's. Anyone who has ever been fortunate enough to witness a national model plane meet will quickly agree that after returning home the sole topic of conversation is nothing but remembering and recalling some of the most exciting and near impossible feats of model acrobatics.

The group of modelers from Sedalia were present for the last and closing day of the meet. According to Johnny Flashpoler, local model dealer and leader of just about all model activity in Sedalia, the day was crammed full of thrills. John said one of the outstanding features of the day was the air show featuring the "Blue Angles," USNAS, that started late in the afternoon. The four bright blue Grumman Bearcats (F-8-F's) performed precision flying and intricate group maneuvers that thrilled all present, including the local boys. Johnny said along with the Bearcats there was a clown in an old SN-J who mocked the "Blue Angels" in some of their tricks.

Indoor Events

Some of the many parts of the meet that occurred during the week were the indoor events held in the Municipal Auditorium in Kansas City on Tuesday (registration for all events was on Monday). On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday the many phases of the outdoors events were held at the Olathe Air Base. Events at Olathe included all classes in the free flight divisions, in Control-Line, and in radio control, glider and rubber powered jobs.

At 8:00 o'clock Sunday night the awards were presented to the winners in all events, at the USNAS Auditorium.

Some Sedalians who were there Sunday are: Johnny Flashpoler, Lee White, Bill Aven, Forrest Banner, Bill Stodgell, Niles Sims and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hayworth and their son Val Jean and Ralph Morgan.

Morris Jackson Service Monday

Funeral services for Morris Jackson will be held Monday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock at the Alexander funeral chapel with Rev. A. M. Jackson, of Kansas City, officiating.

Burial will be in the Glenwood cemetery.

Receive Degrees From Lincoln U.

Mrs. Vivia Kingsbury Smith also received a degree. Her degree was in elementary education. Mrs. Smith is now employed in Quindaro Grade School, Quindaro, Kas.

Attended Funeral

James Holloway and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Thomas, of Chicago, Ill., were in Sedalia the past week enroute to attend the funeral of Kenneth Bakert, of Kansas City, one of the three flyers killed in an airplane crash near Warsaw, last Sunday. The funeral was held at New Salem church at Marshall Junction, with Mr. Holloway serving as one of the pallbearers.

Decree Passes Flunked Students

BANGKOK—(AP)—A government decree gave passing grades to 29 students who flunked university entrance examinations. Within a few days the Ministry of Education was deluged with requests from parents that their children who had flunked other tests be given passing marks.

Top Education Ministry officials sought to resign in shame over the Thailand cabinet's action, but were persuaded to hang on only because their terms were expiring shortly anyway.

The education squabble began when the son of a member of parliament got 49.6 on an examination. The passing grade was lowered from 50 to include all who scored 49.5 or better.

Peasant housewives in Italy and North Africa use fans to drive air into crude charcoal stoves, thereby fanning the flame to boil coffee or fry potatoes.

Care Only Treatment When Crippler Strikes

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, — (AP) — When your child gets polio—infantile paralysis—his fate passes out of your hands.

All you can do is to turn him over to specialists, doctors and nurses, and there are not many of these specialists in the entire United States.

That's where the dimes you and the children gave last winter come to your aid. They produced more than $20,000,000 now ready to do the incredible medical job of making this scarce aid ready everywhere.

Your community has a local chapter of the national foundation for infantile paralysis, one of 2,800 in the United States.

Call the community or nearest national foundation office. They have plans ready. For those unable to pay the full expenses, the foundation expects to pay the balance. And this is a lot of money, about $1,000 being an average expense for a single case. Some run far higher.

How Funds are Divided

Local chapters of the foundation keep half of the March of Dimes funds collection, and most of this goes to pay patients' bills. The policy of the foundation is to pay all or part of the expense, depending upon each family's need for help. When local funds are exhausted, the national headquarters advances money to help meet the costs. Last year the foundation and its chapters spent $17,000,000 on patient care, including $6,700,000 from the national headquarters.

The foundation undertakes to find a hospital where this care can be given. Many hospital have neither the equipment nor the experienced personnel.

Where cases are numerous, the foundation maintains teams of expert doctors and nurses to go to that area and train nurses and advise local doctors. These teams are top men in polio, in the leading medical institutions of the United States.

The foundation last winter took in $25,000,000 in the March of Dimes. Half this went to the local chapters, and half into the national foundation. Deducting the expenses, there is about twenty million dollars left for polio aid and for research.

In last summer's epidemic the national foundation spent about $4,000,000 more than is received in dimes money.

Some things which the experts will do can later be done at home by you. That will be in the cases where it takes years of training stricken muscles.

Where children are unable to move a muscle, nurses or parents or apparatus built for the purpose does ths excercise. Someday the weakened mucles get able to do some of their own work. Results sometimes look like miracles. The reasons are intricate, but there is little guess-work.

Lost Some Power

Bulbar polio, the kind that comes from damage to the "bulb" at the top of the spinal cord, has lost some of its death-dealing power. Bulbar kills in several ways. It may paralyze swallowing muscles, or breathing muscles or interfere with heart action. In the sawollowing trouble, the child chokes to death. Opening the windpipe saves most of these, and that was discovered only two years ago. Iron lungs keep them alive in the breathing paralysis and pure oxgen helps tide over the heart crises.

The doctors may give the sufferer myanesin of priscol to relieve pain, but not because they think there is any curative effect. They use curare to loosen muscles that insist on tying themselves into knots. They have tried new remedies like darvisul and gureomycin. There are swimming pools, rocking beds and other devices for mild exercises.

Making Tests

There are more than a score of medicines being used on animals, with hopeful effects, and two vaccines, again for animals. Whether any of these will work for human beings is unknown.

The best and only remedies go under the broad name of physiotherapy, which means long patient, understanding and affectionate care and painstaking direction in teaching stricken muscles to make a comeback.

How to Avoid The Perils of Polio

KEEP CLEAN—Garbage cans should be covered tightly. If disposal facilities are lacking garbage should be burned. Keep food tightly covered and safe from flies and insects which might carry virus.

DON'T SWIM IN DIRT—Polluted water and places marked "no swimming" should be especially avoided. It is safest to use only authorized beaches and public pools declared safe by health officials.

DON'T GET CHILLED—Sitting in front of a fan when overheated is bad. Remove wet garments at once. Keep warm clothes handy in case of need.

KEEP OUT OF CROWDS—Tennis is one of the sports which does not involve close contact with other people. It is wise to stop playing before you get overtired. The injunction to avoid fatigue and crowds applies to work, although it is more difficult to adjust work schedules.

When ice is frozen without being agitated, it usually is cloudy or white.

Red Cross Corner

A Red Cross First Aid tent was set up at the Catholic Center Center Sunday, with Michael Wolfel, chairman of Safety Services, in charge, with Mrs. A. A. Studebaker assisting. Only one person required treatment.

Mrs. Herman Seifert, Chairman of Home Service, announces that there will be a change in the Home Service meetings, which have been held in Sedalia for the past two years, with seven chapters attending. In the future, our chapter workers will attend sessions at the Chapter House in Kansas City, with Missouri and Kansas chapters participating. The first meeting will be held Monday, August 8, and our Chapter workers plan to attend. The Red Cross office will be open in order that any emergency may be taken care of.

We are proud of the two registered nurses who have volunteered to serve as polio nurses during this critical period. They have gone to Kansas City to nurse in Menorah hospital, and after this training, they will be qualified as Red Cross nurses. Both have been working at Bothwell Hospital, and the transfer, on a loan basis, was arranged through the local Red Cross office. All Red Cross chapters have been alerted by National Headquarters for the recruitment of nurses for the polio period. The nurses are Miss Cleo Hartnett, R. N. and Mrs. Zeta Woodward, R. N.

The Pettis County Chapter is again having a display at the Missouri State Fair. This booth will be located in the Educational Building. Mrs. Arthur M. Hoffman, chairman of Staff Aides, is asking for volunteers to serve at the booth. Any Aides willing to serve, please call Mrs. Hoffman, No. 3046, or the Red Cross office, No. 618.

Crossroads Comment

by G. H. S.

A guild of employees of a New York magazine has come up with a dilly. Claiming the guild wants to correct an "injustice," the male members are negotiating for a one-week "paternity leave" in its contract with the publication.

This plea for "expectant fathers" is based on the theory that the guild members can't afford to pay a nurse when their wives return home from the hospital, and can't afford to take a week off without pay to do the household chores.

Maybe the little lady should have a part in these negotiations. We'll bet a holeless doughnut she'll side with the employer and say: "Keep John at work. The baby and I are strong enough to see the chores are done without having him under foot."

This pregnant idea for "expectant fathers" was probably cooked up by guys who want to get a week's pay for a week's drunk following the advent of dear Junior.

A good poker player never tries to "shoot a singing bird." Yet Harry T. and Harry V. tried it—and lost when Harry B. (the too-many Byrds in Congress) came through in the Virginia elections to put his gubernatorial candidate in the victory seat and maintain his own party leadership of 25 years' duration.

The two White House Harrys have been after the scalp of the Virginia Harry and most folks thought a Byrd was going to get his wings clipped.

Evidently Senator Harry E. Byrd made things pretty hot in Virginia because the same morning after his victory song hit the front pages, brother Richard E. Byrd, veteran polar explorer, chirped he was taking off for the South Pole.

The singing Byrds continue to fly, politically and exploratively.

Just Who Are The "Selfish Interests"

Who are these "selfish interests" at whom those high in authority in Washington point with scorn? The old whipping boy—business—of course.

This line of propaganda is wearing pretty thin—the idea if you repeat some accusation often enough the people will believe it.

One thing beginning to jell in the public mind is that the "selfish interests" seem to be among politicians, elected officials of both parties in Congress, the bureaucrats, who seem to be more intent on building issues for next year's elections than providing for the welfare of the country.

—O—

Last week America celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of the invention of the hamburger, reviving a dispute between St. Louis, St. Joseph and Springfield, Missouri as to the place where the invention occurred. This argument should be settled definitely as soon as the politburo in Moscow hears about it. Why, of course, hamburger was a Russian invention, first made of bear meat. The way some of them taste over here, Americans might be convinced any Soviet claim would be correct.

—O—

Other communities have started a campaign to "swat the fly." Years ago Sedalia had these campaigns. There were organized efforts to eliminate the disease-carrying pests. Boys and girls formed teams, setting out screened fly traps. Everybody became "fly" conscious. Swatting became as much exercise as golf-playing today. Money prizes were awarded. It seemed like tons of dead flies were brought in.

Even without an organized effort of this kind now, individual families can strike a notable blow against disease by encouraging personal efforts among all members of the family to "swat that fly" for better health.

—O—

What are the meanings of hand signals made by motorists in traffic?

Interpretations are as conflicting as the signals themselves which mean one thing in one state, something else in another.

In the name of uniformity this should be corrected on a national basis. Somehow states get together on the license plate colors so there will be no conflict year to year. If this can be done with such facility with license plates why can't a uniform national code of hand signals be promulgated and publicized?

What a wonderful accomplishment this would be if it could be done without "passing a law."

Parnell Thomas Recovers Health But Doesn't Go On Trial

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—It has now been exactly one year since this column first exposed both the kickback skulduggery of Congressman Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and the fact that he had soldiers transferred away from the war front in return for political contributions. Since then, Thomas has been indicted, but pled sickness and has never faced trial.

The other day, however, he was seen driving up to the Statler hotel in a sleek green Cadillac convertible looking in better health than ever.

Despite his good health and prosperity, Republican leaders in the House of Representatives have quietly gone to Democratic leaders to ask that the indictment against Thomas be dropped. Congressmen stick together, and Democratic leaders are planning to pass this plea on to the Justice Department.

What will be done about it—if anything—will be one of the first problems faced by the new attorney general, J. Howard McGrath.

Congressman Barden and the Pope

Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina, bitterly attacked by Cardinal Spellman over his aid-to-education bill, was in Rome last year where he was received by His Holiness Pope Pius. With the congressman was Mrs. Barden and their pretty 15-year-old daughter, Agnes.

Barden and the Pope had a most cordial conversation, following which His Holiness presented the former North Carolina schoolteacher with a bronze papal pocket-piece bearing the likeness of the pope. He also gave one to Agnes Barden, and in doing so, he took the girl's hand in both of his and said: "Blessings on you, my beautiful child."

Greatly impressed, little Agnes never forgot that visit. A Presbyterian, she sang the pope's praises to other children when she got back to North Carolina.

Then, one morning last month she picked up the paper from the front door and brought it to her father. Across the front page were headlines: "Cardinal Spellman attacks Congressman Barden."

"Oh, Daddy," exclaimed Agnes, in distress, "I'm sure the pope couldn't have told him to say that."

Will Vaughan Be Ousted?

Around the White House its now said that President Truman is looking for a painless way to kick Gen. Harry Vaughan upstairs providing "that S.O.B. Drew Pearson" and the Senate Investigating committee don't make things too hot.

This stubborn loyalty quirk in Harry Truman's makeup has been admired by some people but doesn't benefit the taxpayers or those interested in good government.

Furthermore, the new White House thinking about General Vaughan arises just as another question-mark in the extraordinary life of the general is being raised—namely what connection he had with the attempted purchase of all the remaining army scrap iron in Germany.

This was another deal involving lobbyist James V. Hunt whose diary reads as if he were almost a member of the White House staff, and who, with Vaughan, once had the army band play one of Hunt's musical compositions at a White House garden party.

The scrap-iron deal took place in March, 1947, when Benny Bender of Shreveport, La., went to Germany and signed a contract with the army for 150,000 tons of scrap iron on behalf of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company. Returning to the U.S.A., Bender found himself in some trouble with Carnegie-Illinois, which apparently had not given him full authority to act and which refused to honor a draft against them for $206,000.

Bender was then faced with the problem of getting the army contract for the scrap iron transferred to his name rather than that of Carnegie-Illinois, a rather difficult deal, since Bender had no sizeable funds of his own.

Red Tape Vanishes

It was at this point that Bender went to Vaughan's friend, lobbyist Hunt, the reputed miracle man who was supposed to be able to accomplish anything with the army. Hunt signed a contract with Bender April 15, '47 by which he agreed to get the army to transfer the scrap iron from Carnegie-Illinois to Bender. Hunt's fee for this transfer was to be $12,500.

If the transfer was for the best interests of the army, of course, no fee or undue influence should have been necessary.

During their conversations, Hunt introduced Bender to General Vaughan outside Hunt's office in the Barr building as the "man I told you about who is interested in that scrap-iron deal." Vaughan had left the White House to call at Hunt's office. This was the only time Bender actually met Vaughan, though lobbyist Hunt harped on the idea that Vaughan was helping him arrange the transfer.

Whatever influence was used, the transfer went through with amazing speed—one day and a half. For those accustomed to government red tape, this was phenomenal. Four army teletype messages were exchanged with Germany, whereupon the transfer of title from the giant Carnegie-Illinois corporation to little Benny Binder of Shreveport, La., for all the remaining scrap iron in Germany was accomplished.

In the end, the scrap-iron ring in the United States made it difficult for Bender to sell his scrap and the deal fell through. Bender and Hunt quarreled over payment, and Hunt finally sued Bender for his $12,500 fee. Bender, in turn, took bankruptcy and the fee was settled for $10,000.

But the secret strings by which Vaughan's friend so blithely and quickly transferred the scrap iron from Carnegie-Illinois to Benny Binder still has those who know the army gasping.

Here's a New Handbook For Husband Hunters

The first question a young woman wants to get married ought to ask herself is: "Why am I single?"

If she needs help in figuring out the answer to that one, she may possibly find it in a new book compiled by Hilda Holland, "Why Are You Single?" In this book medical and other authorities on marriage discuss the various reasons why 29,000,000 people of marriageable age in the United States are single.

Once she has figured out why she's single, then she's ready for the last chapter of the book, "Why be single?" and its suggestions for improving her personality and her attitude toward others so that she will be attractive to the right man if he comes along.

Check Yourself by These Tips

Become a good conversationalist.

Recognize and compliment others' good qualities.

Go out of your way to do little favors.

Hold on to old friends and make new ones of both sexes.

Dress neatly and appropriately.

Pay close attention to personal hygiene.

Get rid of any peculiar mannerisms.

Rid yourself of habits that annoy others.

Learn to dance, to play games, to enjoy sports.

Know what etiquette requires and observe it.

Develop a hobby that interests others.

Join several organizations and take part in their activities.

Inventory yourself every three months to see how you can be more attractive.

When you know something is wrong, do something about it now.

That may strike you as a formidable list at first glance. But when you start checking yourself by it, it may not be so tough since you've probably already mastered a good many of the suggestions.

Then all you've got to do is concentrate on the points where you are weak. Good luck and good hunting to the new YOU.

Be Wary in Using Drugs For Relief of Hay Fever

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

Millions of sufferers from hay fever dread the arrival of August 15. At about that date (perhaps earlier this year because of the advanced season) the common ragweed begins to release pollen into the air.

The running or stuffed-up nose, itching and watering eyes, and the sneezing fits of the hay fever victim make for a miserable time. Some people are so seriously affected that they cannot sleep. They loose weight, become irritable and exhausted and feel of little use to themselves or to anyone else during the four or five weeks of "the season."

Many victims of hay fever have obtained great relief by taking the injections or "shots" of pollen before the season starts. The purpose of these injections is to reduce the sensitiveness to the pollen.

Some people cannot take large enough doses to do much good. Others, for reasons which are not yet entirely understood, fail to respond very well. Many, however, obtain some relief and a few get over their symptoms entirely.

Temporary Relief

Once the season has started these preventive injections are not of much help. Many who can get away try to seek areas where there is less pollen, but others have to stay where they are and grin and bear it. Air conditioned public buildings often bring some relief. Some people who can afford it feel better if they stay in a room with an air filter in the window.

Several drugs which bring considerable relief are now on the market. These drugs act for only a short time, but they do help many hay fever sufferers when their symptoms are intolerable. They are not entirely lacking in undesirable effects, however, and therefore should not be taken without some medical supervision

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

QUESTION: I drink anywhere from five to seven quarts of beer a night. I also have sinus trouble and become irritable and nasty when I have an attack. My wife says the beer bothers my sinus.

ANSWER: It is hard to tell whether the sinus or the beer would have the most effect on your disposition. Why don't you give up the beer for a while and see what happens?

• Social Situations

SITUATION: You are an inexperienced cook and wish to serve a new dish when you are having dinner guests.

WRONG WAY: Prepare it for the first time for your guests

RIGHT WAY: Try it out once, before you serve it to guests.

John Gardella, a former Sedalian, now residing in St. Louis, arrived for a visit with W. J. Riley and family.

J. A. Lamy, who accompanied his family to Colorado, where they will make a lengthy visit, has returned home.

THE STORY: A wealthy widow, Mrs. Everson, believes that an atomic war is impending and with it will come the destruction of civilization. She has sold all her belongings and put her money into jewels. She has equipped two giant trailers with comforts and is fleeing with her servants to "a place of safety." In the party is Mrs. Margaret Malone, her cook, who did not understand the expedition until she was a part of it and who has since been tempted to run away. Mrs. Malone has learned that Mrs. Everson is in love with her handsome chauffeur, Rudy, a disgraced movie star, but Rudy likes Mrs. Everson only for her money. Victor, the Filipino houseboy, and the Marchese Delinacasa, an exiled nobleman, are the others in the party. Mrs. Everson's fear of the impending "great explosion" is heightened by her frantic appeals to Rudy to "hurry." "She's sure scared of that bomb," Victor tells Mrs. Malone. Mrs. Malone answers: "Who isn't?"

XVI

MRS. MALONE peered out of the window again and then turned to Rudy.

"Where are we?" she asked.

"The arrow points toward Colorado or Montana," Rudy said. "We're going the hard way, but don't ask me why. Maybe she's still throwing pursuers off the scent."

He stretched again.

"Me for the hay!"

"I too," Victor said.

"But Mrs. Everson . . ."

"Let her sleep," Rudy interrupted. "She's out like a light."

"How about the Bomb?" Mrs. Malone said sarcastically. "If we don't hurry along, maybe we'll be too late!"

Rudy's smile flickered.

"You can only die once," he said. "As for me, I'm against driving over a cliff in my sleep. Come on, Victor."

The minutes passed in a silence so absolute that Mrs. Malone found herself pausing to listen, straining to hear, holding her breath with a sort of dread. It was a silence composed of the loneliness of deserted rocks and empty skies. Here, on this high, still place, man the builder and man the destroyer seemed no longer to exist. The fever and the fury of great cities were far away, dwarfed into inconsequence, left behind.

The steps were down; Mrs. Malone went outside and forward along the trailer's shining flank to the truck. Mrs. Everson was asleep, her head on her arms, her face hidden. Mrs. Malone hesitated, then crossed the road and stood on the brink, looking off at the great platter of earth.

"I wish Joe were here," she thought.

ALL through those long years with him there had been the peace and security of love, his strength and wisdom, a way of striking through the mazes of doubt to the heart of a situation, or to the truth of a human being. She had relied on him too long.

In a few brief days the protecting wall he had built around her had crumbled and fallen, had vanished forever. Joe was gone. Yet with her eyes closed, now, she could see his kind, quizzical American face, could hear his voice, dry and gentle, could feel his arms around her.

She tore her mind away, knowing that it was hopeless and wrong to remember. She must live, now, with emptiness and loneliness. But what would Joe have decided about these people? Could she believe Victor? Or the implacable Rudy, tensed for some sudden, fierce spring? Could she believe the foreigner? Or Mrs. Everson?

And then, suddenly, she knew what Joe would have done: he would have got out of there—fast! Nothing in the world could have persuaded him to string along with such a gang.

She turned, with some half-formed idea of escape. She could be halfway down the other side of the grade before any of them awakened. She might get a lift—this road was used—surely a car would overtake her.

"Malone!"

Mrs. Everson was sitting up. Now she opened the cab door and swung herself down.

"Where's Rudy?"

"He and Victor are asleep, Madam."

MRS. EVERSON'S face gave evidence of the long night's vigil. Her eyes were darkly shadowed; the carefully painted lips were blurred.

She crossed the road and stood beside Mrs. Malone. Two steps beyond, the mountain fell away into space. They could see the grade twisting down between the canyon walls, coil after coil, to the valley floor.

"Let them sleep," Mrs. Everson said in her somber voice. "The rest is easy. We can make time today. And day after tomorrow we'll be there. Safe."

She was not speaking to Mrs. Malone, but to herself. Her expression, as she looked off at the panorama of uninhabited land, was again triumphant. She made Mrs. Malone think of some ruler or prehistoric priestess.

The gulf of space beneath her only deepened the impression. Mile beyond mile the emptiness stretched away, transfixed in silence. Over it all the strange, pallid woman seemed to hold dominion. As if, somehow, she knew the secret of its destiny . . .

Suddenly she said: "You were meaning to run away just now, weren't you? Are you afraid of me?"

"No," Mrs. Malone answered.

"You hate me."

Vivacious Sunny Daye, heard on Dinnerbell Roundup, and a regular star on the Brush Creek Follies each Saturday night over KMBC, is one of the most popular stars on the staff. In addition, Sunny is currently featured in her own program at 3:15 each afternoon, Monday through Friday, with songs and ballads familiar to old and young alike. She's as pleasant as her name, and we hope you'll tune in on her program.

Well-known baritone Lenny Stokes will be the featured soloist on "The Choraliers" program this Sunday at 1 o'clock on KMBC. Eugene Lowell conducts the all-male choir, and selections on this week's program include "Pale Moon," "Strike Up the Band," "Alice Blue Gown" and "Wizard of Oz."

Tiny Tillman, folk-song artist, is winning new friends each week in the KMBC-KFRM area. Tiny, who is featured on.. Dinnerbell Roundup each week-day.. noon, and is a regular star on Brush Creek Follies, is also heard on his own program at 6:15 each morning. Not long ago Tiny asked over the air what the folks thought about his morning show. The mail that poured in to the KMBC-KFRM mail room was testimony enough to indicate that he's a favorite with area audiences.

The Family Hour of Stars this afternoon at 5 o'clock will present screen actress Wanda Hendriz in "Hold Back The Dawn." It's a story of an international romance, with unusual complications. Paul Frees plays the part of a Rumanian refugee who wishes to marry in order to secure American citizenship. We invite you to tune in on this intriguing story.

Ken Parsons, assistant director of the KMBC-KFRM Service Farms, is another one of The Team's busy men these days. Ken, like Phil Evans, lives on the Service Farms, and is a practical farmer. In addition, Ken is heard on KMBC at 6:55 each morning with his "Better Farming" program, and presents several other farm programs each day over KFRM. Ken is an expert agronomist, and trade area listeners are finding his programs of real value in this important business of agriculture.

"First Nighter," heard on KMBC at 9 p. m. each Thursday, will present a romantic drama of a 16th century swordsman on this week's program. Barbara Luddy and Olan Soule are the stars of "the little theatre off Times Square," and this week's story concerns a soldier who undertakes a dangerous mission to rescue two beautiful ladies.

Allotment of 1950 Wheat Is Announced

A 1950 wheat allotment of 25,903 acres for Pettis county has been announced by the county Agricultural Conservation Committee.

This represents Pettis county's proportionate share of the national wheat acreage allotment of 68 9 million acres for the crop that will be harvested next year, Jas. A Harvey, committee chairman explains. The national allotment is the acreage, that at normal yields, will produce an amount of wheat which together with the expected carryover next July 1 will supply contemplated domestic and export requirements and provide a safe reserve.

Individual farm allotment, based on acreage and production data collected over the past several months, have been established, Harvey stated, and notices to Pettis county wheat growers were mailed from the county office on July 29. Any farmer who has grown wheat on his farm during one or more of the past three years and who did not receive a Wheat Allotment Notice should contact the county committee to determine who such notice had not been received.

Not Enforce Limitation

Acreage allotments are not an enforced limitation on production, but provide a limitation on Government expenditures for price support beyond the national interest, Harvey explains. Only those farmers who seed within their farm allotments will be entitled to price supporting comodity loans or purchase agreements on their 1950 crop.

Although adverse conditions during the growing and harvesting season have resulted in a smaller 1949 wheat crop than expected earlier, this year's harvest will still be the third largest of record and the sixth consecutive wheat crop in excess of one billion bushels, Harvey points out. The average yearly domestic consumption of wheat is only 700 million bushels, and only abnormally high exports supported by ECA allotments and army purchases for occupied countries have prevented the accumulation of price-depressing surpluses.

Harvey emphasizes that if wheat growers comply with acreage allotments, thus adjusting production to expected requirements, it may be necessary to use marketing quotas for future crops.

Geoglogists to Be at The Fair

The quest for uranium in Missouri will be reflected at the State Fair here, August 21-28, when the State Geological Service will operate a service to examine any specimens of minerals, rocks or ores that have been brought in by citizens of the state, using a Geiger counter and a black lamp, or untra-violet light, it has been announced by Edward L. Clark, state geologist, of Rolla. The tests will be made at the geological exhibits in the Missouri Building and two experts, Garrett Muilenburg and O. M. Bishop, geologists, will be on duty.

The geologists, naturally, will be on the lookout for any significant specimens aside from those indicating uranium, Mr. Clark said, and it is desired that persons who have specimens send them directly to Rolla, although any brought to the Fair will be examined.

Living Standards Fret German State

KIEL, Germany—(AP)—The citizens of the west German state of Schleswig-Holstein complained that their cabinet ministers were living too well.

When the state parliament discussed the matter, minister president (governor) Hermann Lueddemann rose and put two bottles of wine on the table. "I herewith invite all deputies who live more modestly than I for a bottle of wine in my one-and-a-half-room apartment," he said. "I think two bottles are enough."

Judgeship Remains Temporary

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The roving federal district judgeship in Missouri will remain temporary under the omnibus court bill signed yesterday by President Truman.

The post now is held by Judge Richard Duncan, of St. Joseph.

The house approved a provision making the post permanent. However, the senate later eliminated the provision at the suggestion of the state's two senators, Donnell and Kem, both Republicans. Both houses later accepted a conference committee report which went along with the senate.

Suits Are Tailor-made For Amputees—

Amputees back from the war, with hooks where their hands used to be, found it wasn't too tough to learn to drive a car or operate machinery. What really got them down were ordinary everyday little things, like trying to dress themselves. Today they can wear suits that look exactly like the well-draped styles other men wear. They don't present the trouble ordinary suits do to the amputees. The secret lies in well concealed details, some of which are pictured above, especially adapted to the requirements of men who wear artificial arms or hands.
